WEARINGS, TEA HOUNDS AND CAKE EATERS

We wonder if the Rev. J. K. Stewart, of the Northwestern Alumni Association believes the country is going to the demerit bow-wows because he insists the University students are developing into spineless weaklings, tea hounds and cake eaters. "Athletics", says Dr. Stewart, "have become impossible. There is no need to hire coaches so long as this situation continues. Out of 1,700 male students in this University, only twenty two turned out to take part in athletics. Young men are developing into spineless weaklings instead of real men. This condition must stop or the ruin of the university is inevitable."

All very interesting, but perhaps the cause of the trouble may be found in those who conduct the colleges rather than in the young gentlemen who attend them. If college athletes were stripped of their trickery and the students were not compelled to mingle with rough-necks and ignoramuses camouflaged as college men but in reality hired for pay to keep up the athletic standards of the teams, those who are legitimately engaged in rounding out their education might take a deeper interest in their college athletics. The trouble is that college sport has been turned into a business. The professor, in the study room, preaches of high moral standards and then urges the young men to hot foot it over to the college athletic field, there to rah, rah, rah, over the achievements of some husky "student" who, save for his skill on its field, would not get within ten miles of a college campus. When amateur athletics are kept as amateur athletics perhaps the call of the tea cup will not be so enticing.
