PROMPTLY VERIFIED.

The publication in Sunday's Oregonian of an interview with a Portland railroad man, commenting on the significance of the coming sale of the Union Pacific railway, is but a deserved recognition of that reciprocity of good feeling and community of interest which should exist between Astoria and Portland, and which has been repeatedly urged by the Astorian as the only solution of the Sound competition problem.

That these big schemes and plans are about to be consummated, including in their scope Astoria and her new railroad, does not mean that all at once town lots will double in value, mills grow like mushrooms in a night, elevators and dry docks build themselves. The railroads and big guns must have some help, and it must come from Portland and Astoria, joined together by the bands of common interest, and working for the good of Oregon as against all competitors, each with its special sphere and each as vitally interested as the other in the outcome, which means the growth or retardation of the state.

He may breathe in the bacilli of consumption with impunity. If there is a weak spot where the germs may find an entrance to the tissues, then the trouble begins. Disease germs propagate with lightning-like rapidity. Once in the blood, the only way to get rid of them is to kill them.
