Astoria, Or., October 15, 1896.

The New Year's edition of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, which covers a large ground and thoroughly reviews the history of the Sound country and northwest coast, is one of the most creditable newspaper productions ever issued in the West. It is bright, new, well-illustrated and ably edited. Those who have not yet read it should not fail to examine this fine example of journalistic art, literature and science.

Wholesale and retail merchants bought only those goods for which there was an immediate demand, and reduced their stocks as low as possible, to avoid loss from the new and lower scale of prices which the lower tariff would make inevitable.

Hence the business stagnation was induced by the reduction of the tariff on competing goods.

The extra session of congress will be called to enact a tariff law on opposite lines. It is to give adequate protection to the domestic manufacture of goods with which imported goods compete.

There will be nothing in this procedure to cause any importer to stop importing, or manufacturer to cease manufacturing, or merchant to let his stocks run down. The enactment of a protective law will improve the conditions of domestic industry and commerce, not cripple them.

This is not a mere theory; it is proved by facts. Look back to 1880, when the McKinley bill was being debated in Congress. Business was brisk, the mills and factories were all working. The revision of the tariff on protective lines did not injure any business interest. It is the threat of a removal of adequate protection which is injurious.

The Herald's argument is fallacious and insincere. The extra session will bring none of the evils which it predicts. It will promote prosperity, not hinder it.

Absolutely pure, perfectly harmless, and invariably reliable are the qualities of One Minute Cough Cure. It never fails in colds, croup and lung troubles. Children like it because it is pleasant to take and it helps them. Chas. Rogers.

President Cleveland will go thundering down the ages as the only democratic president that ever congratulated the country on a republican victory.—Astorian Transcript.

too much confidence in his good sense and loyalty to the Republican party to believe it to be anything else but calumny of the basest order. Somebody is evidently bucking Bourne in his preposterous and obviously insincere campaign for speaker, and the sooner Senator Mitchell does the charge that it is his money that Bourne is spending and helps to smoke out the scheme that Bourne thinks he is working, the better it will unquestionably be for not only the senator's political reputation, but also his chances for succeeding himself in the United States senate.

A FREE TRADE BOOGIE.

The New York Herald, the leading organ of the rich importers of that city, has always been a zealous advocate of free trade. Its face is set against protection in any form. Hence it bitterly opposes an extra session of congress next spring to pass a Republican protective tariff measure. It says:

"An extra session of congress would be close to a positive affliction. As the merchants, who are looking forward to a period of prosperity, what think of it? It may do very well for the politicians, who have their own little axes to grind, and who don't care who turns the grindstone; but so far as the rest of the people are concerned it would be disastrous. It would stand business and no daze our merchants that new enterprises and ventures would come to a standstill."

The Herald is disengaged. What caused the stagnation in commerce and industry after the election of Cleveland in 1888, whereby it became certain that Democratic tariff tinkering would come to pass?

Every importer stopped importing, and devoted his energies to disposing of the stock of foreign goods he had on hand. He wished to wait until the new tariff went into operation, so that he could import at a lower rate of duty.

Every manufacturer whose products would be affected by the importation of similar foreign goods at lower duties, stopped manufacturing goods for a market six months ahead. To avoid loss he had to wait until the new tariff law was enacted, so that he could ascertain how far his interests were affected.

Wholesale and retail merchants bought only those goods for which there was an immediate demand, and reduced their stocks as low as possible, to avoid loss from the new and lower scale of prices which the lower tariff would make inevitable.

Hence the business stagnation was induced by the reduction of the tariff on competing goods.

There will be nothing in this procedure to cause any importer to stop importing, or manufacturer to cease manufacturing, or merchant to let his stocks run down. The enactment of a protective law will improve the conditions of domestic industry and commerce, not cripple them.

FREE TO EVERY MAN

THE METHODS OF A GREAT TREATMENT FOR WEAKNESS OF MEN.

Which Cured Him after Everything Else Failed.

Painful diseases are bad enough, but when a man is slowly wasting away with nervous weakness, the mental forebodings are ten times worse than the most severe pain. There is no let up to the mental suffering day or night. Sleep is almost impossible, and under such a strain men are scarcely responsible for what they do. For years the writer toiled and toiled on the troubled sea of sexual weakness until it was a question whether he had not better take a dose of poison and thus end all his trouble. But providential inspiration came to his aid in the shape of a combination of medicines that not only completely restored the general health, but enlarged his weak, emaciated parts to natural size and vigor, and he now dares to send his name and address to the public for the method of this wonderful treatment free. Now when I say free I mean absolutely without cost, because I want every weakened man to get the benefit of my experience.

I am not a philanthropist, nor do I pose as an enthusiast, but there are thousands of men suffering the mental tortures of weakened manhood who would be cured at once could they but get such a remedy as the one that cured me. Do not try to study out how I can afford to pay the few postage stamps necessary to mail the information, but send for it, and learn that there are a few things on earth that although they cost nothing to get them are worth a fortune to some men and mean a lifetime of happiness to most of us. Write to Thomas Slater, Box 38, Kalamazoo, Mich., and the information will be mailed in a plain, sealed envelope.

Georgia is delighted because at last it has an anti-trust law on the statute books. Georgia should temper its joy with the reflection that other states have anti-trust laws and that no self-respecting trust pays any attention to them.—Chicago Tribune.

A woman's headaches may come from several causes. She may have a headache arising from nervousness, of from digestive disturbances. Nine cases in ten her headaches come from disorders peculiar to her sex. It may show itself in the symptoms which are characteristic of a dozen disorders. Thousands of times, women have been treated for the wrong disorders. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was compounded for the sole purpose of relieving womanhood of these ills and pains.

Thousands of women have testified that after taking treatment from several physicians without benefit, the "Favorite Prescription" cured them completely and quickly. It has been used for over thirty years, and has an unbroken record of success.

The woman who hesitates is invited to send 21 one-cent stamp to cover only the cost of mailing a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, which contains plain, clear information about all the organs of the human body and their functions.

At least there is a little comfort for the silver cause. The car has refused to sanction the introduction of the gold cure in his domain.—Washington Times.

AN OLD SETTLER.

When the rheumatism first pre-empted certain traits of your anatomy it may be ousted easily, but when it becomes an old settler it is pretty hard to budge. Remember this when you experience the first twinges of this obstinate and agonizing disease, and attack it with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will then "make tracks" and possibly leave you unloosed and in peaceful possession of your own comfort in the future. Perils always attend rheumatism, if it become chronic, on account of its tendency to attack the heart. Usually it is complicated with kidney trouble. Certain it is that the kidneys, when aroused by the bitters, will eliminate impurities which give rise to rheumatism and dropsey. In inclement or wet conditions of the weather, the bitters, taken in advance, will often avert rheumatic trouble. Use this genial family medicine for dyspepsia, biliousness, headache and constipation.

We can gain neither glory nor riches by fighting Spain. What we can gain is the reputation of a true and valiant nation, and that's a reputation that is neither safe nor honorable.—Chicago Tribune.
