SHOULD DEVOTE MORE TIME ON IMPORTANT MATTERS

Congress debated the anti-beer bill for eight hours and then passed it. It seems to us that eight hours used in debating a bill that can do no one any good when there is so much that needs the attention of our lawmakers is a sheer waste of time. A few fanatics seem to have the idea that they will have their own way or ruin the chances for any other legislation. The anti-saloon league has outlived its usefulness and it is time the paid workers were discharged so that congress need not be harassed by a bunch of one idea nincompoops and get down to some useful and beneficial legislation.

DAWN OF A NEW DAY

The world already knows that the armament conference is not a "foregone futility," not an inevitable retreat to chaos and failure, not the staged creation of diplomatic fencers, not the actual paralysis and negation of the world's aspirations for peace through disarmament.

The Harding-Hughes proposal has put to rout at once the objectors, the dreamers, the visionaries, the evangelists of pessimism, the prophets of an impossible millennium, the peddlers of internationalist piffle, the babblers about world federation.

It is more than a proposal; it is a demand for action, couched in irresistible phrase, responsive to the highest and best thought of a world wearied and nearly ruined by war, supported by the moral power and coercion of an enlightened, aroused and chastened mankind.

It is idle to talk now of the obstacles to limitation of armament. They do not exist; they never did exist against a bold and determined purpose to overcome them. What are they now? Where are those who say that a great step forward has not been made toward the actuality of a more peaceful world through abandonment—even partial abandonment—of the provocative instrumentalities of warfare?

It is a day and time of realities, not visions; courage, not timidity; of outright diplomacy, not of secret intrigue.

Civilization is not sinking, but rising; not sunk, but saved. A new era is dawning.—Oregonian.

OUR COUNTRY'S POLICY

While President Harding has never posed as an orator and has not possessed "the almost perfect command of the English language," that gift with which his predecessor was endowed, one can read with interest and satisfaction his address made at the opening of the disarmament conference. He shows true statesmanship in his address as follows:

"Gentlemen of the conference, the United States welcome you, with unselfish hands. We harbor no fears; we have no sordid ends to serve; we suspect no enemy; we contemplate or apprehend no conquest. Content with what we have, we seek nothing which is another's. We only wish to do, with you, that finer, nobler thing which no nation can do alone.

"We wish to sit with you at the table of international understanding and good will. In good conscience we are eager to meet you frankly and invite and offer co-operation. The world demands a sober contemplation of the existing order and the realization that there can be no cure without sacrifice, not by one of us, but by all of us.

"I do not mean surrendered rights or narrowed freedom, or denied aspirations, or ignored national necessities. Our republic would no more ask for these than it would give. No pride need be humbled, no nationality submerged, but I would have a merging of minds committing all of us to less preparation for war and more employment of fortunate peace."

"Our hundred millions frankly want less of armament and none of war. Wholly free from guile, sure in our own minds that we harbor no unworthy designs, we accredit the world with the same good intent. So I welcome you, not alone in good will and high purpose, but with high faith."

Secretary of State Hughes outlined the policy of the United States which Mr. Hughes believes would prove a solution of part of the world's preplexing problems. He said:

"But if we are warned by the inadequacy of earlier endeavors for limitation of armament, we cannot fail to recognize the extraordinary opportunity now presented.

"We not only have the lessons of the past to guide us, not only do we have the reaction from the disillusioning experiences of war, but we must meet the challenge of imperative economic demands. What was convenient or highly desirable before is now a matter of vital necessity. If there is to be economic rehabilitation, if the longings for reasonable progress are not to be denied, if we are to be spared the uprisings of peoples made desperate in the desire to shake off burdens no longer endurable, competition in armament must stop. Is it not plain that the time has passed for mere resolutions that the responsible powers should examine the question of limitation of armament? The time is come and this conference has been called not for general resolutions or mutual advice, but for action.

"We meet with full understanding that the aspirations of mankind are not to be defeated either by plausible suggestions of postponement or by impracticable counsels of perfection. Power and responsibility are here and the world awaits a practicable programme which shall at once be put into execution."

Perhaps if Umatilla had a member of the County Budget Committee we could have at least a branch library.

"Every knock is a boost."

KENTUCKY CHILD OF NINE READS MINDS

Nellie Cardell, nine-year-old girl from amongst the Kentucky mountains south of Cincinnati, has long mystified neighbors and "friends by her ability to read minds. Facts and figures held in thought by others are no secrets to her—and now theatrical managers are trying to get her to tour.

HOW TO RETAIN YOUTH LONG

Learn to Employ the Passing Years With Constantly Increasing Wisdom and Discretion.

Youth is a quality, a spiritual energy and, properly speaking, there is no "old age," but spiritual decay. "The foot less prompt to meet the morn'ndew" is no valid evidence of growth; old, any more than to lose a leg in battle. Fussy physical activities are not the only tests of youth, writes Richard Le Gallienne in Harper's Magazine. That brain of Sophocles which gave us the greatest play at 90, is more to the point, as also that famous saying recorded of him, in reference to the cooling of the passions with the years, that to grow old was like being set free from service to a band of madmen.

Because we grow wiser and stronger, less selfish and generally more useful to our fellows with the passage of the years is not to say that we have lost our youth. It only means that we have learned how to employ it. We do not run in every direction as we did. We know a little better what we are doing, or what we want to do; but the motive force that enables us to do it is that same energy which once drove us to make fools of ourselves at the beginning, and still provides the same "swift means to radiant ends."

Decay, disillusion, weariness; we mean these things when we speak of "growing old," but we fail to realize that these are no necessary accompaniments of the years. We may, unfortunately, inherit them, or acquire them, like bad habits, or through neglect of a proper care and exercise of our spiritual selves. Spiritual and intellectual laziness makes most people "old before their time." If we lose interest in life, life will soon lose interest in us; and it is just as possible to achieve a precocious senility in the twenties as at any later period of our lives.

Dollar Wheat Near at Hand.

Chicago, Ill.—The American farmer is today confronted with the immediate prospect of $1 wheat. It is six years since the country has had "dollar wheat." Exactly a year ago the farmer was talking $3 wheat; in fact he "stuck" for that price. But now he is glad to accept a few cents over the dollar because he has got to sell—on a drastically declining market. December wheat at one time last week slumped to $1.02%, the lowest since September, 1915.

A PRAYING COLONEL FOR ALL-AMERICANS

When "Bo" McMillan, quarterback on the little Center College team, started his now historic dash around Harvard's left end to a 6 to 0 victory the other Saturday, he was sprinting into football's "Hall of Fame" as an All-American back for 1921. Football folks say that one performance, following his great three-year record, marks him as one of the greatest grid men of the age. McMillan is a Texas boy and Center College a small school located at Danville, Kentucky. Charles Moran, league baseball umpire, is the team's manager. The team is known as the "Praying Colonels," as they kneel in prayer before every game. They went to Harvard in 1920, their first year in four years. It is probable that they will go to a bigger school next year and McMillan will be a star at Center. Pictures of McMillan and his get-away are shown below.

Dr. Brumfield Tries to Kill Himself.

Roseburg, Or.—Dr. Richard M. Brumfield, convicted of the murder of Dennis Russell, attempted to commit suicide by slashing his throat. The prisoner was found in a semi-conscious condition in his cell. Blood covered the cot and had dripped onto the floor. Dr. A. S. Sether, Roseburg physician, who was summoned at once, said he believed the dentist's life could be saved.

FARM POINTERS

From Department Industrial Journal, Oregon Agricultural College.

Three pounds of skimmed milk has a feeding value equal to one pound of grain fed to fattening hogs. Hogs fed on a ration of 5 pounds of barley to five pounds of skimmed milk made an average daily gain of 1.58 pounds in feeding tests.

Exercise or "loafing" sheds are desirable for dairy cattle during the winter months. They protect the animals from rain and keep them out of the mud. Cattle given this protection make a greater return from feed consumed.

A three to five year rotation for garden and truck crops is advisable from the standpoint of pest and disease control, finds the department of botany and plant pathology. Potatoes particularly should be put on different ground each year or some of the most destructive potato diseases will be present to attack the new crop. Lack of rotation has probably caused a greater decrease in garden yields than any other single thing.
