GRACE IN DRESS.

The color scheme in a sailor is exceptionally fine. The straw is a dark-green leaves wreathed about the crown. At the left side are two loops of resada ribbon and a purple velvet pout.

A Dresden chins effect is produced with silk embrolderies upon a band of white silk that is finished at each edge with tabs of cream tace. Sprays of linen batiste flowers embroidered with gold may be used separately or as a continuous trimming, any of the new materials favoring their application,

The most fashlonable silke are soft and flexible and usually light in weight. Clan plaids, checks and stripes are brought out in poplins, which figure among the most charming types of autumn goods.

Liberty poplin is rather thinner and more lustrous than the Irish poplin. One specimen in heliotrope bears satin crescents in a lighter hue outlined with ir-
