The plans outlined by a prominent water front, is deserving of the most kenness eareful study by every property owner and business man in Astoria. Of all the enterprises, next to the railroad there is none which will so quickly bring good times to the city and advance its future growth as the commencement of this great internal improvement, which of itself will employ hundreds of men whose earnings have to be re-built every six months That Astoria's time has come to take ready established and those to be established is evident to every thinking person. The fact that Alaske and British Columbia packers have been able noses, in markets where we have heretofore held the upper hand, simply because they advertised their wares judiclously is conclusive evidence that fire must be met by fire and competition must be overcome with competition. Astoria expects during the next years immediately following to build a large and prosperous city. She has the advantage of an unexcelled situation and is surrounded by unparalleled resources. These resources must be so developed that people and money will come here and help carry on and further the great work. Tin-pall brigades must be established and homes for the workers provided. It is contrary to reason and policy that all this should be accomplished in a night, and the town grow up like a mushroom. No solid advancement can be made on such principles. To get people here there must be something for them to do. The building and opening of the railroad provides the way for the starting of other industries. The handling here and loading of the great wheat fleet is the first step which makes all other industries possible. ### Steel Rails Rock Ballast

No western rallroad vas ever more substantially constructed than the Burlington's New Short Line via Billings Mont, to the East and South. The country through which it runs presents few engineering difficulties. To build a perfectly straight line, to ballast it rightly, to lay it with the strongest and heavlest steel in use anywhere west of the Missouri river was, comparatively, a easy matter.

Travelers who wish to reach Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis or any other Southern or Southeastern city quickest and most comfortably, will ask for tickets "via Billings and the Burlington Route."
