The British bark Edinburghshire, whi sailed from Tacoma January 28 with 21,-091 barrels of flour, valued at $61,162, arrived at Port Durban, South Africa. May 29, after a successful passage. The Edinburghahire was said to be hounded by a boodoe when in this port, as her capitain and mate had died on a previous trip, one of her satiurs was accidentally shot while here, one of the midshipmen disappeared, a seaman fell from the bridge and was hurt, and just as the boat was ready to suil the high seas her new master fell and broke several ribs and could not make the voyage, and the craft was delayed at Clallam bay three weeks. Some thought she would never make the passage to Africa-Tacoma News. The original American flag that was The original American flag that was first holsted in Sliks, Alask, at the time of the transfer of Russian America to the United States, October 18, 1967, and which was thought to be lost, is now in the care of Dr. Sheldon Jackson and is to be returned to Slika as a precious souvenir. Mrs. Caroline Hall, an aged widow lady of Seattle, has had this flag in boards for sheat the action of the flag. In keeping for about twenty-sight years. From the statement of Mrs. Hall, it seems that a United States officer, who house was probably of the kind so com-mon in those days-s pinin, one-storied structure. It will be interesting to know in what condition it was found and if it will be possible to restore it to its original shape. seems that a United States officer, who assisted at the transfer, while en route from Sitka, carried the flag with him, and crossing on horseback from Puget sound to the Columbia river, he made the sequalntance of Javan Hall, sheriff of Lewis county. Sheriff Hall was then navigating a steamer between the Cow-litz river and Portland. The United States officer was favorably impressed with the plack and push of the frontier sheriff, and seeing the steamer carried no flag he presented this one, brought Thus Ephesus will possess from this time on a more than usual interest for the Christian, and the probability is that a stately cathedral will yet be erected to mark the spot where the Virgin passed some of the later days of her life. It wherin, and seeing the steamer carried no flag he presented this one, brought from Sitka, to the sheriff as a token or esteem and in order that the Stars and Stripes might float over the little craft. Epheaus was a very ancient city on the west coast of Asia Minor. It was partly on a fertile plain near the mouth of the river Cayster and partly on some hills that rose gradually from it. It was famed among the ancients as the site of the Temple of Diana. The place was an important city and commanded an extensive and varied commerce. Tra-dition has it that it was originally in-habited by the mythical Amazons. It was eacording to tradition, being the eleventh century B. C., and from that event dates the history of Ephesus as a Greek possession. It figures in church history also because it was at a general council of the church held there in 431 that the heresy of Nestorius was con-

Just why the Virgin sought refuge in Ephesus there are several stories in the traditions that have come down to us from the dim past, but the one that seems to be most generally credited by writers is that it was due to persecutions that broke out in Jerusalem. After the final scenes in the tragedy of the Cruci-fixion hail been enacted, Mary, accom-panied by Mary Magdalene and St. John the Evangelist, to whose care the Re-deemer had committed his mother, re-paired to Jorusalem. There they re-mained until the persecutions forced them to seek safety elsewhere, and they chose Ephesus. The Virgin's flight into Ephesus, under the protection of John, has been made the theme of many a famous painting, in which the Virgin is generally plotured with a halo about her head and walking beside John, whose Important to Americans seeking Eng-lish Captial for new enterprises.
