Georgia Stevens, a suspected stroller of the tenderloin district, was found in an opium joint in Chinatown yesterday by the police. She was drunk and was acting in a disorderly manner, and it is also supposed she had been drinking. The latter is a 230 offense, and it is probable that if found guilty she will try to drown her sorrows in some other way hereafter.

Report comes from Ilwaco that that town fairly out itself in the celebration line. In addition to a fine patriotic program in the morning a full list of athletic events were carried out during the afternoon. But the list was so long that it was impossible to carry out the full program and as the enthusiasm of the Ilwacotes was still up to a high pressure it was decided to continue the celebration today and finish up the athletic program.

Chairman Welch, of the chamber of commerce committee to entertain the visiting editors next Saturday, asks that those who will contribute flowers with which to decorate the banquet table, have them at his office, No. 24 Commercial street, either Friday afternoon or Saturday morning by 9 o'clock. The committee hope that the ladies of Astoria will be generous with their flowers and thus enable the young ladies who have charge of the tables to make them as attractive as possible.

The dwelling house of Watson Elliott, situated near the west side of the Astoria & Columbia River railroad, three-quarters of a mile this side of Marshall station, was burned yesterday noon. The fire originated in the garage and it is not known whether it was caused by a defective fire or from matches carried there by rats. But few of the contents were saved and the total loss will be about $200, with only a small insurance.

The dwelling was a large two-story structure and one of the finest farm houses in that section.

A meeting of the guarantee bond committee, which guaranteed the right of way to the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad Company, was held at the chamber of commerce room Monday evening. Judge C. H. Page, president of the committee, presided. After some incidental business was transacted the list of delinquents was taken up and read by Secretary Brennan Van Dusen. By a unanimous vote the attorney for the committee, Judge F. J. Taylor, was instructed to give notice to the delinquents to pay up at once, or suit would be begun against them.

The great mortality among the Ukiah canines who were so unfortunate as to be compelled to accept the hospitality of the city pound during the month of May stimulated dog owners to be more alert in taking out licenses for their household pets, with the result that during June Poundmaster James Petty only had to put an end to five stragglers. So vigilant has Mr. Petty while acting as poundmaster that Astoria is not cursed with a horde of hungry, howling curs, such as is found in so many towns, and who turn night into pandemonium and make sleep to people well nigh impossible.

Warrenton Lodge No. 52, A. O. U. W., held a public installation of officers last Saturday evening. The work was conducted by Grand Guide A. E. Cyrus, of this city. The following were officers installed: Master, William N. J. Crane; foreman, J. M. Carmel; overseer, Frank Swesey; recorder, Emory Houghton; financier, A. J. Hill; receiver, W. E. Harmon; guide, Malcolm Grider; inside watchman, Gus Menzies; outside watchman, J. W. Wallingford. At the close of the installation a short program, including vocal and instrumental music, recitations, and readings, was given, which greatly pleased the audience. Warrenton lodge has the honor of making a greater gain during the past year than any other lodge in the state, having increased 30 per cent.

Five coaches were filled with the crowd that left Astoria yesterday morning for Gearhart and Seaside. The Congregational, Methodist and Baptist Sunday schools constituted the majority of the crowd that got off. The day's excursion included nearly all the excursions in the young people spent a jolly day in games of various kinds. The football and baseball games were closely contested and created great sport. A game of baseball between two clubs of girls was extremely funny to the onlookers. Strolls through the beautiful grove of Gearhart park and along the beach gave pleasure to those along a romantic trip of mind. The weather was very pleasant, the sun shining most of the time and the young people were loth to give up their fun when train time arrived for the trip home.

The Eclipse arrived back from Grays river at 1 o'clock this morning with a jolly load of about 75 Astorians who had been to Grays river to spend the Fourth. The Astorians one and all declared that the celebration was one of the most enjoyable they ever attended. The exercises were held in a beautiful grove near Meserve Bros. store and the entire program was carried out in a manner highly creditable to those taking part and to the committee having it in charge. After the singing of the national air by the choir, Miss Laura Poss read the Declaration of Independence in a very effective manner. At the conclusion of the reading President Lawrence introduced Judge J. M. Hughes of Astoria, who delivered the oration. The address was well given and was well worded and pertinent to the day and those who heard it give Judge Hughes the credit of being an orator of considerable ability. President Pender was marshal of the day. A barbecue dinner was served on long tables in the grove that was a feast that was a splendid compliment to the culinary skill of the women of Grays river. A grand ball closed the day's festivities.

The case of the Pacific Sheet Metal Works vs. The Columbia Ore & Grain Company known locally as the fish oil factory injunction case—is to come up before Judge Bellinger in the United States circuit court in Portland tomorrow. There are two motions that will be presented for Judge Bellinger to act on. One is by the plaintiffs that the case be remanded back to the state circuit court for trial before Judge Melville, the ground for the motion being that part of the defendants are citizens of the United States and consequently had no right to have the case transferred to the United States circuit court. The other motion is by the defendants and asks that the injunction against them be so modified as to permit them to run their fish oil factory nights and Sundays. The plaintiffs' motion, which is to settle whether the United States or the state court has jurisdiction will come up first and if Judge Bellinger decides that the case properly belongs in the state court that will end the motion to modify the injunction. The Can Company is represented by John H. Smith and Judge F. J. Taylor, while the Oil Company is represented by J. C. Sanders, of Portland.

The naval reserve boys were made happy yesterday by the receipt of two fine cutters, which were brought up from the Mare Island navy yard on the Columbia. The largest boat is 26 feet long and is fitted with two masts, schooner-rigged, and with 12 oars. The other cutter is 22 feet long and is fitted for six oars. During the afternoon they had their boats out for a trial spin. While their stroke was not up to the navy regulation, they succeeded in getting up a good speed and the sailor boys on the Columbia and Manzanita, who were interested spectators of their rowing, thought the reserve boys did well for landlubbers, and that with six months' training they would be quite pretty fair rowers. The reserve boys are going to have their boats repainted and put in trim ready for cutter drill, which Lieutenant Sherman will institute at once. The reserve boys are taking greater interest than ever in their drill, and propose to be the crack division of the coast when their turn comes to go on the training ship. Two recruits have lately been added to the division, and there are places for 12 more young men to fill the division up to its maximum.

THE GARNET HILL'S TROUBLE.

The bark Garnet Hill, which sailed from Portland for Taku last fall, arrived too late to get into port before it was closed by the ice, and her experience since then has formed an amusing harlequin story. Lloyd's index of June 3 says that a survey was held at Chefoo in February, when it was found that some bulwarks and stanchions had been carried away, wheel broken, cement in the waterway started, rivets broken, etc. The damage was caused by a sale in the China seas, and on arrival at Chefoo, she was making one to two inches of water in 24 hours, and the surveyors recommended that she be towed to Taku for first part of discharge, and after being lightened there she would be able to proceed with safety under sail for Kiaochau, her final port of discharge.

ASTORIA, July 3—Editor Astorian: The above clipping is from the Portland Oregonian of date June 28, 1899, and is quite interesting in view of the fact that the bark Garnet Hill, on her trip from Portland to Astoria was on ground hard and fast at the mouth of the Willamette river for several days whereby her cargo had to be lightened that she could get off the sands. Wonder if she was not heavily strained and it is now telling on her, and being in a storm in China sea, should be in the Willamette river on a sand bank, as the article says she is heavily damaged.

And now it is said that insanity results from too much meat eating. It is not stated that the butcher ever got mad other than with joy over the carnivorous fury of his customers.

IS IT RIGHT?

From Sylvan Valley News, Brevard, N. C. It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the market, yet at the same time, in depending implicitly on any medicine, for a cure, but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Diarrhoea Remedy were kept on hand and administered at the inception of an attack much suffering might be avoided and in many cases the presence of a physician would not be required. At least this has been our experience during the past 20 years. For sale by Charles Rogers.

A SUCCESSFUL LOGGER.

A. Lawson, the Skipanon logger, was in town Monday, and shipped a logboat donkey, which he had recently purchased, to his camp. He had it at the Astoria Iron works to have a new boiler put in and the engine repaired. The donkey was fired up and furnished its own power to haul it to the ship, where it was placed on a scow for transportation to Skipanon. So well built was the boiler that when the steam pressure came up not a leak or blinch was found, in fact the engine, E. M. Houghton, complete with the statement that the donkey was stronger and in better working order than when it was new and fresh from the Portland shop. The new boiler is eight feet high, 48 inches in diameter and has 18, two-inch tubes and its strength permits of a working pressure of 150 to 175 pounds and higher, if necessary.

Mr. Dawson will use his donkey for yarding out and will put his ox team on the skid road to haul the logs to the river. He is logging spruce for the Oregon City pulp mills and is employing 12 hands. He has spruce timber sufficient to keep his camp running for a year, but he is planning to put in hemlock also this fall if the price will justify, as the pulp mills are now using considerable of this timber.
