TRANSFERRING BEES TO MOVABLE COMB HIVE

Bees kept in box hives with crooked combs are unprofitable and should be transferred during a good spring honey flow to standard movable comb hives, all combs of which should be built from full sheets of foundation. It is only by having bees in movable frame condition that the beekeeper is able to watch his colonies for disease, to determine whether or not he has a good laying queen and perform the various other manipulations called for in successful management for honey production.

No effort will be made to give all of the methods which may be used in transferring bees from boxes into movable frame hives. Only a few of the simpler methods will be presented in order to avoid confusion. A more complete treatise on the subject will be found in the Farmers Bulletin No. 961, which may be secured through the Extension service of the O. A. C. or from your county agent.

Method No. 1. To be used when no disease is present, and when the old box hive is small so that the bees are crowded.

Turn the old box hive bottom up, as the combs are not usually fastened to any extent to the bottom. Remove the bottom and on top of the old hive place your new hive body. A temporary bottom should be used between the two hives which will allow direct communication between both, but not to the outside, except to the front for flight. In the new hive place two or three old, dark worker combs, free from disease. The remainder of the hive may be filled up with drawn comb or foundation. The queen prefers to have her brood nest above the flight opening, which is now at the top of the old hive, and she also prefers to lay in old, dark comb. For these reasons she soon should be found laying eggs in the new hive body. When she is found in the new hive body, she should be confined there by placing a queen excluder between the two hives. At the end of three weeks the young brood will be all be emerged and much of the honey will be carried up to the new hive. The old box can then be removed and the wax rendered up and refuse burned.

Method No. 2. To be used when no disease is present and when the old box hive is so large that the bees are not crowded. Remove the old box to one side and invert it. Place the new hive with some drawn comb on the old stand. On top of the new hive place a queen excluder and or this an empty hive body or super. Now remove the bottom from the old box hive and over it place a small inverted box. They then should be shaken on the queen excluder on the new hive. If the queen is in the cluster she will soon be found running over the queen excluder and trying to pass down. If she is to be replaced by a new queen, which is desirable, she is killed and a new queen run into the new hive. If she does not appear in the first cluster continue the pounding until all the bees are out. Now replace the old box on the old stand with the net hive above and the queen excluder between. From now on the procedure is as in Method No. 1.

Method No. 3. To be used when bees are in a hollow tree or in the side of a house and it is impracticable to use either of the other methods. Place a frame of brood and adhering bees with a young queen or queen cell in a hive so that the opening is close to the opening in the tree. Now fit a bee escape over the opening in the tree in such a way that the bees can come out through the escape but are unable to get back into the tree. As a result the bees will drift into the nucleus and in a few weeks or will have a strong colony on the outside, and a very weak one on the inside of the tree. The bees in the tree may be killed by burning sulphur and if there is no disease in that section the entrance can be left open so as to allow the new colony to rob the old comb of its honey. The opening should be closed bee tight as soon as the escape is taken away.

In transferring from boxes where there is a possibility of American foulbrood, method No. 2 could be used, but it would be necessary to use only foundation in the new hive and the old box should be taken away immediately after transferring and destroyed. In fact, unless the colony is very strong, it would be advisable not to try to transfer at all where disease is present, but rather burn the whole thing up and avoid any possibility of spreading the disease to other colonies in the process of transferring.

Puppe of Portland and Frederick Jensen of Portland. The loans were of $3000 each.

Echo, Oregon, May 5, 1922
To the Republican Voters of Umatilla, Union and Morrow Counties:

On behalf of the candidacy of J. T. Hinkle for joint senator from Umatilla, Union and Morrow counties we respectfully submit the following facts:

Mr. Hinkle is a lawyer and irrigation farm expert of twenty years of actual experience and active practice in Umatilla and Morrow counties. He was the first secretary of the Oregon Irrigation Congress, and through several years of hard work built up its membership and made it a power for good in the state. During the sessions of the legislature for 1913 and 1915 he was chairman of the House Irrigation Committee and was a recognized leader and authority on all matters pertaining to irrigation. At the close of the 1913 session Speaker McArthur, now Congressman from this district said:

"J. T. Hinkle is a patient, faithful and consistent worker at all times commanding the full confidence and respect of his fellow members, candid and fearless in debate and a floor leader of remarkable ability."

Hon. Ben Selling, Speaker of the House in 1915 said: "Mr. Hinkle handled his irrigation program with wonderful skill and ability and was loved and trusted by all the members whether agreeing with him or not. His ready wit and sarcasm killed many a freak proposal and his candor and sincerity of explanation saved many deserving bills that would have been otherwise lost."

C. C. Chapman, editor of the Oregon Voter, in his issue of April 15, 1922, says: "Hinkle made an excellent record in the 1913 and 1915 legislatures as representative, and was looked up to as a debater and floor leader of unusual ability."

Hon. Clarence Reams, afterwards U. S. District Attorney, who sat with Mr. Hinkle in the session of 1913 said: "Hinkle's appeal for the desert land settlers of Central Oregon was a classic and unquestionably the ablest oratorical effort of the session."

Fred N. Wallace, President of the Oregon Irrigation Congress, said: "Hinkle saved Central Oregon from ruin and we owe him a debt of gratitude which no time nor service on our part can repay."

Will R. King, Chief Counsel for the U. S. R. S. said: "For a hard job Hinkle is the best man in Oregon."

These are but a few of the many good things said of Mr. Hinkle in the public press by prominent men throughout the State, but sufficient to show his fitness for the position we hope to have him occupy.

In the recent fight for reduction in the Umatilla County Tax Budget Mr. Hinkle took an open position fully in accord with the announced policy of President Harding in the return of the Nation to normalcy, and ably sought the only practical and visible means of tax reduction, namely, the cutting down of county expenses. In this effort he had the full co-operation and backing of the highest taxpayers in the county.

Senator Eberhard has been upon the ways and means committee of the Senate for the past four years in which appropriations of public money have broken all previous records. He says in his public declaration for office that he made an attempt to reduce the expenses but was unsuccessful. His law partner, George T. Cochran, had a direct interest in the appropriation of $30,000.00 for the State Water Board and we do not believe that Senator Eberhard was in a position to suggest any cuts in other appropriations.

We appeal to you to vote for J. T. Hinkle in the coming primary because we can thoroughly vouch for his honesty and integrity and rely upon his promise of some substantial relief from the burdens of taxation, and because we know that he will prove an able and fearless fighter for the things we need in Umatilla, Union and Morrow counties.

Respectfully submitted,
ECHO REPUBLICAN CLUB,
By J. Frank Spinning, Secretary.

Ralph E. Williams,
Republican National Committeeman
Portland, Oregon.

Mutual friends have told me that you are a candidate for re-election as Republican National Committeeman this year, and I am constrained to send just this word of appreciation for your splendid service on the committee all the time that I was chairman. Your election as vice-chairman of the National Committee was the fullest possible evidence of the Committee's gratitude to you and their confidence in your great future usefulness to the committee and to the party. In this I join most heartily. Kindest regards and best wishes all.

Vice Chairman Republican National Committee

Vote X13

To the Republican Voters of Umatilla, Union and Morrow Counties.

I respectfully solicit your support at the primary election on May 19th for the nomination on the Republican ticket for joint senator of the 19th Senatorial District. I have lived in Umatilla county for the past thirty years and as a property owner in each of the counties comprising this district, I have been a faithful worker in the Republican party for the past 25 years and an active and consistent supporter at all times of the nominees of my party. If returned to the legislature I will stand for the same loyal service to my constituents that I rendered in 1913 and 1915. I will have no bills or pet measures of my own and will devote my entire time and attention to the interests and wishes of the people in Umatilla Union and Morrow counties and will give exactly the same service and attention to Union and Morrow that I would give to Umatilla.

By way of platform and public policy I am for a line of retrenchment and tax reduction in both county and state budgets in proportion to the lower prices of labor and farm products. I favor our present plan of highway and market road construction and think it should continue until a good and efficient road system is provided for all parts of the state.

Thanking you in advance for any assistance you can give me in the primaries and with a promise to return my gratitude in service, I am

Respectfully yours,

J. T. Hinkle.
