THE SOUTH AND THE TARIFF.

The promise which some of the democratic papers are giving to an extract in Senator McEnery's speech dealing with the tariff is significant. "I am in favor of raising the revenues of the government from a tax on imports rather than by direct taxation," said the Louisiana statesman. "The plan of Hamilton, approved by Washington and Jefferson, was to impose a duty for the protection of our industries, taking it off gradually as they could meet foreign competition." He went on to say that in pursuance of this idea Samuel J. Randall always managed to get a clause in the democratic platform to protect Pennsylvania's iron industry. McEnery added that he himself, if elected—for the speech was made just before he was chosen to the senate—would "pursue the same policy to secure the protection of the sugar interests of Louisiana."

This revival of the spirit of Randallism has an ominous significance for the democracy. On the tariff question Randall occupied republican ground, and the tariff, during a large part of his career, was the dominant issue in politics. If the democracy abandons the tariff-for-revenue position the line of separation between it and the republican party will be dim unless the silver question is kept at the front. As a matter of partisan policy the democrats will be wiser if they stick to the ground on the tariff on which Cleveland in his message of 1887 placed them, for that gave them an issue which everybody could understand, and collected under their banner every one who believed that tariffs for protection are injurious or inequitable. The republicans, of course, would be glad to see the democracy come over to the republican side on the tariff, but the fact that it is the republican side would prevent the democrats from securing any new votes by the change of base.

Yet this very change of base is under way in the democratic party at the present moment, especially in the South. The McEnery speech is only one of the many evidences which are at hand that the recent solidity of the democracy on the protection issue is broken. Cleveland placed the party back on the ground on which Jackson and Van Buren put it and on which Polk held it, but from which it subsequently strayed after the tariff was dwarfed by the larger issues of slavery, war and state reconstruction. Again the democracy begins to waver. Some of the party clings to its old ground, but to a large and constantly increasing element of it the gospel according to Robert J. Walker and Grover Cleveland is rank heresy and folly. McEnery wants protection for the "sugar interests of Louisiana," and other democrats will want it for the iron, the wool, and the various other sorts of interests of their own sides. This break in the democratic line is more pronounced in that region. It is more pronounced in the South than it is elsewhere, and it means that the republican gains in that region in the near future will be far greater than they have been this far since 1864.

There is such a squabble in lying about Cuba that there are a few simple propositions of fact that, if held in mind, might aid in the accuracy of the general information. Cuba is as large as the state of New York, twenty-nine times as large as Long Island. Only one-fifteenth of the area of Cuba has ever been cultivated. The ancient and splendid tropical forests have not been materially injured. The soil is the richest in the world, the climate lovely the year around, a perpetual soft summer. There never was a frost on the island except on the mountain tops. The earth is rich in potatoes, and the native woods full of fruits and flowers. The Atlantic ocean, the Caribbean sea and the gulf of Mexico on the Cuban shores, and all the rivers are full of beautiful fish, and the air is populous with birds of gorgeous plumage and beautiful insects. Cuba lies wholly within the tropics, and is divided into six provinces, and it is in the Eastern part of the island, where the rebels are masters outside a few fortified towns, the people are comparatively comfortable—Standard "Union."

A counterfeit of a peculiar character is at present widely current in the West. This piece appears to be made of coin silver, or, at any rate, silver which differs but slightly from that used in the mints. This counterfeit is one of the most dangerous that has yet made its appearance, and, naturally enough, because it is not made, as so many others have been, from base coin. It has been in existence now for two years or more, and in spite of the efforts made by the secret service officials, its source has not been located. The coin appears to be a counterfeit, in fact, only in the sense that it is not minted by the government. Its existence is rendered possible by the difference between the face and the bullion value of the coin. The incident will supply to future economic historians an illustration of what happens when the coming value of a metal differs so widely from its commercial value, as is the case in the United States.

A very eminent scientist is responsible for the following statement: "If the habit of expectorating in public could be stopped I am sure that in time tuberculosis would die out altogether." This seems a very sweeping statement, but it is not an ill-considered one. There is no question whatever that the spread of tuberculosis is due largely to the habit of spitting. A great many people have tuberculosis without being aware of the fact. They do not know of the danger that comes from ejecting their sputum when it becomes dry and pulverized, and then flies about in minute particles, to be inhaled by healthy persons, who are then inoculated with the disease. This random public expectoration is a crime. The difficulty of such an undertaking as putting a stop to expectoration in public is, or ought to be, apparent to even the most obtuse person.

THE STOMACH CANNOT BE FRIGHTED.

With greater trash than a violent drastic purgative. True, such a medicine relieves constipation for the time, but at the expense of great injury to the intestinal canal, which it both inflames and weakens, thus unfitting it for the performance of its proper functions. Widely different is the action of Chamberlain's Stomach Balm, a tonic aperient which produces effects prompt, indeed, but never violent and convulsing. The purity of its botanical ingredients, its unobjectionable flavor, its general influence upon the mind, and the thoroughness of its remedial action in cases of constipation, liver complaint, and dyspepsia, combine to render it the most desirable family specific. It increases both physical vigor and substance, tranquillizes and invigorates the nervous system, and gives an unwonted relish for the food. A wineglass three times daily is about the average dose.

The railway companies of Great Britain carried 35,000,000 passengers in 1905, of whom 286 were killed. During the same year, in the city of London alone, 286 persons were killed by falling out of windows.

Economy is something that everybody tries to practice, and yet just a little oversight will sometimes rob the most frugal and thrifty family of a year's savings. You want to do as J. P. Hinchman, of Monticello, Ga., did. He writes: "For six years I have kept Simmons' Liver Regulator in my house, and used it in my family, and have had no need for a doctor. I have five as healthy children as you can find."

A man cannot be convicted, according to Chinese law, unless he confesses himself guilty, and confessions are often extracted from prisoners by the aid of the rack or by flogging with bamboo.

The secret of a speedy cure in sickness lies in selecting the proper remedy, and this is difficult to do unless one is sure what the ailment is. But one thing is sure—had the liver been actively at work sickness could not have come. It is, then, always safe to take Simmons' Liver Regulator, which keeps the liver well regulated and all poison expelled from the system.

One Loaf AND Another

One loaf of bread may be light, sweet and digestible. You may use the same materials for another and have it heavy, sour and soggy. The knack is in putting the ingredients together just right. A substitute for Scott's Emulsion may have the same ingredients and yet not be a perfect substitute, for no one knows how to put the parts together as we do. The secret of "how" is our business—twenty-five years of experience has taught us the best way.

In consequence of the famine, numerous bands of brigands have formed in India. Some of them even use artillery. In Lahore a jeweler was robbed of valuables to the amount of $28,000.

Mr. Isaac Horner, proprietor of the Burton House, Burton, W. V., and one of the most widely known men in the state, was cured of rheumatism after three years of suffering. He says: "I have not sufficient command of language to convey any idea of what I suffered, my physicians told me that nothing could be done for me and my friends were fully convinced that nothing but death would relieve me of my suffering. In June, 1894, Mr. Evans, then salesman for the Wheeling Drug Co., recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm. At this time my foot and limb were swollen to more than double their normal size and it seemed to me my leg would burst, but soon after I began using the Pain Balm the swelling began to decrease, the pain to leave, and now I consider that I am entirely cured. The Royal Irish Constabulary is the only police force in the kingdom which is practically on a military footing, the members of which are drilled and disciplined the same as soldiers.

THE OBJECTION NOT GOOD.

There are people who have objections to advertising matter in the columns of a newspaper. The ground of objection is that they do not want to read advertisements. Now this objection is not good, for oftentimes these advertisements convey valuable information. For instance, have you read the traveling public learn of the excellent dining car service of the Wisconsin Central lines between St. Paul and Chicago, or the general comfort of traveling over this popular line. For particulars call on the nearest ticket agent or address J. C. Poed, G. P. A., Milwaukee, Wis., or Geo. S. Batty, General Agent, 246 Stark street, Portland, Or.

There is still time to get to London for the Queen's Jubilee. If time were money many of us would be on the waves who are now forced to remain on this side of the water.

A. H. Patter, with E. C. Atkins & Co., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I have never before given a testimonial in my life. But I will say that for three years I have never been without Chamberlain's Colic and Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house, and my wife would as soon think of being without flour as a bottle of this Remedy in the summer season. We have used it with all three of our children and it has never failed to cure—not simply stop pain, but cure absolutely. It is all right, and anyone who tries it will find it so." Miss Lillian Gordon Fynn, of Boston, has just passed the examination of the Royal College of Music in London and received the degree of associate. She is only 16 years old.

"There's no use in talking," says W. H. Broadwell, druggist, La Cygne, Kas. "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy does the work. After taking medicines of my own preparation and those of others, I took a dose of Chamberlain's and it helped me; a second dose cured me. Candidly and conscientiously I can recommend it as the best thing on the market. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by Estes-Conn Drug Co."

A Canadian note says that a sailor fell fifty feet from the rigging to the deck of the steamship Bannockburn at Port Dalhousie and jumped up unharmed.
