An effort was made to open the safe with an ax, but in this the men were unsuccessful. It is thought the robbers were committed by a number of persons, several of whom have "hit" Clatskanie of late.

The citizenship qualification had considerable to do with the delay when Mr. McGuire first opened the office here, but nearly all the foreign fishermen in the city have taken out their papers. Mr. McGuire will be at the office today and will return home tonight.

It is believed that coal will be used as fuel in a short time on all the engines of the A. & C. road. The first experiment will be made on engine No. 11, now at Portland. The engine will be brought out in a few days and will be run on the ballast train down from Quincy. If the experiment proves satisfactory the fire boxes on all the engines on the road will be changed. This will occasion no inconvenience, as the fireboxes are constructed to burn either wood or coal, with slight alterations. Superintendent McGuire says wood as fuel has proved unsatisfactory. There was always trouble in getting a sufficient supply ahead, and the result was the wood was always damp and unfit to burn.

That old standby, "East Lynn," was the bill presented by the Noble Company at Fisher's last evening. As an emotional play it stands alone. If you can't find it a few years at a performance of "East Lynn," either the performance is very bad or you have a very bad heart. It is needless to say tears were in evidence last evening. The leading role, Lady Isabel, was played by Miss Vina Noble in a masterly manner. Miss Carrie Wiseman, as Miss Carney, an old maid with opinions of her own, made a hit. Others worthy of mention were George Noble, W. R. Birch and Barton Booth. The company will present "The Gold King" at the matinee today, and will end their engagement here tonight in "The Tacky Ranch."

The experience of Deputy Fish Commissioner Cathcart, who was first upon by fishermen near Rainier Wednesday, has aroused the ire of Commissioner McGuire, who has offered a reward of $50 for information that will lead to their arrest and conviction. A strong effort will be made to bring the guilty parties to the bar of justice, and they will be severely dealt with if caught. Mr. Cathcart was unarmed when the shooting occurred. It was never dreamed by either Mr. Cathcart or Mr. McGuire that any of the fishermen would resort to the use of firearms. In past years, while the patrol boats have carried arms on occasional occasions, as a rule the deputy has gone unarmed. Hereafter, however, Mr. Cathcart will go out on the river "well loaded" and the first fishermen who fires at the Junior will, if he escapes death, go away with the impression that he is a member of a battleship. Mr. Cathcart is light-complexioned and pretty good natured, but Mr. McGuire has instructed him to resent any further effort on the part of illegal fishers to bring about his extermination. The net of the fishermen who did the shooting was set and brought to Astoria. It is now 200 yds. in length, and seven or eight feet deep. Mr. Cathcart is a deputy fish commissioner, Mr. Cathcart also acted another night, 25 fathoms long, and two sets. All this gear will be sold at public auction and the funds used to further the work of artificial propagation.
