BRYANISM DISPROVED.

Toledo Blade.

A year ago, Mr. William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, made a stumping tour of the United States in an unsuccessful chase after the presidency. One of his pet arguments was that "the price of wheat and the price of silver go hand in hand." By a coincidence, the price of a bushel of wheat at that time, and the value of the bullion in the sliver dollar, were By invgorating a feeble constitution, repwithin two cents of each other. That is to say, this is the logic of what he has said. It was in Madison Square Garden that Bryan came to the front as a Sliver Trust man-for there he preached the doctribe that we of the United States could double the market value of all the silver in the world. He was in a state of exaltation at the time. After his nomination no miracle concerning himself would have astonished him, and it was hardly possible for him to be surprised by any development of his personal potentiality. He must have thought that his theory of a free fliver law, equalizing silver with gold at the endurance.
