It has been argued that such a convention could be held after harvest. cometime in November, and its effect would be far-reaching in securing a passageway from Lewiston to the sea. 675 The ideas set forth by Lewiston businessmen is that a portage rallway could be cheaply and rapidly constructed around the river obstructions at The Dalles, and if positive action was taken, an appropriation could be secured from congress for immediate use. Farmers are prone to believe that so long as they pay 14 cents for carrying a bushel of wheat from Lewiston to Portland, a distance of 350 miles, they will never prosper. Especially are they displeased when they know that a An Excellent Combination. bushel of wheat is carried 1000 miles. The from Chicago to the Eastern seaboard for 4 cents. They attach no blame to for 4 cents. They attach no blame to for 4 cents. They attach no blame to the railroads for it is admitted that railroads may be perfectly justified in their charges. They believe, however, that a country of so much importance as this should have cheaper transpor-tation to the sea, and that if con-gress should be properly influenced, the portage railway could be built. They argue that only by combined ef-fort can this be accomplished. Power-ful Eastern interests, now centered in Lewiston, are considering the manner of reducing freight rates from this or irritating them, make it the ideal country to the seaboard. found elsewhere on the Pacific coast. Something must be wrong with Astoria, and it is a public duty to point out and seek to set that wrong right. The daily press is thought hard of if it ventures to state the truth as to the situation, but when leading citizens and the organizations which are supposed to exist for the purpose of alding the growth and development of the city exhibit such a spirit of woeful indifference, it becomes the duty of the newspapers to ventilate the condition of affairs, with the hope of enlisting outside assistance.
