CONFIDENCE AND CAPITAL RE-ASSURED.

The two great needs of the country are capital and confidence.

Neither of these needs can be supplied without supplying the other. They are mutually indispensible.

It is easy for demagogues to rail about foreign wealth coming to this country. Does any rational man know of any important work that has ever been accomplished without capital? Can labor itself live without the friendly aid of capital?

A young country like the United States, with an imperial area inviting vast investments, with natural resources assuring it leadership in the world of production, if these resources be brought forth through the energy of capital and labor combined, with a population increasing by decades at a pace beyond the capacity of domestic capital, must look to older countries for surplus money with which to provide for the manifold opportunities and emergencies of its industrial capacity.

Today its industrial life is suspended largely because of the withdrawal of foreign capital which has heretofore been in activity in the United States, a withdrawal due to a single cause—apprehension that the borrowers would not return in kind the money borrowed.

Already the sky is clearing. Until within the past week American securities were flat in foreign markets. London, drugged with idle money, made idle by lack of confidence, would neither buy an American security nor proffer a dollar for use in American employment. Today, thanks to the fact that the St. Louis convention has declared unflinchingly for the maintenance of the gold standard, American securities have risen abroad, and foreign gold is getting ready to return to the United States.

A well known citizen of Chicago, Charles L. Hutchinson, who has lately returned from a journey around the world, makes this timely observation:

"I wish I could send all the free silver advocates to India for a few months. If they found they had to receive their pay in silver rupees they would begin at once to hate the white metal. The rupee was once worth 60 cents, but free silver brought it down to 27 cents, where it now stands. The natives hope that we will adopt free coinage, as they can then ship us their rupees and raw silver to be coined."

It would be a great speculation to buy a hundred rupees for $27 and have them coined into sixty silver dollars, but the disappointment would come in when it was found that though the silver had been given a different form it would count for no more in exchange than before. In other words, free coinage here, instead of bringing India up to our standard, would merely bring us down to hers.

The Republican party is now pledged to the protection of American labor, not only against foreign competition, but also against the domestic evil of a debased and dishonest currency.

BE OF GOOD CHEER.

Thou hast put gladness in my heart.—Psalms, iv., 7.

If one would make his life profitable and happy he must be at great pains to fit himself to his circumstances or environment. A vast deal depends on the successful endeavor to do so, because in that way only can he maintain in ordinary times a calm and cheerful or, in the stress of sorrow, a resigned state of mind.

Not that he need be entirely satisfied with his environment, for it is also his duty to look forward to something better and to make such changes as ambition may prompt or an honest effort achieve. But to be forever discontented with what you have is to lessen, or possibly to lose, the power to make the best of it.

There is a kind of restlessness which is almost godlike, for it implies that the soul is capable of indefinite progress, and as the clothes of youth are outgrown in manhood, and we purchase others which fit our increased stature, so the soul must change its garments and put on larger thoughts and projects and hopes. There is another kind of discontent which is thoroughly depressing and is therefore to be avoided, because it draws the curtains down and forces you to sit in the dark.

When a man says, "This is well enough for today, but tomorrow I shall have more and better," he is in just the state of mind that makes the more and the better possible. But when one feels that his circumstances are not only a hardship, but also an injustice, he can neither get out of his present the best there is in it nor look forward to the future with anything like good cheer. The people who indulge in this latter train of thought are a very bad sort of Christians. They are at odds with themselves and with the Almighty. They spend so much time in wishing that things were not as they are that there is no time left in which to use their experience to the best advantage.

If we would recognize how much we have to be grateful for instead of finding fault because there are those who seem to be better off than we, we should find a deal of comfort to which we are now strangers. The difference to a man's soul, to his temper, to his general disposition, and, not least of all, to his bodily health, between the conviction that he can do great things with what he has and the conviction that he can do nothing because he has not what he thinks he ought to have, is practically the difference between a life embittered by an estrangement between himself and the very nature of things.

It is true that there are human beings who seem to be greatly favored by circumstances or by the accident of birth, and also true that some have very little capital of opportunity. Why this is so no student of nature or of theology has been able to tell us. It is one of the puzzles of creation, and we can but guess at a solution. Perhaps by and by, when we reach a higher vantage ground and look back on these fleeting years, we shall be as grateful as we are now critical. The matter is not explained either by Christianity or by any of the natural religions which have swayed mankind.

I leave the problem, therefore, to take care of itself and ask my soul this far more important question, How can I get out of what I have all the enjoyment and good cheer it is capable of affording me? If my neighbor rides while I walk, if he has plenty and I have little, aye, if he has robust health and I bear about with me a thorn in the flesh, I would rather pray for a contented spirit than waste my energy in envy of that neighbor. I do not care how humble ones's circumstances may be, there is certainly something beautiful and holy to be found within the narrow circle. The poorest man who ever lived, who had not where to lay His head, and who died on the cross, could find a world of beauty in a flower and a helpful truth in a flight of birds.

We think too much of our environment and not enough of our destiny. Wealth has very little to do with happiness. Money gives nothing to the heart, can purchase neither a moral principle nor an inspiration. Strip the millions from one man, take away the poverty from another, pull off everything until you get down to the naked soul, and you find that the only real difference is a difference of character.

I say this, therefore—give no attention to what others are able to do or to enjoy, but devote yourself to doing and enjoying all that is possible in your own small life. There never yet was a night without a star, and if you search for the star and do what you can to ignore the darkness you will find more happiness than you ever dreamed of. The habit of looking at the bright side is well worth cultivating. It is a kind of practical Christianity, which the world knows too little about. Religion is not worth much if it encourages your discontent; for, after all, if you and the Lord keep together you will always be in good company and always have something to make you glad and cheerful. What is around you will be brightened by what is above you, and today, cloudy though it may be, will be made radiant by the hopes that come from the great tomorrow.

GEORGE H. HEPWORTH.

TWO LIVES SAVED.

Mrs. Phœbe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her, and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thomas Eggers, 139 Florida street, San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottle at Chas. Rogers' Drug Store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00.

There is talk of women riding men's wheels altogether as they do in Paris, the gay bloomer costume being a necessary adjunct of the innovation.

OLD PEOPLE.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whisky or other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alternative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price 50 cents per bottle at Chas. Rogers' Drug Store.

Magnetism in women counts more than beauty. Age cannot destroy the first, though it does the second.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and All Skin Eruptions,, and positive cure for Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price, 25 cents per box. For sale by Chas. Rogers, Odd Fellows' building.

ROUND, ROSY FACES,

Laughing eyes, frames full of vigor, and elasticity are blessings attainable by the cadaverous, the haggard, and the dyspeptic who try that wisest of experiments—an experiment whose happy outcome is certified to by myriads—viz., a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters promptly begun and steadily pursued. There is no tonic comparable to it in efficacy, none more agreeable and speedily beneficial. The nervous and dyspeptic, suffering from malaria, rheumatism, constipation, biliousness and kidney troubles are rapidly aided by the Bitters, and it is one of the best means of counteracting the effects of excessive bodily or mental fatigue, and exposure in wet or inclement weather. Persons of sedentary habits find it a most useful vivifier and recuperator of exhausted energy. Use it in order to sleep well, eat heartily and digest thoroughly. Physicians everywhere speak in high terms of it.

Why is it when your thoughts come thick and fast you are always cursed with a hard pencil?

Young mothers dread the summer months on account of the great mortality among children caused by bowel troubles. Perfect safety may be assured those who keep on hand DeWitt's Colic & Cholera Cure, and administer it promptly. For cramps, bilious colic, dysentery and diarrhoea, it affords instant relief. Chas. Rogers.
