OPINIONS OF TWO LEADERS.

York have expressed their opinions as to the possible nominee at St. Louis. Their Depew is one of the delegates at large from the Empire state. He has just visited Governor Morton, and thus gives rein to his views as well as those of the

"I found the governor in a most service state of mind. His health is excellent, and he is not worrying about the carva. The great seal of the United States is of his office or the possibilities of his of peculiar interest from the fact that it nyans. He is just contented and screen, canvass. He is just contented and screme, was designed for a government by the and if somebody else is nominated at St.

Louis 1 do not think the governor will owe our coat-of-arms to Sir John Prestfeel that any calamity has befailed him. But Mr. Morton really expects to be nomimated. I found him confident in the be-Bef that the convention will make him its candidate. The governor is sure the wound money idea will prevail, and that he will be the man the party will select to stand on its gold standard platform. I shall place his name before the conand he will be enthusiastically supported by almost the solid delegation from this state. The governor has assurances of support from sound money men all through the West, and should the balleting be prolonged I believe be will be nominated."

Hon. Frederick D. Grant, baving sailed on Major McKinley, sees through different spectacles, as a perusal of the following statement from him will show;

"I am a personal friend of Major Mc-Kinley. Eighteen months ago 1 accompanied McKinley on a trip through the country, and at that time it was very easy to see the feeling which existed.

I feel sure that McKinley will be nomirelad on the first ballot. The feeling in I feel sure that McKinley was seen and out of self-reliance. At last this met was nated on the first ballot. The feeling in general approval in and out of congress, so sickness, nauses, headach and was adopted in June, 1782. So it is ness and malarial complaints and was adopted in June, 1782. Kinley's money policy, I will say that sively known, that we are indebted for our national arms to a titled aristocrat of the country with which we were then the present campaign as far as it has at war. gone. The tariff is the issue at the it was decided upon, and it is found on present time. But McKinley represents the Republican doctrine on the money Washington to arrange with the British question. He represents sound money." for prisoners of war. This seal continued is an opportunity for those who used in use for fifty-nine years. The present seal differs from it only in detail eish to institute comparisons. Possibly of execution. The design of the reverse has a pyramid, over which there is an the latitude where the utterances were eye in a trangle. For some reason this side of the seal was not cut then, nor has it been cut since, but has been al-lowed to go unnoticed officially until the made may have had something to do eye in a trangle. with what was said to the interviewer. Mr. Depew talked in New York, while present day. The second seal was cut in 1841, Daniel Webster then being secretary Commissioner Grant had his say in the sacred shades of Canton. Then Mr. Depew has a task in hand-that of bracup to 1885, when the seal now in use was ing up weak-kneed members of the New York delegation who may be faltering In their allegiance to the governor. The opinions afford another one of the many diversions incident to the ante-nomina tion campaign.

While a good many of the consuls under Mr. Cleveland have had the political sagacity to send in consular reports that are calculated to destroy the force of protection arguments. Consular General Max Judd, who resides at Vlenna, says the Chicago Times-Herald, deals with the recent great strike of the tailors which involved 60,000 operatives in the principal cities of the German empire. Mr. Judd's candor is so unusual that it is positively delightful. In touching upon the industrial aspects of the strike Mr. Judd inadvertently reveals the fact that the wages of German cloakmakers have been gradually reduced until an operative is compelled to pay rent and purchase clothing and food on $1.25 per week. We have "sweaters" and sweatshops in this country, but this is sweating close to the starvation point. Free traders in this country have answered with cheers the alarums of the protectionists with reference to the "pauper labor of Europe." But Mr. Judd has injudiciously and wantonly contributed valuable material to the protection literature that will be made available in the coming campaign by giving official testimony to the fact that there is such a thing as the "pauper labor of Europe." It is true that we have aweatshops of our own, but the most indifferent friend of American labor will not fail to see that there is a grave danger in such competition as German cloakmakers that are paid $1.25 per week.

Carroll D. Wright's figures, showing that the average wages in 1890 were $445 a year, or, approximately, $1.45 a day, suggests a comparison with the wages formerly paid. A study of Prof. Mc-Master's "History of the United States' shows that the working men of today fare much better than their fathers and grandfathers did. Ten representative trades paid in 1840 an average of $1.31 per day, and in 1800 the same ten-excepting plumbers, who are not reported-paid anty 10.5 cents a day. In 1754 unskilled labor comamnded Z cents a day, and that was twice as much as was paid for it ten years earlier. On the other hand, the necessaries of life have not increased in price proportionately to the advance advance in wages. While wages in 1800 & Co.

were nearly double what they were in 1800, the price of beef had increased from 8 to 14 cents a pound, pork was exactly at the same price--il cents a poundand other leading articles advanced a fraction, while wheat flour declined from $5 a barrel in 1800 to $7 in 1840, and $6 in 1800. In the same time sugar dropped from 16 cents a pound to 6, and tea from 25 cents a pound to 56, though coffee advanced from E cents a pound to 30. These figures seem to disprove the popular fallacy that the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer-unless, indeed, the American artisan is ranked with the former, a position which his brethren in other lands are very much inclined to accord him.

It is not yet decided whether the Democrats will construe McKmley financially as a weak-kneed straddle-bug, to be oppowed at Chicago by a gold platform and Cleveland, or as a stiff-backed gold-bug, controlled by the Shylocks of Wall street, to be naturally opposed by a 16 to 1 platform and Bland or Boles. Until the fight at Chicago has been determined, some hesitation in the Democratic place ing of McKinley on the financial question may readily be understood and furgiven. weekly in the state of Oregon, has, next | In the Republican ranks, as the St. Lauls convention draws closer and closer, the stronger grows the conviction that on the money issue McKinley is sound. After the nomination there will probably be no Republican doubts on the question.
