The society of the M. E. church at Seaside is reported to be developing rapidly into a large congregation. A number of liberal subscriptions have been made toward a church building; the plans for which have already been drawn, and its construction will be commenced very shortly. The Epworth League branch of the church has had a healthy growth, and the young ladies and gentlemen composing it will give an entertainment, to attend which a general invitation is extended, on Friday evening of this week. It is a source of much congratulation at Seaside that the recent work commenced there by the M. E. and other churches has been so abundantly crowned with success.

The I. R. & N. Company's new steamer Nahcotta is waiting at Portland, the Telegram says, for some new engines which have been built in New York, and will be installed in her as soon they arrive. The engines will be of the Wells-balance-valve description, and will take the place of compound engines put in at first, which were found to be inadequate. The boiler is already provided with a condenser, and when the new engines are installed it is expected that the boat will make sufficient time to answer all requirements.

C. J. Smith, of this county, who recently pleaded guilty in the federal court at Portland to the offense of mailing an obscene letter, was yesterday given his liberty under a suspension of sentence by Judge Hollinger. Smith's excuse for mailing the letter was his ignorance that it was any crime. His actions have been such since he was taken to Portland as to raise a doubt as to his sanity, and there was some talk of a legal inquiry into his mental condition. On his appearance for sentence yesterday, however, he was permitted to go without any further detention.

A serious and probably fatal accident occurred at the Clatsop mill yesterday which will probably result in the death of a young lad named Otto Oen. Oen was engaged in branding the lumber being shipped on the British ship Wallace town and was accompanying a heavy truck load of lumber to the ship at the yard. The wheel of the truck broke through a plank and the lumber tumbled off, falling on Oen and breaking his back. He was removed to his home as quickly as possible and a physician summoned. An examination showed that the spine was fractured, but the displacement is not great and there is a chance for his recovery. Oen, who is only 11 years of age, was later removed to St. Mary's hospital, where he now lies.

For the purpose of making the school year in the state more uniform, Professor J. H. Ackerman, state superintendent of public instruction, is preparing a course of study that must be adopted in all the schools of the state. Power to make such regulations is conferred upon the state board of education by the legislature, and upon Professor Ackerman, as head of the schools, devolves this work. While the laws have always prescribed the textbooks that shall be used in the schools there has been nothing done in the past to require uniformity in the courses of study. Only city schools have had the benefit of systematic work in this direction, and this by reason of the fact that special powers have been conferred upon city boards of education. Professor Ackerman hopes to complete his system in time for the opening of the fall term of school.

The hearing of the habeas corpus proceedings for the release of the sailors of the British ship Howard D. Troop was resumed before County Judge Gray at 12 yesterday afternoon at the court house. Counsel for both sides were not prepared to proceed with the case and asked for a further adjournment. Judge Gray accordingly adjourned court until 3 o'clock. At 3 o'clock the hearing was again postponed until 10 o'clock this morning. An effort is being made to settle the dispute between Captain Corning and the sailors' boarding house people and it was said yesterday that an agreement would be reached today. What the nature of the settlement is, or whether the men will be put on board without further controversy cannot be learned. It is believed, though, that a peaceful settlement will be made. Captain Corning ordered his stores on board yesterday, which would indicate that an agreement of some sort is in sight.

Another letter has been received by the Astorian from Mr. Brandbury, of the bicycle path around Smith's Point, and before the summer is far advanced it will be one of the best paths to be found anywhere. A portion of it is planned to a distance well around the point, after which brick dust is used on the remaining portion. The brick dust makes an excellent surface, being the best of any that could be made after its use for a short time.

The mustering out of the engineer corps recently arrived at San Francisco from Honolulu was commenced yesterday. Richard Carruthers, of this city, is a member of the corps. As soon as he is free he will visit friends in the Bay City for a few days, after which he will return to Astoria. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carruthers, his parents, were anxious that he should arrive yesterday, the day being his birthday, but the work of mustering out was delayed longer than was anticipated when the corps arrived from Honolulu.

The society of the M. E. church at Seaside is reported to be developing rapidly into a large congregation. A number of liberal subscriptions have been made with parties several months at a time with food of the kind described under the slightest sign of dysentery or complaint of any sort on the part of any of the men. It would be a great misfortune, in Mr. Brandbury's opinion, in addition to the unhappy fate of Hook, man and his associates, the important lesson taught by the true cause of their death were lost sight of in the abuse of technical medical men.

AN OPEN LETTER.

To Mr. A. B. Hammond, President of the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad Co., Astoria, Ore.

Sir: I am a resident of Vernonia and a farmer and civil engineer by profession. Twenty years ago I traversed the survey of the Oregon Central Railroad through its magnificent land grant from Corvallis to Astoria, and have ever since held the opinion that no new portion of our coast possessed more valuable resources than are found lying as yet undeveloped between Astoria and Forest Grove. As you perhaps know, the largest part of that territory lies in the large basin or valley drained by the Nehalem river and its tributaries.

This basin is cut off from the Columbia river on the east, and from the ocean on the west, by mountain ranges only traversed by steep and rough wagon roads. Through the coast range on the west the Nehalem river passes through a gap of considerable width, and empties into the ocean about 30 miles south of Astoria, and 10 miles north of Tillamook bay.

Among the productions of this region first available for commerce is its forests of timber and beds of coal. The extent and value of the timbering industry which would be established here will only be limited by the transportation facilities created to carry it to distant markets.

The numerous branches of the river make an aggregate of perhaps 200 miles of waterway, down which timber and logs can be floated to the mills near the coast. Such mills, competent men say, would enable them to obtain an abundant supply of logs FOR LESS THAN ONE HALF THE COST OF LOGS ON THE COLUMBIA RIVER. From these mills to docks and lumber yards at Tillamook bay and at Astoria the sawed lumber can be moved with but very little handling until sent by rail and by ships to the markets of the world.

As I showed in an article not long since published in the Astorian, there is no pass out of the Nehalem basin except down the river towards the ocean; and by prompt effort the largest part if not every ton of the products of this region, and of its future trade, can be drawn to the docks and storage yards of Astoria.

At the western edge of this valley, and ten miles south of the mouth of the river, is situated Tillamook harbor, in which large ships enter in safety at all times, and the work is progressing to carry the deep channel farther inland at government expense. A track of twelve miles of light grading from near the mouth of the Nehalem river to Tillamook will GIVE NEHALEM MILLMEN A ROAD OF THEIR OWN TO THEIR SHIPS AT THAT SEAPORT.

The five men of Tillamook are wide awake to this opportunity, and they stand a good chance to capture from the very gates of Astoria resources which will surely crowd their beautiful Tillamook bay at some future day with shipping from every quarter of the globe.

From my correspondence I conclude that investors prefer assisting themselves of a direct outlet to Astoria for many obvious reasons, and I am persuaded that if it is assured that your road at Astoria or Clatsop Beach will be soon extended as far as to the Nehalem river, it will stimulate lumbermen to immediate operations which they are now postponing.

And for the same reason the citizens of that country would naturally draw all their supplies from the same center of trade at which their productions are marketed and distributed.

Certainly your railroad and the city at the mouth of the Columbia is pre-eminently fitted to "fill the bill" and reap this rich harvest, if you will only take advantage of the opportunity.

Very respectfully,

JOHN CAMPBELL.

Vernonia, Columbia County, Ore., April 28, 1909.

THE ILWACO GAME.

Herman Wise and his bowling aggregate, for some time past, have been well pleased with the splendid treatment accorded them by the Ilwaco Club. As Herman Wise expressed it, "we may be able to beat them in bowling, but we can never beat them in hospitality and good fellowship."

The Astorians started out with a rush, winning the first game by 4 pins, making an average of over 10, but after that all hands took it easy, as there seemed to be no necessity for exertion. The A. F. C. boys won all four games by the liberal margin of 91 pins. After the bowling contest it was the Ilwaco's turn to win, and they did win the hearts of their visitors by treating them to a royal dinner, with all accessories, to which the A. F. C. did ample justice.

A few days ago Postmaster Howerton, of Ilwaco, one of the leaders in the Ilwaco Club, wrote to Captain Wise, of the A. F. C. team, for instructions as to the best method of preparing the alleys, as they were exceedingly dry on the previous visit. Mr. Wise advised him to scrape the alleys and then to oil them thoroughly, and every two or three times during the week, then he added, wipe the balls with gasoline. What was Mr. Wise's surprise to find the alleys rubbed off with gasoline and the balls scraped and oiled. Just the reverse. The boys didn't do a thing to the Ilwaco postmaster and it isn't safe to join him about the matter, as he has taken his mistakes much to heart. The A. F. C. is under obligations to the Ilwacoites, especially to Messrs. Gonell, Howerton, Burch, Williams and last, but not least, to whole-souled Jack Wilson, who is as white as they make them.

Mrs. Hayden and Chief Steward Howerton set a splendid meal for the boys and crew wasn't one of the dishes, either, nor were there some eggs served; nothing but the best, and plenty of it.

News from Madrid says that General Martinez Campos has insisted upon the appointment of a commission to investigate the conduct of the war and to place the responsibility, casualties and neglect all through the war gave rise to the most disastrous conditions, but no more dangerous than come from neglect of the health.
