

Daily Astorian.

JOHN T. LIGHTER, Editor.

Telephone No. 6.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

DAILY. Sent by mail, per year, $6.00. Sent by mail, per month, $0.50. Delivered by carrier, per month, $0.45.

WEEKLY.

Sent by mail per year, $2 in advance, postage free, to subscribers.

All communications intended for publication should be directed to the editor. Business communications of all kinds and remittances must be addressed to The Astorian.

The Astorian guarantees to its subscribers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia river.

Advertising rates can be had on application to the business manager.

The Weekly Astorian, the second oldest weekly in the state of Oregon, has, next to the Portland Oregonian, the largest weekly circulation in the state.

Jno. F. Handley & Co., are our Portland agents, and copies of The Astorian can be had every morning at their stand, 324 Third street.

Farmers are more interested in the market for wheat than they are in the market for silver. And they see in the recent fluctuations in the price of wheat irrefutable proof that the wheat market is in no way dependent on the market for silver.

Every Democrat who bolts the Chicago ticket can point to words of the Chicago nominee not only justifying bolting, but commending it as the only course for the honest man who cannot subscribe to the main principles enunciated by the party.

One of the objects of the trades union is to protect the workman from unjust reductions in the price paid for his labor. A proposition to cut wages 50 per cent or even 25 per cent would rouse every union laborer to the defense of his wage schedule. How then can any workman view with complacency the proposition to cut his wages in half by the issue of a depreciated silver dollar and the increase in the price of everything he is compelled to buy?

No feature of the present campaign is more significant than the unprecedented interest shown in its issues by the boys who will vote by and by and who will exercise the rights of citizenship in after years with far more intelligence for the wholesome instruction which is specially provided for them by the best speakers. The coming generation may be relied upon to clear away any vestiges of the free silver heresy which the voters of the present may leave over from the election this fall.

Samuel J. Tilden, in his letter accepting the nomination for president in 1876, when the greenback cheap money agitation was causing the same doubts and bad times that free silver is now, said: "Uncertainty is the prolific parent of mischief in all business. Men do nothing, because they are unable to make any calculations on which they may safely rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

THE LOST LEADERS.

In response to a request from one of its readers for a list of the distinguished Democrats who have refused to support the Chicago ticket and platform, the Cleveland leader remarks that such a list, if reasonably full, would leave room for little or nothing else in any newspaper, but it presents a column of the names of men who have long been eminent as Democratic leaders and are now arrayed against the Popocratic candidate, many of them actively at work for his defeat.

It is interesting to note who some of these men are. The list includes all the members of the administration and the following senators: Palmer, of Illinois; Vilas, of Wisconsin; Gray, of Delaware; Smith, of New Jersey; Lindsay, of Kentucky; Caffery, of Louisiana; Brice, of Ohio. There are a large number of Democratic members of the house of representatives who have repudiated the Chicago ticket and platform, and among other well known Democrats who are in opposition to them are William C. Whitney, Edward J. Phelps, of Vermont; James C. Carter, the eminent lawyer; ex-Governor Campbell, of Ohio; General Black, of Illinois; Governor O'Farrell, of Virginia; Don Dickinson, of Michigan; ex-Governor Waller, of Connecticut; General Pragg, of Wisconsin; James O. Broadhead, of Missouri; Henry Watterson, and General Daniel E. Sickles. All these are men whose counsel the Democracy of the several states and of the nation has hitherto depended upon, and they now emphatically declare that the action of the Chicago convention was a betrayal of Democracy, and that its platform is not Democratic and that its nominee is not a Democrat. Surely these men are fully qualified to judge what is Democratic and what is not, and, having rendered their judgment, the assertions and claims of Mr. Bryan regarding the Democracy of the Chicago platform are of no consequence or value. Mr. Bryan has talked about the "regularity" of his nomination, and have appealed to Democrats to support him on this ground, but men who have been Democrats all their lives and never renounced allegiance to the party, as he has done on more than one occasion, refuse to be bound by the action of a convention which proclaimed the doctrines of Populism or to support a candidate for the presidency whose views on public questions are acceptable to Populists.

It is a formidable opposition to the Popocratic ticket which these former Democratic leaders present, and its influence is producing some tremendous and astonishing results. It will be to no purpose that Mr. Bryan insolently arraigns them as creatures of the money power. No such unwarranted slander can affect their personal character or militate against their great political influence. It will be resented by thousands of fair-minded Democrats everywhere who are familiar with their records and party service.

In the light of the present political situation in this country, the following extract from the great essay of Macaulay, written on the future of the American commonwealth, and published in the year 1856, is certainly one of the most astounding prophecies ever made in the history of the world:

"The day may come in the United States when a multitude of the people, oppressed by hard times, will be called upon to choose rulers. On one side will stand a statesman preaching patience, respect for vested rights, and strict observance of the public faith. On the other side will stand a demagogue, ranting about the tyranny of usurpers and capitalists. Let us hope that if such a season of adversity ever comes, the American nation will not act like people who would in a year of scarcity devour all the seed corn, and thus make the next year a year, not of scarcity, but of absolute famine."

IF YOU HAD A FRIEND

About to visit some section of country where malarial disease, either in the form of chills and fever or bilious remittant was particularly rife, what would be about the best advice you could give him. We will tell you—to carry along or procure on arriving, that potent medicinal safeguard, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, known throughout malarial plagued regions, here and in other countries, as the surest means of dispelling the miasmatic scourge, and robbing it of its fell destructive influence. Not only does it fortify the system by increasing its stamina, but overcomes irregularity of digestion, the liver and the bowels, and counteracts the unfavorable effects of over-exertion, bodily and mental, exposure in rough weather, or occupation too sedentary or laborious, loss of appetite and excessive nervousness. The functions of all alimentary, bilious secretion and sleep have in it a most powerful and reliable auxiliary.

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

"Bear in mind," says Washington in his farewell address, "that toward the payment of debt there must be revenue." "Boah!" says Mr. Bryan, "Inflate the currency 100 per cent and we reduce the burden one-half. Then let us inflate again and wipe it out altogether. Revenue be hanged! Give us safety rely. They undertake nothing, because they fear a loss in everything they would attempt. They hope and wait. The merchant dares not buy for the future consumption of his customer. The manufacturer dares not make fabrics which may not refund his outlay. He shuts his factory and discharges his workmen. Capitalists cannot lend and security they consider unsafe and their funds lie almost without interest. Men of enterprise who have credit or securities to pledge will not borrow. The people need to know that the government is moving in the direction of ultimate safety and prosperity and that it is doing so through prudent, safe and conservative methods, which will be sure to inflict no new sacrifice on the business of the country. Then the inspiration of new life and well-founded confidence will hasten the restoring process of nature and prosperity will begin to return."

Advertisement for Blackwell's Durham featuring an illustration of a man and a woman, with text: 'I WANT BLACKWELL'S DURHAM AND NO OTHER. SEE? You will find one coupon inside each two ounce bag, and two coupons inside each four ounce bag of Blackwell's Durham. Buy a bag of this celebrated tobacco and read the coupon—which gives a list of valuable presents and how to get them.'

Billy Bryan, the father of misquoting, is at it again. He says in a late speech, "I believe with Jefferson that error is harmless when reason is left free to combat it." Jefferson's words are, "Error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Tom Watson says a speech in Nebraska the other day without mentioning Sewall's name. What a full language it must have been—Cleveland Leader.

Chronic constipation is a painful, disagreeable and life-shortening difficulty. It deranges the system, causes sick headache, bad breath, and poisons the blood. It can be readily overcome by De Witt's Little Early Risers. These little pills are great regulators. Charles Rogers.

Mr. Bryan asks the workman to elect him to an office (salary $50,000 a year) in order that he may carry out a policy that would cut down the salaries of workmen 5 per cent.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

They are so little you hardly know you are taking them. They cause no griping, yet they act quickly and most thoroughly. Such are the famous little pills known as De Witt's Little Early Risers. Small in size, great in results. Charles Rogers.

There never was a more unpatriotic or more contemptible act than the open effort of Bryan to array the people into classes and against each other. It is the work of the frebrand.—Baltimore American.

Many lives of usefulness have been cut short by neglect to break up an ordinary cold, pneumonia, bronchitis, and even consumption can be averted by the prompt use of One Minute Cough Cure. Charles Rogers.

Now Don Carlos in Spain threatens to take the throne and sail in and lick the United States. By this time next year Mark McKinley and the standing army may have their hands full.—Wichita Eagle.

Tetter, eczema, and all similar skin troubles are cured by the use of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve. It soothes at once, and restores the tissues to their natural condition, and never fails to cure piles. Charles Rogers.

Is it Bryan and Sewall, or Bryan and Watson? It is immaterial. In either case it is Bryan and Populism—Bryan and repudiation—Bryan and riot—Bryan and ruin.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Many political speakers, clergymen, singers, and others who use the voice excessively, rely upon upon One Minute Cough Cure to prevent hoarseness and laryngitis. Its value as a preventive is only equalled by its power to afford instantaneous relief. Charles Rogers.

Grimsaw—What is your politics, sir? Grimsaw—I am a firm believer in the free and unlimited coinage of silver, sir. Grimsaw—Huh! That isn't politics. It's a disease.—Puck.

Speed and safety are the watchwords of the age. One Minute Cough Cure acts speedily, safely, and never fails. Asthma, bronchitis, coughs and colds are cured by it. Charles Rogers.

Chatman Jones's estimate of Bryan's naivities is based on the free silver theory, of course, and hence needs to be discounted at least 49 per cent.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Pure blood means good health. De Witt's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, cures Eruptions, Eczema, Scrofula, and all diseases arising from impure blood. Charles Rogers.

Bryan didn't get in a single quotation mark in the wrong place Sunday, owing to the fact that they succeeded in persuading him not to say anything.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Rose pillows are being made by all women who own rose bushes, or who can beg, borrow or steal the blossoms from a neighbor. The rose petals are practically the same as for a rose jar.

Mrs. L. R. Patton, Rockford, Ill., writes: "From personal experience I can recommend De Witt's Sarsaparilla, a cure for impure blood and general debility." Charles Rogers.

AN ENIGMATICAL BILL OF FARE. For a dinner, served on the Dining cars of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, will be sent to any address on receipt of a two-cent postage stamp. Apply to Geo. H. Heaton, General Passenger Agent, Old Colony Building, Chicago, Illinois.

There is no woman so plain but has some one who admires and loves her.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children. The healthful preparation of Dr. J. C. Parke & Sons.

OUTWARD BOUND OREGON GRAIN FLEET—1895-6.

Table with columns: SHIP, FLAG, NAME, TONNAGE, PORT, ARRIVED, CENTALS, VALUE, SHIPPERS, BATH. Lists various ships and their cargo details.

VESSELS ON THE WAY TO OREGON.

Table with columns: PORT PAID FROM AND NAME, CAPTAIN, TONNAGE, COMPANY, DATE. Lists shipping companies and vessel details.

Are You Going East? Be sure and see that your ticket reads via THE NORTH-WESTERN LINE.

Advertisement for Pennyroyal Pills, featuring an illustration of a woman and text: 'Pennyroyal Pills. Original and Only Genuine. Cures all kinds of female ailments.'

Advertisement for Columbia Iron Works, featuring text: 'COLUMBIA IRON WORKS FOUNDRYMEN Blacksmiths, Machinists and Boiler Makers.'

Advertisement for Bremner & Holmes, featuring text: 'BREMNER & HOLMES Blacksmiths. Special attention paid to steamboat repairing, first-class horse-shoeing, etc.'

Advertisement for Seaside Sawmill, featuring text: 'SEASIDE SAWMILL. A complete stock of lumber on hand in the rough or dressed. Flooring, rustic ceiling, and kinds of finish; mouldings and shingles; also brackets work done to order.'

Advertisement for O.R. & N. featuring text: 'O. R. & N. GIVES CHOICE OF -2- TRANSCONTINENTAL ROUTES. Via Spokane and St. Paul Via Ogden, Denver and Omaha or St. Paul.'

Advertisement for Pullman and Tourist Sleepers, featuring text: 'Pullman and Tourist Sleepers Free Reclining Chair Cars Astoria to San Francisco.'

Advertisement for White Collar Line, featuring text: 'WHITE COLLAR LINE. Telephone and Bailey Gatzert Astoria and Portland.'

Advertisement for Beaver Hill and Gilman Coal, featuring text: 'Beaver Hill and Gilman Coal. For Family or Steam Purposes. CLEAN. Reasonable in Price.'

Advertisement for Elmore, Sanborn & Co., featuring text: 'ELMORE, SANBORN & CO. Agents, Astoria.'