mailed office of an American president.

When the McKinley tariff was fashoned and enacted it was assalled with every art of vituperation, and the chief dium of this abused measure was universally cast upon the head of the man whose name it hears. Now, since the specious hubbles of Democratic reform and clover have broken in air; now that the Mckinley tarif, by contrast, and risen in popularity; now that the charge at responsibility for it seems no longer firmaging, there is an overstrained effort to show that the odium originally heaped upon McKinley was shorether According to the reconstructed lie of today, McEinley had little ar nothing to do with the framing of the measure for which he was denounced five years ago. So he is belittled today as merely a pretentious figurehead, appropriating the credit of other men's labors and brains.

Fortunately for McKinley and the truth, it is clear that the masses of Republican voters have recognized the gross unfairness of this original allotment of odium and its preposterous revoking. They do not believe that the former chairman of the ways and means "ommittee was merely a wooden figurehead of the McKinley taria bill. They recall his long and able service in congress, his unremitting championship of the principle of protection for American industries and labor, his remarkable speeches in maintenance of his views to great public assemblies in the leading eities of the country, and they have Judged it fitting that the chief bearer of the odium should be the bearer also of the Republican standard and the Repubcan reward.

If, as now seems most likely, William McKinley wins the Republican conven-tion nomination, we have full faith that he will bear the party standard aloft to he will bear the party standard aloft to triumph through the Democratic hall of triumph through the Democratic hall or is courteously proffered, and pleasant depreciation and abuse. His apoiless young ladies are in waiting to guide one private character has thus far defied calumny, and his really admirable ahilities will again be demonstrated in this great campaign beyond any possible stretch of detraction and defamation. FATHER DARCY'S WITTY RETORT.

Milwaukee Journal existence

Concerning the celebrated Father Darcy, probably the greatest wit of that witty nation, Ireland, it is related that he once visited the palatial residence of a perfect specimen of the nouveaux rich-es, who lived in the neighborhood of Dublin, at the invitation of its pompous owner. He was shown all over the house, his host taking great pains, as is habitual in such cases, to keep the witty and observant priest well in-formed as to the cost of all the least ful things he was shown. Finally, after making the complete tour of the cha-teau, the library was reached, its treteau, the horary was reached, its tre-mendous shelves groaning under the weight of thousands upon thousands of volumes, respletident in the most mag-nificent bindings. Here they sented themselves, and the host said, with a
