

FRASER RIVER SALMON PACK

Tremendous Increase in the Past Ten Years is Recorded.

WHERE DOES IT COME FROM?

Propagator Cannot Account for it All—Columbia River Propagation Must Be Increased.

In reply to an inquiry as to the pack of salmon on the Fraser River for the present year, Mr. S. S. Gordon has received a letter from a gentleman in Vancouver, B. C., who is indirectly interested in the result and in a position to know, which is as follows:

The official returns for the Fraser River pack have not been published as yet, but as close as I have been able to obtain the figures it is 300,000 cases. Of this amount only about 200,000 cases are fall fish; the balance is all sockeye grade. I think if anything, the actual figures will exceed the amount stated. I have been unable to get the Sound pack as complete, but think it is about 40,000 cases, of which 30,000 is sockeye and balance fall fish of various grades.

Ten years ago the Fraser River canners were satisfied with a pack of 25,000 cases in a "big year," which is one in every four years. Now they can move that double these figures in a stream not one-tenth the size of the Columbia. It would be interesting to know how much of this increase is due to propagation and how much to closer fishing, but they have been propagating for years, and the report from Mr. McNab, inspector of fisheries, published yesterday, shows they are turning out some 6,000,000 fry a year, though as they need 11 fish to the case this supply would not seem enough for this enormous increase in the pack.

It is plain that to properly compete in the world's market the Columbia River must be stocked with young fish in quantities that have not before been considered necessary. The Columbia can just as well hatch 6,000,000 as the 2,000,000 that are expected to be turned out this year, and if it comes to a battle for supremacy in the ocean feeding grounds, the Royal Chinook ought to have the best of it.

The steel heads are only good for shipping fresh in ice, and those who are specially interested in handling frozen fish should, in the opinion of dealers, look after the propagation of this species, particularly as the initial hatchery will cost only $300.

COUNTY COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Action Taken Yesterday Upon Matters of Public Interest.

Kelly, a citation was ordered for the parties to appear Thursday, January 5, 1898, at 10 o'clock, and show cause why the order made compromising and settling tax purchases for 1892 and 1893 should not be set aside or modified.

Stafford stating that owing to the bad weather the voters were unable to vote the premises of John Volmer to determine the amount of damages and asking further time, ordered that the time for filing the report of the voters be set for the next regular term.

In answer to a communication from J. Q. A. Bowby, asking if the county surveyor is a citizen of the United States. The surveyor appeared and informed the court that he was naturalized at Omaha, Neb., September 15th or 16th, 1897, and has sent for a copy of the order.

In the matter of the defalcation of B. J. Ward, former treasurer. Ordered that the matter of the county intervening in the suit of A. Schilling et al. vs. W. G. Howell et al. be referred to the county judge with authority to order necessary action to be taken if in his judgment advisable.

RANCHERS BURNED OUT.

F. A. Henry and Brother Experience a Severe Loss by Fire.

Early this week the cabins of F. A. Henry on the Upper Nasel, back of Knappaon, was burned to the ground.

It seems that Mr. Henry, accompanied by his brother Frank, had donned their working apparel and started down the river a few hundred yards from the cabin intending to remove a log jam. They remained away about two hours. On returning they found their home in ruins, not a stick, article of furniture, clothing, or grub being left. Everything had been wiped out clean by the fire. In the house was stored away about 500 pounds of eatables besides their clothing. In the pockets of their coats was about $10 in greenbacks, besides a small amount of coin.

Mr. John Kiernan, of Portland, owner of the Glenmore, was over at North beach yesterday, and reports that his ship is in good shape. The recent storm only put her 50 feet further on the beach, and broke two spars. When favorable weather comes Mr. Kiernan is confident they will float her all right. In the mean time all necessary preparations will be made.

Tom Linville yesterday received a letter from H. L. Stokes, dated Skagway, November 25, in which that gentleman says that the snow is 5 inches deep at Skagway camp. There was a light snow at Dyea and Skagway three weeks ago, which melted as fast as it fell. Dyea river is frozen over so that teams can cross on the ice. The weather is below zero. Workmen are still pushing the Dyea tramway.

Both gentlemen's watches were consumed. The loss entailed amounts to about $600. Last evening the gentlemen arrived in the city and this morning will purchase a new outfit. They will go back this afternoon and with the help of friendly neighbors soon have a new and more substantial structure where the old house stood.
