PRINCESS WEARS DIAMOND IN NOSE

Princess Fatima, Sultana of Kabul, may not be a beauty according to American standards, but she has a style all her own. It is the mounted diamond which she wears in her nose. She arrived in San Francisco this week—bound for London, with her three sons she is going to put in school there.

WONDERS OF AMERICA

GUNTHER COLLECTION

MANY great and good men, possessed of a hobby for collecting curious and other things, have left heritages of untold monetary value and far-reaching educational value.

The recent death of Mr. Charles F. Gunther, a Chicago philanthropist, who possessed a consuming passion for collecting, released to permanent quarters in that city the greatest known collection of historical documents and autograph letters in America, and enables the looker-on to visualize the westward shifting of the frontier from the colonies on the Atlantic to the slope of the Pacific.

A stroll through these wonders reveals such relics as—the compass used by General George Washington in his soldier days; the first edition (1707) of the first book in which America was mentioned; the first newspaper, The Gazette, Oxford, England (1665); the table upon which General Grant wrote the terms of Lee's surrender at Appomattox court house (1865); the silk hat and umbrella of Abraham Lincoln and the carriage in which he rode about in the city of Washington; the document transferring the Territory of Louisiana from Spain to France (1803), and another covering conveyance from France to the United States; the instruments used in planting Chicago (1829).

Mr. Gunther is said to have hunted with intense eagerness for forty years, spending one million dollars.

SHE TAUGHT GREAT WARRIORS

Mrs. Celia Goodrich von Coells, of Coatsburg, Ill., who has just celebrated her 80th birthday, has the distinction of having taught two great U. S. warriors in her younger school-teaching days in Ohio. Among her pupils was Gen. Adna Chaffee, U. S. A., and Admiral George Dewey, U. S. N.

OREGON NEWS NOTES

The Portland Railway, Light & Power company of Portland has made application with the state engineer for the appropriation of 100,000 acre feet of water from the main fork of the Clackamas river, for the development of 58,600 horsepower in Clackamas county. The cost of the proposed development is estimated at $2,000,000.

A fair, established originally as an industrial boys' and girls' club exhibit at Shedd, will grow this year into a community fair, which will feature exhibits of farm products and household work as well. Exhibits by the boys' and girls' clubs at Shedd will continue to be an important part of the fair. The fair will be held September 23.

There were three fatalities in Oregon due to industrial accidents during the week ending July 7, according to a report prepared by the state industrial accident commission. The victims were E. D. Ose, logger, Dallas; William Hauser, laborer, Klamath Falls, and Eugene Peterson, laborer, Manistique, Mich. A total of 277 accidents were reported.

Members of the Oregon state livestock sanitary board at a meeting at Salem re-elected Dr. W. H. Lytle state veterinarian. This will be the sixth consecutive term that Dr. Lytle has held this office. Walter K. Taylor of Corvallis was re-elected president of the board, while K. G. Warner of Pendleton was selected as vice-president. Other members of the board are J. R. Cole, Molalla; Jay P. Dobbin, Joseph; William Pollman, Baker; B. T. Sims, Corvallis, and Harry West, Scappoose.

Because owners of scab-infested sheep using private ranges are unwilling to submit their stock to dipping, Dr. R. A. Parsons of the bureau of animal industry in central Oregon declared that it may be impossible to eradicate the disease this year, as had been hoped early in the spring. Forty thousand sheep remain undipped in northern Lake county, and Dr. Parsons has received no intimation that the sheepmen intend to take either curative or preventive measures. Forty-two thousand sheep have already been dipped in Deschutes county this year, and 32,000 more are listed for dipping.

Sale of 200,000 pounds of wool of the Arlington clip of Smythe Brothers of Pendleton at a price averaging 14 cents, was announced in what probably was the largest single wool sale made in Oregon this year.

The first carload of fresh cherries ever shipped from Salem to the Atlantic coast left there last week. The cherries were prepared for shipment by the Oregon Growers' Co-operative association, and were of high quality.

TEACHING UNCLE SAM ECONOMY

Charles G. Dawes

These are the eyes cabinet members and department heads have to look into in explaining government expenses which "any average business man would question in his own business." It is a new picture of Charles Dawes, director of the budget President Harding has promised will cut down our expenses.

SOLD KISS FOR $300

Would you give $300 for a kiss from the lips of Mary Pickford—for sweet charity's sake? Well Mary is not selling kisses, but Sierid Holmquist, a movie actress—"The Mary Pickford" of Sweden, who is visiting this country, sold a kiss for $300—the money going to Free Milk for Italy fund. Frank Henderson of Long Island was the lucky bidder.
