To say that the throng which crowded prisher's Opera House last evening, to witness the alleged cures of Herrmann the Healer, was astonished is to put it very mildly, for his wonder workings caused men to gape in open-mouthed amazement. The hall was packed, despite the downpour of rain, and the auditors would not have been more surprised had the earth opened and swal-lowed the hall. Herrmann the healer appeared after Prof. Hall had made a few remarks. He looks quite young, and as if he were of a very nervous disposition. His fea-tures show sympathy and kindness, and tures show sympathy and kindness, and he is of excellent physique. Altogether he is a real good specimen of humanity. The first case treated was Mr. Richard Lemon, one of the best known stevedores in the Northwest. Mr. Lemon was suffering from rheumatism and kidney trouble.
