671 Commercial St., Astoria.

The case of Albert Lewis who was arrested Tuesday for assault and battery on J. J. Ross, did not come up for trial in the justice court, the parties having settled their differences out of court.

The merry-go-round catered to such a large patronage yesterday that both Mr. Arnold and the galloping ponies were utterly jaded when the hour to stop was announced last night. The youngsters all hope that the turnup will remain in Astoria forever.

The clay pigeon shooting match came off yesterday. Clark Loughery won with a score of 23. The total scores follow: Hall 14, Davis 11, Loughery 23, Peter Newswander 1, Lewley 15, Estes 5, Fox 12, Fisher 11, Spexarth 15, Houston 21, Sanborn 16, George 10, Dr. Fulton 14, Linville 17, Troyer 17, Fisher 5.

A young lady whose name could not be learned was painfully injured on the railway track north of the Parker House yesterday. An observer states that she stepped between the ties, and in endeavoring to catch herself, fell, breaking her ankle. Her companions, elderly people, carried her away for medical assistance.

The dead walls of the city are resplendent with the three sheet posters of Walter Main's World's Biggest, Greatest and Finest Amusement Institution, which is soon to find anchorage in Astoria. If the striking illustrations tell the story, Mr. Main has the most glittering pageant known to the annals of amusement.

The crew of the steamer North Star were paid off yesterday by Captain Hanson. The steamer made a very quick trip from Bristol bay to the mouth of the Columbia, the distance being covered in 10 days. What business she will engage in before going into service next season has not yet been determined by her owners.

The news leaked out yesterday that N. W. Tallant of the Cutting Packing Company had gone to San Francisco, and for no purpose other than to become entangled in the meshes of the hymenial net. It is said that the prospective bride is the charming widow of the late John Martin, who was heavily interested in mining properties in California and elsewhere.

S. J. Pembroke, the popular San Francisco oarsman, who has in charge the visiting California crews, talks seriously of disposing of his property in the above city, and locating in Astoria. "This town has a future," he said last night. "I like the location and climate, and the people and business prospects as well. I will make the change if possible to profitably consummate it."

Matt Hilstrom, a logger in Oleson Bros. camp on the Lewis and Clarke, had his leg shattered below the knee yesterday while working with a jack-screw. He was moving some logs when the crank of the jack-screw got loose striking him on the leg with terrific force. A gasoline launch was procured and he was brought to this city yesterday evening and taken to the hospital for treatment.

Fritz Derock, an employe of the government, gave a submarine diving exhibition in front of the grand stand yesterday afternoon. The seats were generously filled, and the local band played in the pavilion, while the diver strode hither and yon on the bed of the river. The crowd was interested from the fact that Mr. Derock occasionally remained beneath the water's surface from ten to fifteen minutes.

John L. Carlson yesterday received a fine Alaska dog from Mate Wickstrom of the steamer North Star. The dog was picked out of a band of 50 and is of a smaller size than those that have heretofore been brought to Astoria. He shows a disinclination to mix in the company of other canines. Mr. Carlson has named him "Jim" and will keep him chained until he becomes accustomed to his new surroundings.

An up river logger named Jack McGregor got into a fight in a saloon in the lower end of town yesterday evening and received such injuries that it was necessary to take him to the hospital. His leg was dislocated and his head and face were badly battered. He was conveyed in a wagon to the hospital, where his injuries were attended to. He is not believed to be dangerously injured. No arrests were made.

A large crowd witnessed the baseball game yesterday at the A. F. C. grounds between the Chemawa's and Multnomah's. The former won by a score of 12 to 5. The game was hotly contested throughout and kept the assembled crowd highly interested. Graham and Teabo acted as batteries for the Chemawa's and Whitehouse and Zan as batteries for the Multnomah's. The features of the game were the battery playing of the Chemawa's and the work of McMaster as shortstop.

The regatta closed successfully last night with the illustrated concert given under the auspices of the Edward Shields Company. The attendance was considerably larger than on the previous evening, and the entertainment moved along smoothly and with a snap that pleased the audience. The moving pictures were interesting and distinctly rendered. The vocal selections were good. It is understood that Mr. Shields so favorably impressed the regatta committee and the patrons of the carnival in general that he has been urged to appear in Astoria again next season.

The Columbia from San Francisco, steamed gracefully up the river yesterday morning, her decks crowded with passengers, who gazed with wondering eyes at the gala display on the Astoria river front. The captain and other officers were besieged with questions, and when it was discovered that a carnival was in order, several young ladies implored that the steamer might lie over till nightfall and permit them to attend. The captain smiled and talked in a soothing strain, but when he declined to tarry, he was promptly denounced as the meanest man that ever disgraced a ship.

At the conclusion of the aquatic events yesterday, Captain Gregory of the Manzanita ordered the anchor weighed and apprised his guests that he would indulge them in a breezy jaunt down the river. The water was as smooth as a mill pond and the trip proved a delightful outing for the participants. When the vessel coursed alongside the Garnet Hill the band struck up "God save the queen," the British ship dipped her colors and the Manzanita responded. The incident was an inspiring one, and the passengers of each boat cheered and cheered till the air rang with the enthusiasm. The journey was prolonged over an hour and many tapped the sounding deck in the mazes of the dance while the band played its enrapturing repertoire.

Judge Nelson had more than the average number of cases before him in the police court yesterday. C. Hawkins forfeited $10 for being drunk and disorderly and Joseph Gilmore forfeited $5 on a charge of drunkenness. J. Sandstrom was fined $5 on the same charge. Joseph Boyd, L. DuCheny and M. White were each fined $5 on charges of drunkenness. These men are fishermen and are residents of up river points and imbibed too freely while in Astoria taking in the regatta festivities. They were 24 hours in jail and Judge Nelson suspended sentence on condition that they leave the city, which they consented to do yesterday evening. "Lighthouse" Nelson, who was booked on a charge of fighting was not sober enough to appear for trial. He will be given a hearing today.

Howard Brewer, the long distance champion swimmer, is a prodigy. He is invincible, his friends say, and even at the world's fair where he met the most skillful aquatic athletes of all countries, he won with apparently as much ease as he passed the local competitors who engaged him in the several swimming events yesterday. To test Mr. Brewer's powers to the utmost, it was decided to release a large goose from the deck of the Manzanita yesterday afternoon. The swimmer was in readiness, and when the big bird alighted on the water, it was expected that the doughty man-fish would be quickly distanced. The beholders were surprised, however, to see the agile Brewer cleave the water like a porpoise, and in the space of a moment, grasp the quacking fowl and held her high in the air as a trophy. The crowd cheered lustily.

A man with an inventive faculty and an aptitude for mischief, has been playing sad havoc with the slot machines of this city. In several popular sample rooms he emptied the coffers completely, and in others he exercised moderate discretion and left a few sequestered nickels to indicate that the machine was still in condition for bar room patronage. Chief of Police Hallock explains his mode of operation: "As nearly as I can determine," said the chief, "he carries a gimlet, and affecting drunkenness, leans against the machine and perforates the casing. He then inserts a small wire, and applying it to certain parts of the mechanism causes a deluge of nickels to fall out regardless of any color he sees fit to play. He has been amazingly successful, and no doubt would still be plying his vocation if expanding wealth had not gotten the better of his judgment. I arrested and jailed him, but subsequently released him for the reason that the district attorney refused to prosecute. However, I gave him hours to leave the town, and the saloons needn't have any fear of further misfortunes from that source."

Ben. Buttenberg, the justly renowned advertising artist, who paraded in fantastic garb for the Herman Wise clothing house during the regatta, left for Seattle last night, after pronouncing the carnival a brilliant attraction, and the people of Astoria as among the most energetic and hospitable of all the cities on the Pacific coast. Mr. Buttenberg was asked his opinion of the regatta committee's work. "They acquitted themselves splendidly," he said. "It is certain they must have done so, as otherwise the aquatic events would by no means have been so entertaining. However, I would of this suggestion for next year. Instead of making the queen's voting contest a strictly local affair, let some affable representative visit all of the leading cities of the northwest, appoint the mayor as chairman of a sub-committee, and invite the population of both Oregon and Washington into a rivalry for the representation of imperial honors. It is safe to say that Portland, if properly handled, would deposit thousands of ballots for the prestige of furnishing a sovereign to preside over the carnival festivities. But this is only one of many ideas I would be glad to advance. If the 1900 committee will keep in touch with me, I will gratuitously outline a program which I think will bring a multitude of pleasure seekers to participate in next year's exercises."

DROPPED FROM THE CLOUDS.

Ballooning Earleton's Sensations in His Thrilling Parachute Jump Yesterday.

"There are a good many people who thought I would be drowned," said Dick Earleton last night, when speaking of his balloon ascension and his perilous descent under the parachute.

"The impression was that when I struck the water, the canopy would envelop me and carry me down before I could become disentangled. Now, the fact is, there is a trick in this business. I learned it at Chicago when I stood on the beach one time and saw the most daring aeronaut of his day find a watery grave in just such a manner. If you noticed carefully, you observed that when I approached the surface I had my trapeze swinging. Well, when still aloft about 25 feet, I let go the trapeze bar, and diving in the teeth of the wind, of course permitted the parachute to clear me and alight above me on the river. It naturally requires dexterous calculation to accomplish it, but practice has now brought me to a high state of proficiency."

"How did the world look to you from the heavens?" asked the reporter. "Fretty much as would the view from a mountain 1500 feet high, which was the altitude I attained yesterday. The vessels appeared like mere specks, and the river contracted till it looked like a long stretching serpent of silver. It's a beautiful sight from the region of cloud, but it takes nerve to trust yourself to the fickleness of a parachute."

ROWING CLUB ORGANIZED.

Friends and members of the local and visiting rowing clubs met at Itagatta headquarters last night, and as previously announced in the Astorian, organized the Pacific Coast Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

The following officers were chosen: J. C. Fulton, president; S. J. Pembroke, Vice President; Harrison Allen, secretary; E. C. Hughes, treasurer; Harry Hamblett, trustee; E. Hallock, trustee.

The board of directors will consist of G. C. Fulton of the Astoria Rowing Club, P. E. Stowell of the Portland Rowing Club, S. J. Pembroke of the Alameda Boating Club, Dr. C. C. Dennis of the South End Rowing Club, W. P. Eppy of the Pioneer Rowing Club, Alfred Rothkop of the Dolphin Rowing and Swimming Club, John R. Bockmann of the Ariel Rowing Club, George James of the Olympic Boat Club, and James Hopper of the University of California Rowing Club.

A membership in the association is open to all of the amateur rowing organizations of the United States and British Columbia. The constitution, which is a voluminous document, prescribes that the races at each regatta shall consist of single scull shells junior; single scull shells, senior; pair oared shells, senior; double scull shells, senior; four-oared shells, junior; four-oared shells, senior; four-oared large, senior; outrigger skiff, junior and senior; international four-oared shell, senior; eight-oared shell, junior; eight-oared shell, senior.

The association is created with a view to the advancement and improvement of rowing among amateurs of the Pacific coast, and to establish an annual regatta for such oarsmen in this city.

REGATTA ENDS SUCCESSFULLY.

Yesterday saw the finale of the 1899 regatta. That it was a success is well demonstrated in the fact that the attendance was larger than at any previous carnival. Moreover, everybody enjoyed themselves, and are lavish in praise of the hospitality accorded them by our gracious and open handed citizens. The morning events called out a large crowd, and were as follows: Senior barge race, Berkeley vs Alameda, one and a half mile with turn. Won by Alameda; time 11 min. 29 sec. Alameda barge vs Vancouver shell, one and a half mile with turn. Won by Vancouver; no time given. Single shell race, entries, Whitkop, Foley, Dr. Dennis, Patton and Stenberg, one and a half mile course with turn. Won by Patton; time, 12 min. 32 sec. Dr. Dennis, who was second, entered a protest. An exciting program of field sports attracted the multitude to the A. F. C. grounds in the afternoon.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Post Surgeon G. A. Skinner, of Fort Stevens, is a guest at the Occident.

Frank M. Warren, the canneryman, arrived in the city yesterday from Portland.

H. B. Borthwick, the Goble lumberman, is in the city registered at the Parker house.

Captain J. P. Whitecomb, the Ilwaco trap owner, is in the city, accompanied by his wife.

Wash. Muckle, the St. Helens millman, who has been visiting in the city during the regatta, returns home today.

Mrs. Mrs. H. P. Hanson, wife of Captain Hanson of the steamer North Star, was a passenger on the Columbia yesterday from San Francisco.

SUPPLIES FOR PORTO RICANS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The United States transport McClelland sailed from Brooklyn today for San Juan, Porto Rico, and Santiago, Cuba, carrying 1600 tons of clothing, provisions, medicines and building material for the destitute in Porto Rico.
