channels through which fashionable charity is expected to outpour itself. Don't pay ten and twelve dollars for air-tight stoves when you can get them for half the money at 431 Bond street. Mr. C. C. Brower, who has been teaching school at Olney, is now in the city and will probably spend the winter here.

W. Fisher, W. J. Watson, Portland; Hugh McCormack, Wise; George Williams, Seaside, registered at the Parker yesterday. Mr. C. W. Gillett, Mr. Walter C. Smith and Mr. George Smith arrived from Portland yesterday morning on the Thompson. Manager Johnson, of the Western Union, was shaking in his boots yesterday, not from chills and fever, but too many cigars.

There was a small coal mine at Alex Gilbert's yesterday, and while it blackened some people's hands and faces, no damage was done. Yesterday two car loads of telegraph poles were hauled from Flavel to Seaside, where work on the new Western Union line has commenced.

LOOK OUT for fraudulent telegraphic news in the Astoria afternoon papers. None of these papers receives one line of outside news by telegraph. Mr. Frank Stokes yesterday received a very valuable photograph of Astoria in flames in 1883. The picture is on exhibition at Paxton's gallery.

Florist Johnson and four men are busily engaged in setting out flowers and shrubs at the Hotel Flavel. It took two boats to carry the plants from the nursery. Don't forget that the Low Price Store has the only perfect fitting wrappers, the handsome line of jackets and capes, and is selling them at wholesale prices, 431 Bond street.

The sharp frosts of the past few days made the foliage along the Columbia river brilliant. Reds, yellows and browns lighten the entire landscape between Astoria and Portland. The Guild of the Chapel of Holy Innocents will hold their annual sale of fancy articles in the old school house in Upper Astoria on Saturday, November 21st, afternoon and evening.

Artist Swope has completed the drop curtain for the new Columbia Opera House. The curtain is a most creditable production in every respect, and should be seen to be appreciated. It has seemed a great pity during the past few days that so much magnificent timber has floated away to the ocean, a complete loss. Thousands of dollars have been wasted by the big flood.

Some of the weather-wise Astorians predict a long, cold winter, with a probable freezing over of the Columbia. The weather bureau should see that these predictions come to naught. Mr. A. D. Charlton, assistant general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific at Portland, says that business is rapidly improving all along the line. Straws show which way the wind is blowing.

Mr. Joseph Gregory, assistant engineer of the Columbia, while at work at the ash chute, had one of his fingers so badly smashed yesterday as to necessitate his laying off for a number of days. The big hawser was yesterday stretched to the Glenmorag on North Beach, the barge which carried it from Astoria having been successfully towed and anchored off the shore and near the wreck.

For the first time in three days the Northern Pacific overland train left Portland Wednesday night for the Sound and East. The recent gales and floods caused many washouts on various portions of the line. During the flood the first part of the week a large store and sawmill floated down the Lewis river and down the Columbia. It is reported that there was no insurance on the buildings and that the entire stock of goods was a total loss.

Mrs. J. H. Johannsen, Seaside; J. Wilson, Amos Patterson, M. Kelly, Skamokawa; Oscar Jacobson, Puget Island; J. Waterhouse, Clatsop City; Fred Hansen, John Day's, and Andrew Burk, Fort Stevens, were in the city yesterday. A number of new buildings have been planned for erection in the early spring among them being the new hotel at Warrenton, the new savings bank building, which will be constructed of stone and brick; Mr. Fulton's brick block, and a new hotel in Astoria.

It was found necessary yesterday to stop the further discharge of the government's cement from the ship G. W. Wolf as the last 900 barrels were stowed away under Portland freight. The Wolf will go to Portland at once and discharge the remainder of her cargo. Good morning, Mrs. Jones; Where are you going so early? I am going to the "Pat Market" to buy my Thanksgiving turkey. "Why do you go there, Mrs. Jones? Don't you know Pat is Irish?" "That's all right, but it is the only place in town I can buy a good, corn-fed turkey, brought all the way from the East especially for Thanksgiving."

J. Francis Lee, general agent of the passenger department of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, with headquarters in Chicago, is making a tour of the Pacific coast for his health. Mr. Lee is one of the brightest passenger men in Chicago, and is now spending a few days in Portland prior to returning to the East from the Sound country. The artist's proof sheets of the folder soon to be issued by the Flavel Land and Improvement Company are very handsome. The Columbia river is depicted showing vessels entering and departing at its mouth, the first boat-traffic and the ship Chetumford, which brought the first load of steel rails to Astoria, are all arranged in most artistic design.

Henry Gage, Chicago; W. Frankel, A. Loventhal, W. C. Coulson, San Francisco; H. Gerson, J. W. Cook, C. E. Fay, A. M. Alexander, E. A. Seeley, Portland; W. P. Stillson, St. Paul; J. E. Silhby, Hobsonville; Mrs. Chabot and daughter, Oakland, Cal.; G. J. Jackson, C. E. Overbaugh, F. M. Warren, and Emil Schacht, Portland, were guests at the Occident yesterday. The local branch of the Denver Fidelity Savings Association has elected the following officers: President, John Hahn; vice-president, Col. John Adair; secretary and agent, C. R. Higgins; treasurer, Astoria National Bank; attorney and abstractor, C. R. Thomson; directors, D. K. Warren, P. C. Warren, C. E. Bayles, J. T. Ross, and H. C. Thompson. There are fifty-five charter members, who hold, about 700 shares of stock.

Last evening the boys on Fifteenth street improved the moonlight night by coasting down the hill. They had previously, with much pains, carried water and flooded about two blocks from Irving avenue north. It was great fun for the boys, but hard work for the pedestrians trying to climb the hill. It is really dangerous sport and should not be indulged in at least on the sidewalk, which on the hillside are slippery enough at this time of the year without pouring water over them.

Mr. F. B. Morgan, the city soliciting passenger agent of the O. R. and N. Co. in Portland, said to an Astorian representative the other day that since McKinley's election railroad travel has been increasing. Business in all departments is picking up, and from all appearances the railroads are on the eve of more prosperous times. Mr. Morgan is one of the shrewdest men in his line of business and is always alert for the interests of his company. A short time since he was promoted from a position in President McNeill's office to his present place. It is safe to say that when the "grays" land in Portland Mr. Morgan will get his eyes on them.

A gentleman living upon one of the principal downtown streets, says that in the block in which his house is situated, there are twenty dogs, the most of them being unlicensed. They are the terror of mothers with little children. The authorities, he says, never lose an opportunity to take up some poor widow's cow which may be wandering on vacant lots over the hills and making her pay for taking the animal out of the pound, but never a dog is arrested, or are the owners made to pay the established license. The gentleman is of the opinion that this state of affairs is an oversight on the part of the officials and that the city intended to keep up its revenue on dog licenses as well as any other license.

The Grau Opera Company will make its appearance in Astoria Thursday and Friday and Friday, November 26 and 27, and a matinee will be given Saturday afternoon, the 28th. The operas to be produced are "Paul Jones," "Tar and Tartar," and "The Beggar Student." Among the members of the company are Alice Johnson, Gertrude Lodge, Alice Carlisle, Fannie DeCastro, Robert L'Enbar, Sylvian Langlans, Robert Lett, Gilbert Clayton and Stanley Phelps. The company is now playing at the Marquam Grand, Portland, and it is said that the advance sale of seats is one of the largest in the history of that opera house. The sale of seats will open Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at the New York Novelty Store.

Mr. S. H. Maddock, manager of Logan's sawmill at Seaside, passed through the city last evening on his way to Portland to look after the interests of his mill. To an Astorian reporter Mr. Maddock said that since the new machinery had been placed in the mill everything was running much better than they had anticipated. "I received a telegram today from Mr. Perry Trullinger stating that he had just purchased the machinery for our new box factory which is now being built. We have the finest spruce ever seen in this state, in fact, prettier spruce was never seen anywhere. During the recent freshet we got all our logs down the stream to the mill and never lost a log in the operation. Today the surveyors were down at Seaside looking over the ground for the new switch which is to be built from the depot to the mill, a distance of some 600 feet. I hope that their investigation was satisfactory."

HOW WILL RESPONSIBILITY AFFECT WOMEN? (ELIZA SPYER TURNER.) Mr. Lecky, in his valuable work on "Democracy and Liberty," finds one source of danger in the increasing influence of women in politics. He thinks their tendency, in trying to reform the world, would be to over-legislation. They have thrown themselves, for instance, into the question of temperance in such a way as to "considerably alter its prospects." And the same is true of vivisection, which they are disposed not only to guard, but to abolish, thus dooming thousands of human beings to an untold amount of preventable suffering. "There have been," he says, "ages in which insensibility to suffering was the prevailing vice of public opinion; in our own, perhaps, more so; to be feared from wild gusts of unreasoning, uncalculating, hysterical emotion."

I think that common fairness compels us to acknowledge the at least partial truth of these opinions. Because women are by nature more compassionate; because, in their domestic lives, they see so distinctly the immediate results of intemperance, of immorality, of cruelty, they are more likely to be tempted (until they learn its futility) to over-legislation and over-coercion, to sweep the whole world clean of sin and error by one grand whisk of the broom of the law. When it comes to the "wild gusts of emotion," however, I doubt if we could much exaggerate the methods of our brothers. Their little ways at nominating conventions, for instance, where the correct thing is for the delegates to climb on chairs and tables, to screech, to howl, to roar, to break into sobs, to embrace each other, etc., by way of expressing their political opinions—and not about any question which could be called ethical, either. Our doings could scarcely be called more hysterical than those in the bedlam of any city house, and we should find it hard to be more uncalculating than was our congress a short time ago on receiving the message of the president concerning Venezuela, when without pausing to consider consequences, without stopping to compare the unimportance of the issue with the awful results of a possible war, they set to work on their resolutions of approval, which were to give the cue to a nation, with the glee of a parcel of children starting a fire.

The fact is, we would do better to say that unreasonableness is the tendency of the human race, and then we can afford to admit that the feminine half, from the difference of the conditions in which it has been reared, and from that absence of responsibility which always makes people more reckless in the expression of opinions, have been thus far even more disposed than men to speak without consideration. Make every woman responsible, let her realize that when she says a man ought to be hung she is helping to hang him, and that when she advocates a war she is helping to send the men to the field, and after the first wantonness of power, especially the supposed power to legislate sin and suffering out of the world, her sense of accountability will steady her. And then it will surely not be amiss that she will bring the humanitarian view of a political question more frequently to the front.

Mr. Billings took up his cup of what the landlady called coffee, tasted it, sniffed it, and set it down. "Have you anything to say against the coffee, Mr. Billings?" said the landlady. "No, ma'am," answered Billings. "I never speak ill of the absent."—New York Tribune.
