A Normal Girl's Philosophy.

It is just one block from high street in a building gray and cold,
Where I spend my time a-learning
So I'll know lots when I'm old.

Just to be a nice old lady,
That's the reason why I slave,
That's the reason, little children,
Why I seek a lonely grave.

Now, don't think that I'm sarcastic,
For it's worth my while, I know,
But its tough luck, let me tell you
Not to have time for a beau.

So, I'll just sit and study
All my sweet, young life away,
For the single sake of showing
Mother dear, "a double A."

CHARLES MARKHAM HURT

BY FALL FROM HAY DERRICK

Dr. McLellan was called to Irrigon last evening about seven o'clock to attend Charles Markham, who experienced a close call from serious injuries, when he fell from a derrick a distance of about forty feet. The derrick broke while Mr. Markham was up at the top repairing it. He was found badly skinned up in several places, but no bones were broken, and when the doctor left there late in the night, he was coming around alright. The doctor was accompanied on the trip by Fred Markham of Echo.

State Market Agent Dept.

Conducted by C. E. Spence

There is one way, and apparently only one present way, for the farmers of Oregon to make their industry permanently profitable, and that is by united effort—by operating as the big industries of our country operate.

There is at present only one way for the consumers of Oregon to buy food and other necessities at fair prices, and that is through the same means—strong cooperative organization.

The growers receive but one-third of the average price paid by consumers—so states the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Between the grower and consumer are too many classes of markets; too much duplicate distribution; too many middle profits, none of which add a dime of value to the products.

If many of the middle expenses and profits were eliminated and divided between the producer and consumer, both would be greatly benefited.

The amazing success of California in controlling farm products from the hour they are harvested until they reach the consumer, is awakening the farmers of the entire nation to the necessity of cooperative marketing to save themselves. One half of the total products of that great state are controlled by cooperative organizations, and the business men of the big cities of the state work hand in hand with the growers to make their organizations powerful.

Oregon is far behind California and Washington in this movement, and its eight organizations do not control enough of the products to have needed market strength.

The purpose of the new state market law is to help the producers of Oregon to organize and control their industry—to enable them to determine the selling price of their products and to maintain prices which will guarantee them living profits.

State associations naturally follow successful local organizations, and national associations are the final step.

The first important work of an association is strong membership. Twenty per cent of a product cannot maintain prices, but 80 per cent is a dominant power.

Management is of greatest importance. Men at the head of the organization must be fitted for the work, experts capable of developing efficient and economical sales machines to market the products at the highest possible price. Then with standardization, established grades and brands, such organizations can win—not so much in controlling the market, but through scientific distribution maintaining prices by eliminating flooding.

Oregon producers must come alive to the absolute necessity of cooper-

IBRIGON NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin left for California Tuesday. They expect to live there for awhile. They sub-leased the place recently leased from Mr. Camp to W. D. Prior who has taken charge of the place.

W. R. Walpole cut some alfalfa back of his office one day last week that measured seven feet and seven inches long and has only had two irrigations this season. How is that for alfalfa?

E. W. Carpenter and F.B. Stanford of Freeewater, Ore., were in Irri-gon on business Friday.

E. R. Merritt of Heppner came up from the city Wednesday and returned Thursday morning, with a load of Association products, cherries, gooseberries and new potatoes.

Miss Fredia Seaman is visiting at Pasco, Wash., this week. She is a active organization in marketing if they would prosper. They must run their own business—it is their only hope.

The business interests of the cities of the state are realizing that the first fundamental for successful business life is based on successful farming. They know they cannot prosper when the producers are going broke. Their success depends on the prosperity of the surrounding country, not on the profits of the broker. They are realizing that they must also cooperate with the farmers for their own interests. They are ready to help. The state Market Agent stands ready to help.

NEED FOR UNIFORMITY IN BUSINESS LAWS

How Collection of Just Debts May Be Prevented by Differing State Statutes.

An effort to bring about better coordination and greater uniformity among state laws dealing with business and banking is being made by the American Bankers Association.

It is pointed out that, although the country is a unit commercially, and citizens of any one state may do business that reaches all over the country, most laws governing business transactions are made by the different states, with application limited to their own local jurisdictions and often in conflict with laws in other states. It is held that state laws should be uniform so that the same transaction will not be subject to different sets of rules according as state laws differ.

To illustrate the disadvantages of conflicting laws, the following illustration is given: Mr. Jones lives in New York where the statute of limitations outlaws a note in six years. He falls into the error of assuming that the same rule prevails everywhere. He visits Maryland and loans $1,000 to his friend, Mr. Smith, taking a promissory note. As the note carries interest Mr. Jones is in no hurry for his money and he believes Smith to be financially responsible. Finally at the end of four years Jones concludes he has loaned Smith the money long enough and seeks to collect the note from him. But Smith can deny liability and point to the statute of Maryland which Jones is surprised to learn outlaws a note after three years.

Changes Recommended
The particular subjects of legislation recommended by the association for enactment by State legislatures during 1923 include uniform acts on negotiable instruments, bills of lad-ing, warehouse receipts, stock transfer, and fiduciaries.

Under the head of laws for better protection of banks in particular transactions are proposed measures dealing with limiting liability on certified check; instruments based on gambling or usurious consideration; time limit on stop payment; payment of state check; adverse claim to bank deposit; payment of forged or raised check; deposits in two names; deposits in trust; competency of bank and corporation notaries; non-payment of check through error; Saturday afternoon bank transactions, and forwarding check direct to payor.

Under the Federal Reserve and foreign banking are recommended laws on membership of state institutions in Federal Reserve System, and foreign banking. Penal laws proposed deal with false statements for credit; slander and libel of bank; checks or drafts without funds, and burglary with explosives.

Governor Pierce announced that he had removed the entire state board of chiropractic examiners and had appointed among the new members Dr. R. C. Ellsworth of Pendleton, who was relieved of his duties on this board by Ben W. Olcott. Dr. Ellsworth succeeds Dr. D. T. Brown of The Dalles, whose term would have expired June 2. Dr. C. A. Johns of Albany has been appointed on the board, to succeed Dr. W. G. Hoffman of McMinnville and Dr. F. T. Notz of Portland has been named to succeed Dr. George Hoeye of Oregon City.

Harry Lester has already purchased himself several cows and will be shipping cream soon. He is going to make immediate returns on his land.

Mrs. Blanche Watkins, with Mrs. Blanche Hummel, motored to Portland the first of the week.

Reports received at the office of the state industrial accident commission during the last 15 days indicate that a large number of the logging and milling industries of the state contemplate withdrawing their contributions to the workmen's compensation act and will seek protection through contracts with private insurance corporations.
