A decision recently rendered by the Supreme Court of New York will have a far reaching influence upon the freedom of the press.

The Buffalo Evening News published matter which the counsel of that city alleged annoyed and harassed certain officials. The city council moved for an order directing editors of the paper to appear and answer regarding articles concerning certain conditions of the city.

Justice Marcus refused the writ, saying: 'I am strongly impressed with the view that it would be unwise to heckle and annoy the press. If every article subjected them to an examination that would harass and annoy them, whenever the subject matter was unpleasant by way of criticism of officials, the public would lose much, even recognizing the license oftentimes used.'

The press is not to be denied the right of criticizing public officials. A community can have no better security than a newspaper which watches the acts of public officers and holds them strictly accountable for all they do.

The newspapers guard our liberties and protect our pocketbooks. The public owes them a great deal and the courts, interpreting the Constitution, do well to recognize this fact.

News

Mrs. James Stewart visited at the W. H. Stewart home several days last week, leaving for Condon Sunday.

Ray Stewart returned home Sunday from Fossil, where he has been visiting his grandmother for the past two months.

vey on Rodent Work, will be in the neighborhood experimenting with rabbit poison to see if he can find anything that will make a better summer poison for these pests.

Mrs. C. D. Follette and daughter, Catherine, left Monday for Walla Walla, Yakima, Seattle and other points, planning to return in about two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Beck and family of Dufur, Ore., were guests at the Highway Inn this week. Mr. Beck will be remembered as the man who drilled the well at the schoolhouse. They are returning to Dufur and plan to ship their things to Boardman and locate here. They were amazed at the growth of the project.

Mrs. R. S. Smith went to Portland Tuesday for a few days' visit.

Nate Macomber left Saturday for a trip into the wilds for deer.

Mrs. Garrett and Mrs. Richardson spent the day Wednesday at the Hereim home.

T. E. Hendrick has sold his home place to John McNamee.

Roy Fugate, U. S. Biological Sur-

George Garrett, Ellis Garrett and Glen motored to Condon last week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Mead and family were guests at the Larsen home for dinner last Sunday evening.

J. C. Ballenger left last week for Seaside, where he will spend a few days with his family.

O. H. Warner has his auto camp grounds in readiness. Water is piped there and wood furnished for a charge of 50 cents per day.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Alzman, who have been living in the F. L. Brown house, moved the fore part of the week to Castle Rock to be nearer his work.

Mrs. Guy Lee is expected here on Tuesday and will visit friends a few days. Mr. Lee will come later and they will go on to Pilot Rock where Mr. Lee will teach this year.

A rabbit drive was held on the East End Sunday and dinner served to the crowd at the Adolf Skobo place. To one who has never seen a rabbit drive, it is most assuredly an interesting occasion.

Miss Crescentia Glatt of Woodburn, Ore., visited here over the weekend at the Allen and Crawford homes. She taught in the 3rd and 4th grades here two years ago. She plans to teach at Aberdeen this year.

Mr. and Mrs. George Garrett of LaGrande, Ore., who visited last week at the Ellis Garrett home, left Monday for Yellowstone park and other points in Wyoming. Freda Richardson accompanied them on the trip.

J. H. Lamley's left Saturday for their home in Knappton, Wash., after spending a month on their ranch. Mr. Lamley made some needed improvements while here, building a small barn and adding a porch to the house.

A. T. Hereim, Jr., celebrated his third birthday Tuesday afternoon, having a few friends in for the afternoon. The little guests were Donald and Virginia Warren, Janet Gorham, Charles, Margaret and Lawrence Smith and Junior Davis. The mothers were also present.

The errors in type made last week reminds us of an article we read recently about the trials of a line-type operator who made many mistakes, but his worst was when a local mentioned the fact that "Mr. So-and-so went to Harrisburg to visit his 'uncleand aunt'".

Mrs. F. F. Kiltz has some peaches which were raised on a seedling tree planted four years ago that are of tremendous size and beautifully colored—some of them measuring ten inches or more around. The pits were thrown out four years ago and this is the first year the trees have had any fruit.

Oregon cane fruits are believed to be attacked by at least three systemic diseases—mosaic, leaf curl, and bramble streak. These ailments are described in a new bulletin by Dr. S. M. Zellar, "Mosaic and other Systemic Diseases of Brambles in Oregon," issued by the experiment station at O. A. C. Prevention and control are explained.

IF THINGS SEEM DULL JUST KEEP ON PADDLING

Here's an old one from the Arlington Bulletin, but it will bear repeating:

One night two frogs fell into a bucket of cream. They paddled continuously for some time in a vain effort to get out. At last one frog said to his companion in distress, "There is no use to keep on paddling." With this he ceased his labors immediately sank and was drowned.

The other frog, notwithstanding his discouragement kept on paddling. In fact he paddled all night and when morning dawned he was surprised to find that he was sitting on an island of butter. His paddling had churned the cream to butter. There was also a good supply of flies on the island for breakfast.

The moral of this little yarn is that when things seem dull, keep on paddling—finally the butter 'will come'.

The Pacific Cooperative Wool Growers of Portland, Oregon, have just opened their lines of graded and original bag wool for the light-weight season. The accumulation consists of wools gathered from the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Northern California. The organization, which is one of the largest strictly cooperative selling organizations in the United States, is composed of 2500 wool growers residing on the Pacific Coast, who grade and market their sales thru their own selling agency in a strictly merchantable condition, directly to mills and reputable wool merchants.

Let me be a little blinder,
To the faults of those about me;
Let me praise a little more;
Let me be when I am weary
Just a little bit more cheery—
Let me serve a little better
Those that I am striving for.

OREGON GRAY WINTER OAT MAKES PREMIER OATMEAL

The Oregon gray winter oat as milled by a number of Oregon millers is unexcelled for rolled oats, declares George R. Hyslop, chief of farm crops, O. A. C. experiment station. The demand for it is increasing and the price paid is the best in western Oregon, but millers are growing concerned for a supply that will meet the demand with oats of the former high quality.

"When eating your rolled oats either fresh or cooked, have you sometimes noticed a small, black kernel with an off flavor?" asks Professor Hyslop. "You thought it was a black oat, but it wasn't. It was buck cheat, a weed that has become badly mixed with some lots of gray oats."

This is a hardy plant that stands the cold and wet better than the oats. And if present will develop a crop where the oats may have failed. This may take place to the extent that some persons think the oat has become cheat, altho this cannot be the fact.

The search for enough good seed to keep the supply going has two phases—extension service certification of fields meeting the requirements, and experiment station analysis and report of samples sent in by growers. The growers who cannot get certified seed are invited to send in fair samples to the college seed laboratory and they will be told which of the various lots is best.

This seed testing is free to growers and other states of the districts and is a means of discovering the best lots for seed. Millers and dealers as well as farmers are eager to see the supply of mill quality oats kept up.

"If a man married a widow by the name of Elizabeth, with two children, what does he get?"
"Give up."

"A second-hand Lizzie and two runabouts."

An essay on brute.
He truk her agen butt no sound. He truk her agen butt no wurd eskapt her lips. Once moor he bitter in the hedd brav thing that she wuz, she did not even wrimpurr. Then enraged beond awl reason at her uncearn if his akshuns, the brute uttered a lo oth and began raining bloo after bloo on her prette little hedd, even skhateking hur in his madnus. Evhen thru this she had remained silent. Butt finelly, not yeing able to stand it any longer, she heaved a rele urkant sputter and burst into flame.

Foryu sea she wuz only a match.

Farewell to Kitty

You can keep all the kisses I gave you; You can keep every golden carress; you can keep all the sweet tricks I taught you, and the jokes that you made me confess. You can keep whatsoever you care to—my loving, the parties you threw; but please send me back what I'm missing—the cold cash I wasted on you.

MORE ABOUT HAY GROWERS
(Began on page one)

Business men are beginning to realize that unless farmers receive more than cost of production for their hay they are in no position to reduce present indebtedness.

There are, however, many growers who are strong for the association FOR ALL THEIR NEIGHBORS, but hope to keep out and reap some of the benefits without joining. Labor unions have for years faced this situation. This group will certainly keep the organization committee on the "anxious seat" for some time yet. The only certain cure for these cases is public sentiment.—North-west Hay Growers Association.
