New Astoria...

located at the terminus of the Astoria and Columbia River Railroad, at the mouth of the Columbia River. It fronts on the deep water of the Columbia River Harbor, and being perfectly protected from wind and seas, affords the very best docks for ships on this bay; therefore, it is the exact spot for the seaport of the great Northwest. These facts were recognized by the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad Co. when

New Astoria Was Selected as the Starting Point for their Railroad and the Location for the Terminals.

New Astoria is platted upon a plane high enough for perfect drainage, and well protected by a high ridge behind it. Its streets and avenues are wide, and, in fact, it is laid out on modern plans. Extensive street improvements are now under way.

An office has been opened by the proprietors one door east of the Crosby hardware store. Call to be shown the merits of this property, and invest.

In raising the sunken rail barge at Warrenton the other day, the machinery brought with it the big snag which made the hole in the Flavel. Uncle Sam has been saved quite a few pennies by this free dredging operation.

Mr. J. W. Barbee, representing Charles Scribner's Sons, is in the city and will remain for about a week. Mr. Barbee is selling the Life of Eugene Field and works on Shakespeare. He reports business as being very good.

Mr. Charles D. Willis, Portland manager of the G. H. Hammond Company, Omaha, Neb., is in the city. Mr. Willis says that the prices of meats have an upward tendency. He finds that Astoria is the best business town in Oregon.

The road scraping machine contracted for in May by the county court for the Western Wheeler Scrapper Company, Aurora, Ill., has been ordered back to Portland, as it was found that the machine is not suitable for Clatsop county roads.

The fruit crops in Oregon this year have been very poor. There has been less than fifty per cent of an average cherry crop, while raspberries and strawberries have not only been short but of an inferior quality. The season has been one of the worst known in many years.

The steamers Columbia and Arcata both brought large shipments of tin cans from San Francisco for the Pacific sheet metal works. The home factory has been so crowded with orders which it could not fill, that it was found necessary to draw on the San Francisco house for a supply.

The construction train on the Seaside road has commenced dumping sand along the line between Warrenton and the bridge. As soon as the cut-off is finished to Flavel, a large force of men will be put on the bridge line ballasting the track, something badly needed for the past two years.

The Astoria Military Band held a meeting yesterday afternoon, after which a sociable took place. The boys are noted for their ability to have a good time and they upheld their reputation. A most enjoyable afternoon was passed and it was with much regret that the young gentlemen concluded the entertainment.

Mr. Frank Reed, representing the Leggett & Meyer Tobacco Co. of St. Louis, is in the city. Mr. Reed is agent for Sweet Moment cigarettes, for which he has made quite a reputation in Astoria. He reports business as being rather quiet, but the slightly depressed conditions do not affect the sale of his goods, owing to their standing.

The old Fisher warehouse was torn down yesterday by the contractors. A rope was passed around the building, and given a good strong yank, which brought the land mark down in a heap with a crash heard for blocks around. The last of Hume's old cannery, where he made his fortune in years gone by, is being destroyed to make way for the railroad.

During the past two or three days the beach along the city front from 6th street to the O. R. and N. dock has been thickly strewn with wreckage from the various wharves along the line of railroad work. Parties living along the beach have reaped a rich harvest gathering up the pieces of timber, many fine boards having been cast into the water by the workmen.

The air was so clear yesterday that the houses of Knappton were visible to the naked eye. The bay presented a beautiful sight, dotted everywhere with the white sails of the fishing smacks and here and there a steamer, launch or stately ship. The sunrise in the early morning, which flooded the Eastern sky with all the shades of red and purple, was one which only Oregon can produce.

A gentleman from Seaside says that if the business men of Seaside wish to interest a decent class of people in their resort, they should delay no longer in advancing every effort to hunt down and bring to justice the gang of sneak thieves and housebreakers that infest their locality. The outrages perpetrated against cottagers there this winter, is quite enough to discourage any further investment at that resort.

The steamer Electric is bringing down another raft of piles for the Flavel dock. It was reported last night that Superintendent Lester, who has been delayed in laying the branch line from Warrenton to Flavel, has everything in hand so that this piece of track can be finished, and everything be ready for running trains by next Sunday. The river steamers will then transfer Seaside passengers at Flavel instead of at the bridge as at present.

Wakefield & Jacobsen's pile drivers are drawing close together, one now working eastward through the Ross-Higgins warehouse, and the other working westward, has just commenced operations through the Hume dock. Contractor Goerig yesterday finished the last bent on his portion of the work, and the grading along Water street is finished up to Kinney's cannery.

Tuesday night Phil Taylor, a non-union fisherman working for Kinney, had his net nearly destroyed while it lay on the racks at the cannery. Some time during the night acids were thrown on the net, which destroyed a large part of the cork line and many of the meshes. Mr. Taylor estimates that it will cost $75 to replace the burned parts of his net. He says he knows the men who did the work, as they had threatened to get even with him, but of course not having been caught in the act he can prove nothing against them.

ence other eastern states to stand with them in their passive attitude. Many rumors clustered about young Bryan, of Nebraska, whose wonderful afternoon speech had carried him into a formidable position in the field and won for him partisans who seemed to be doing active work. It was 5:32 before the acting chairman, Mr. Richardson, rapped long and loud for order. It took five minutes to reach a semblance of order. Senator Jones, of Arkansas, gained recognition, and moved the convention proceed to the nomination of a candidate for president. It was carried with a roar. Chairman Richardson announced that the roll of states would be called for the presentation of candidates.

Alabama was the first to be called and the chairman announced that the state would be passed for the present Arkansas came next. "Arkansasians united to Senator Vest, of Missouri," shouted Senator Jones, and there was a wave of applause from the bland adherents. Senator Vest's first mention of the name of Bland brought out a short demonstration. The senator's closing words were the signal for another Bland demonstration, this time long, loud and enthusiastic. It was fourteen minutes before Chairman Richardson attempted to check the demonstration.

Governor Overmeyer, of Kansas, began to make the seconding speech under difficulties, for a small riot was stirring in front of the platform when he swept his right arm across the arena.

On the call of California, Chairman W. W. Foote announced that the eighteen votes of that state were instructed for Senator Stephen M. White, but under a positive request of Mr. White, his name would not be presented.

Ex-Governor Waller, of Connecticut, announced that the Connecticut delegation was in conference and desired to be passed for the present.

H. T. Lewis, of Georgia, nominated Bryan, which was followed by a demonstration. Clute, of North Carolina, and Williams, of Massachusetts, seconded Bryan, as did also Kernan, of Louisiana. When Indiana was reached Turpie nominated Gov. Matthews. At this point the confusion in the hall became so great that nothing could be heard. Only a threat to hold the proceedings behind closed doors restored order.

Boles was placed in nomination by Frederick White, of Iowa. When he closed a woman dressed in white led the demonstration by waving a banner and crying "Boles, Boles, Boles." In a minute the coliseum was aflame for fourteen minutes.

John Rhea, of Kentucky, nominated Blackburn. When Massachusetts was reached her chairman rose and said: "By a unanimous vote of the convention of Massachusetts, we were instructed to place in nomination Governor Russell, but by his direction and because of the platform we decline to make a nomination." Some took this remark to be a reply to the remark of George Fred Williams: "This is the sentiment of Massachusetts, not by proxy, but by its delegation."

McDermott, of New Jersey, brought down cheers and hisses on his head by his defiant declaration, "New Jersey does not desire to nominate any man on this platform."

Just before adjournment, General Bragg, of Wisconsin, created a sensation by jumping to a chair and shouting to the convention: "Wisconsin will fight under another banner and for another candidate." After all the nominations were in the convention adjourned without taking a ballot.

For solid comfort, for speed and for safety, no other line can compare with this great railway of the West.

Most so-called "salmon twines" are colored with acids. The acids rot the fibre and render the material useless. In the office of Elmore, Sanborn & Co. is an object lesson that ought to be examined by all fishermen. It is the whole of the material used in the manufacture of Marshall's twine—from start to finish. Go there and examine the color right through. You will see then why Marshall's is called the best in the world.
