RAYROLLS AND PEOPLE NEEDED

To Make Astoria the Leading Commercial Center in Northwest.

MARSHALL N. RICE IS HERE

Member of the Celebrated Rice Family, of Massachusetts—Has Only Good Words for Astoria.

Mr. Marshall N. Rice, general manager of the Gloucester Net and Twine Company, Boston, arrived in Astoria yesterday. This is Mr. Rice's first visit to the Pacific coast, and he is here to look after the interests of his company on the Columbia river, where they have sold large quantities of gill net twine in the past, and expect to do a large business in the future.

Mr. Rice said to an Astorian representative: "This is my first visit to Astoria, and I must say that notwithstanding the stormy weather today I have seen enough of your city to confirm the favorable reports which I have heard of it in the East. Astoria certainly has a great future before it and with the completion of your railroad it will not take long to establish other industries which will bring people. It is people that you want out here more than anything else. You have the resources, the wheat country, the grand Columbia river, the magnificent harbor at its mouth, and with people you will soon be the leading commercial center, receiving and dispatching ships to and from all parts of the world. Open factories here and give people something to do and the mills will readily supply them with money."

"Oregon and California, by their noble action at the polls last Tuesday, have invited Eastern capital to invest here. Honest people want an honest dollar and will pay their honest bills. Capital is very timid about investing amongst a people who are inclined to repudiation. Since the election I have been advised from the East there is plenty of money and that rates have fallen to a remarkable degree on both call and time loans. The state of Washington, in my opinion, has made a great mistake in the stand she has taken for Populism and cheap money. She owes millions of dollars upon the palatial business houses in her principal cities to eastern capitalists. If I am a correct judge of the situation it will be hard work for Washington for some time to come, to even raise the interest on the bonds."

"I am simply looking over the situation in a general way, as none of our firm have ever before had an opportunity of visiting the Columbia. I can only say that from what I have seen that your natural resources are simply wonderful, but you cannot expect to develop them in a minute, and must have patience. First of all you want people and payrolls. These will come in the very near future, and the other things will not be slow in following."

A DESIRABLE WAX SPRING.

New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"I believe that Utah will one day produce more mineral wealth than any other state in the entire country," said a gentleman who had at one time made a tour of the country. "When I was in the then territory I made a prospecting trip in to the Utah reservation, located in the northeastern corner of the state. During the trip myself and partner came upon one of the most remarkable curiosities in the West, a spring of mineral wax. Enough had bubbled out upon the surface of the ground to have satisfied the demand for ten years. It was then worth four dollars a pound, and was used for the insulation of electric wires, yet there was enough in sight at half that price to have made us two rich for life, if we could have carried it to market. Two things stood in the way—the mandate of the government and the difficulty of transporting the stuff overland several hundred miles into Provo. One of these days the reservation will be turned into the public domain, and the wealth it contains will flow into somebody's pocket. As it is now, not a soul is permitted to trouble a single one of its resources. Well, we passed on and left the spring with a sigh that might have been heard at Provo."

QUAINT COURT CUSTOMS.

From the Ashton Reporter.

Though not imperious, Her Majesty is a rigorous upholder of old customs, especially in connection with court matters. One quaint custom, dating from the time of the second George, which is still observed, is that of solemnly announcing for the queen's benefit at the dinner table the name of the cook who prepared the dishes. Before each course is partaken of a clerk in waiting of the kitchen makes the formal announcement. Another ancient custom which the queen keeps up is the choosing of the password to the Tower of London. Only three persons in the whole of the United Kingdom are supposed to know it, and these, besides, of course, the sovereign, the lord mayor of London and the constable of the tower. The password is chosen quarterly, and after being signed by the queen is forwarded to the lord mayor or the constable of the tower. It is a quaint old custom reminiscent of the stirring times of former reigns.

McCLURE'S MAGAZINE FOR NOVEMBER.

The superior truth and delicacy of the old daguerreotype are made manifest in the November McClure's, where fine reproductions of daguerreotype portraits of Calhoun, Webster, Edward Everett, Dr. Holmes, Jenny Lind, and others, from rare collections still surviving, illustrate an interesting paper by Mrs. D. T. Davis, on the development of daguerreotyping in America. Soon after the discovery of the process, American daguerreotypers became the finest in the world; and there is a strong movement now toward a revival of the art. The paper is, therefore, timely as well as entertaining.

NOT A MILLION TRAMPS.

From the Minneapolis Times.

In recent years we have heard a great deal about the millions of tramps the millions out of work, and the starving millions or pauperized millions. Heaven knows the number is large enough without exaggerating it. Let the men who talk this use a little common sense, and they will cut down their figures 75 per cent. We have never had any where near a million tramps in this country; while as for criminal outlaws—men who live by crime—outside of the penitentiaries, it is doubtful if there are 5,000 in the whole country.

HER IDEA OF HAPPINESS.

From the Washington Times.

"Mamma," said little Ethel the other day, "I ain't going to marry."

"You have time enough to think of that," said her mother, indulgently.

"No, I ain't going to marry," persisted Ethel.

"Are you going to be an old maid?" her mother asked.

"No, I'm going to be a widow, like Aunt Mary, 'cause she always dresses in black and looks so pretty and happy."

CONGRATULATIONS FOR THE VICTOR

Thousands Upon Thousands Do Homage to the President-elect.

MRS. MCKINLEY IS INDISPOSED

The Exciting Events of the Past Few Months Have Broken Down the Lady's Health.

Canton, November 7.—Much as President-elect McKinley has desired to get his wife from the excitement about his Canton home, it was decided this evening that it was best for Mrs. McKinley not to attempt the trip before Wednesday or Thursday of next week, instead of Monday, as expected. The scenes of congratulations and jollifications have continued without cessation and today thousands of people have marched through the streets and gathered about hours before tonight's jollification began. At the breakfast table Major McKinley was signalled by farmers, who have traveled miles to come to Canton, and who tapped at the window and beckoned him to their greetings. He responded to their manifestations of good will by securing a jardiniere of chrysanthemums and going to the side door made them happy by giving them such floral beauties as are seldom seen anywhere. All day long the joyous crowds marched the streets and filled the sidewalks. They came in special trains and special cars, on regular trains and by carriages, horseback, bicycle and afoot.

Chief Marshal Harry Fessenden started the final grand campaign parade tonight before 8 o'clock and Canton had a pyrotechnical blaze of glory such as she had never enjoyed before in the eventful days which have passed. Republican committees, Republican and Democratic sound money committees, citizens and reception escort committees, and the citizens of Canton and Stark county, combined with the people from Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, made one last grand parade and demonstration. They marched and cheered over the lines of march that have been trod by nearly a million people and are now historic in the annals of American politics. Echoes of the roar of cannon and the din of cheering reverberated over the city and for miles into the country. Major McKinley and a score of friends reviewed the parade as it passed his house.

Owing to Mrs. McKinley's health, it is expected that this will end the jollification parade, and the McKinley yell, which for months has reigned supreme, will now take a rest in the hope of gaining greater strength for the days of the inaugural ceremonies.

THE RESULT OF SOUND MONEY

Now That National Honor Is Assured, Interest Rapidly Declines.

HEALTHY FINANCIAL OUTLOOK

Interest on Time and Call Loans Falls and Gold Is at Par—Saturday in the Wheat Market.

New York, November 7.—The volume of business today was upon an extraordinary scale for a half holiday, 350,000 shares, a record that has not been equalled on any Saturday since the Venezuelan episode. Strength was displayed aggressively all along the line, with a broadening tendency of the market; the ease with which offers were absorbed exciting interest and comment. The pivotal factor in the general business and financial outlook and a complete abatement of the monetary stringency. On Monday call money had been scarce at 97 per cent and time funds were practically unobtainable for short periods, while there was no market whatever for mercantile paper. Late in the week call money fell to 3 1/2 per cent and time was in abundant supply as low as 5 per cent for all periods, while prime mercantile paper was readily discounted at six and seven percent. An interesting development was the complete disappearance of the premium on gold and the anxiety of the people who had previously withdrawn coin to exchange it for currency.

WHEAT MARKETS.

Chicago, November 7.—The feeling in wheat was somewhat easier on general liquidating and taking of profits, and after this selling pressure ceased, the market again turned up, selling to 79 1/2 for December and 84 1/2 for May, with final figures showing little change.

The action of the market was due partially to Liverpool advice, the advance there not coming to expectations, considering the bulge here yesterday.

Argentine shipments were larger at 125,000 bushels against 48,000 bushels for the same week last year. On the other hand, the northwestern movement was smaller than last week. November closed at 77, and December at 78 1/2.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool, November 7.—Wheat—spot firm; demand, poor; No. 2 red spring, 6s 10d; No. 1 California, 7s 6d.

Futures closed firm. November, and December, 6s 10 1/2; January, February and March, 6s 10 1/2; April, nominal.

London, November 7.—Hops—Pacific coast, 43 5/8.

San Francisco, November 7.—Hops—firm; '96 crop, 23 1/2; '96 crop, 26 1/2.

Portland, November 7.—Wheat—Walla Walla, 76 1/2; Valley, 79 1/2.

KENTUCKY'S VOTE.

Official Count Will Be Necessary to Determine the Result.

Louisville, November 7.—No material changes in the political situation in Kentucky are evident. The Democratic headquarters give no detailed figures to substantiate their claims of carrying the state for Bryan, while the Republican managers bolster their assertions with tables embodying the majority of each candidate in all of the several counties and districts. A call at the Democratic headquarters tonight found a sign reading:

"These headquarters closed."

The following is from Republican headquarters:

"Kentucky has gone Republican for the first time in its history in a presidential year. Complete official returns from 111 counties and reliable unofficial returns from the other 8 counties give McKinley 456 plurality."

WHAT THE GERMANS THINK.

(Copyrighted, '96, by Associated Press.)

Berlin, November 7.—For many years past no American election excited such universal attention in Germany as the one just over. During the week preceding the day of election papers of every shade of opinion published daily articles discussing its issues and candidates, the universal trend being that, so far as German interests are concerned, it was a choice between two evils, the McKinley evil being the smaller one.
