A proposition is on foot to erect a large export saw mill at Tongue Point, on a site to be chosen on the Tongue Point syndicate land adjoining the railroad right of way. In the Ward trial yesterday, after it became evident that at least today, and possibly tomorrow would be consumed in closing the testimony and hearing the arguments in the case, Judge McBride announced that it did not seem practicable to prepare for the trial of W. G. Howell at this term. No date in the coming February term has yet been set for the trial but the court stated that he would set it for a certain date before adjournment.

Yesterday afternoon an engineer who was carrying in his hand a heavy casting, signalled the driver of a Commercial street car to stop. The driver proceeded to slow down but did not stop, and the engineer who had one foot on the step could not swing himself on, as the dead weight of the casting overbalanced him. After a succession of efforts he finally got on the car, but in doing so accidentally hit the motorman with the casting a terrific blow on the ribs, knocking him to the other side of the platform. After an exchange of grins they passed on.

"Patronize home industry" is the watchword now at the rooms of the Astoria Progressive Commercial Association. The exhibits shown open to the public last night formed an exposition of the most proportions and is destined to become a permanent fair. For weeks the energetic members of this association have worked day and night like beavers to get together an exhibit of the products of this county and the lower Columbia river, as an object lesson of what there is here for a foundation for future growth and prosperity. The results have far exceeded the highest expectations of the most enthusiastic. The public can judge whether the one-half of the natural products and manufactures shown were known to exist in the county.

From this beginning it is hoped to inculcate a spirit of development of home industries and the broadening of ideas on public works, public requirements for the harbor, interior development of roads, farming, lumbering and mining; the building of traffic for the railroad, Oriental steamers, sailing ships of the world, and manufactures. No one can witness the riches of the county without a desire to see those riches distributed to the four corners of the earth. That the association will continue its good work will not be doubted; that it will have to undivided support of the community is a foregone conclusion. Many grave questions are to be decided, and many measures adopted for needed improvements before the city of Astoria can attain the commercial importance that rightly is hers.

The railroad alone will not secure all that is necessary to make a live city. Hard intelligent work-work, morning, noon and night is the only agency that will enable Astoria to halt the banner "Eureka" on its highest hill.

The rooms of the association have been handsomely decorated, and will be open daily to the public.

Among the more prominent exhibits are: George & Barker, salmon. Elmore, Sanborn & Co., salmon. J. O. Hanthorn, salmon. Pacific Sheet-Metal Works, tin cans. Gus Grinnell, Nehalem hops. P. Kearney, coopersage. Isaac Bergman, Gray's river fruits and vegetables. G. B. Dow, Prospect Park rye. Antoon Klant, Gray's river walnuts. R. M. Woodson, Nehalem hops and flux. W. H. Lewis, Nehalem wheat and flour. L. N. Lott, Cathlamet flax. P. Svensen, fruits and vegetables. John McMullen, fruits and vegetables. Thos. Christensen, fruits and vegetables. Christensen & Co., lard. P. J. McGowan, salmon.

SURPRISE TO THE COMMUNITY

What Clatsop Can't Produce Is Not Worth Producing—Praises for the Hard-Worked Committees.

The crush of people that filled the rooms of the Astoria Progressive Commercial Association at the opening of its exposition of home products last night, was convincing evidence that public sentiment is with the new movement.

Men, women and children good naturedly crowded through the aisles, and for the first time had an ocular demonstration of what their own county is capable of producing. Enthusiastic praise for the work of the association and admiration for Clatsop county was loudly expressed on all sides. Crowds stood in the street up to a late hour awaiting their turn for admission, while the Columbia Marine band discoursed lively music in harmony with the feelings of those present. President Albert Dunbar and his corps of able assistants had good cause last night to feel satisfied with the work so far accomplished, and the hearty appreciation of the public cannot fail to spur them on to larger and greater deeds.

THE NEWS IN SKAGWAY.

Letter From Harold Stokes Received Yesterday.

Mr. Frank Stokes yesterday received a letter from his brother Harold, dated Skagway, October 21, which says in part: "I have made the trip over both the White and Chilkoot passes. There is only three-fourths of a mile on the Dyea trail of heavy climbing, and there is now a derrick there to pull you up at so much a pull. The Skagway trail is only fit for practical use in the winter when it is frozen solid."

"I met Harry O'Neil and Coel Boyce at Lake Bennett. Both were hearty and well. We all had dinner together. "My return over the Dyea trail was a hard trip. We struck a blinding snow storm and progress was difficult in the extreme."

"The weather in Skagway is about the same as it is in Astoria. We have not yet had to make a fire in the stove. Skagway is a very reasonable place, the marshal having had occasion, so far, to make an arrest."

"The derogatory reports concerning Skagway have been started by other towns here which are jealous of us. There are now two 200 houses and 500 people, the most of whom will winter here. The Skagway trail is 10 miles long but is a gradual slope, while the Dyea trail is 25 miles long, but steeper."

"The Canadian government has tried to send provisions into the interior by way of Wrangell and the Sitkoon river route, and also by way of Skagway. The former route was found altogether impracticable, and the Skagway route only feasible in the winter. Packers over the trails are now getting 65 cents per pound, on account of the short days and the increased dangers of the journey."
