GOLD HAS NOT APPRECIATED.

Editor Astorian:—According to all free silver orators, the gold bugs have cornered gold and made it so scarce that the gold dollar has appreciated in value to a two hundred cent dollar.

Gold cannot be cornered, any more than all the wheat in the world can be cornered. Gold is not scarce. It lies in bank vaults and the federal treasury vaults, as security for several times its volume in paper money.

Gold is not appreciated, and a very simple example will suffice to prove it. If a property owner has a house and lot in a city which has been renting for $200 a year, and he finds that he cannot rent it now for more than $150 a year, what does he naturally understand?

cheaper now than then. If this reflection be carried out to its logical conclusion it will show that instead of Bryan posing as the friend of labor he is really, when examined in his true colors, one of labor's worst enemies.

THE CAUSES OF IDLENESS.

Mr. Bryan, in his Chicago speech on Labor Day, referred to idleness as the cause of the increase of crime. Any legislation, then, actual or proposed, which causes idleness among men who but for its influence would be at work, must be held responsible for whatever increase of crime we behold.

However calamitous the effect of the Wilson bill in curtailing the field of employment for our workmen, it is quite certain that the threatened free coinage measure has done immensely more than any tariff changes to put a stop to industrial enterprise and to check the flow of capital into the pursuits that furnish employment for workmen.
