Mr. Boardman, superintendent of highway construction, is an enthusiast in tree planting. His proposal involves the planting of trees along the roads, and in communities where there are none. Many farm residences in Morrow and other counties are devoid of foliage of any kind. There are miles on miles along the Columbia highway above The Dalles devoid of trees.

Mr. Boardman has arranged with the highway authorities to have water run along the highway wherever possible for the propagation of trees.

He recommends that the locust be used most extensively for this purpose as they are best suited to this climate. It is also suggested that seed from the locusts be planted in well watered places where they will sprout in great numbers, and later be transferred to permanent places.

This a worthy enterprise in which the Boardman School and community may well engage. Trees conserve moisture, furnish a home for birds, serve as wind breaks, and add to scenic charm.

Why not plant the seeds of locust trees? Plant them by the thousands they will sprout by the thousands.

Ten years hence children now in school, and citizens of the community as well may drive through this section and behold a landscape they helped to beautify. Come let's plant trees.

The Irrigon Commercial club and District Farm bureau met in the old school house Saturday evening in joint meeting with Umatilla Commercial club and women's organization to complete final arrangements for sending a delegation to meet with the state highway commission at Portland with requests for some action on the construction of a new bridge at Umatilla over the Umatilla river on the Old Oregon Trail, or what is more commonly known as the Columbia River highway, but lately claimed by Walter Meacham as the Old Oregon Trail as far west as The Dalles.

Geo. C. Howard of 1015 Northwest Bank building was instructed to represent the Irrigon people, and C. F. Knudsen and Mrs. Alice R. Nugent of Umatilla for the west end of Umatilla county. No definite report has been received other than that Mrs. Nugent handled our case very effectively and that she should be thanked for her work. Arrangements for the parade to Pendleton on the 5th was also completed and several cars lined up to go from Irrigon. S. H. Boardman and W. A. Goodwin from Boardman also attended the meeting and Mr. Boardman spoke on the subject of planting trees along the highway wherever irrigation water could be had. This question will come up for further action at the next regular farm bureau meeting.

Grim went over to Kennewick, Wash., Monday with County Agent Morse, returning Tuesday afternoon, to look over the pre-cooling station at that place for the benefit of the melon growers association, and to get other data in connection with the way they handle the business at that place. They report the cost of the cooling station at this time would be prohibitive and will not be constructed at least for the coming season. However, this will not lessen the acreage that will be planted this season as the work is already well under way.

The One That Wins

I was tired of always trying
Just to meet defeat;
I was sick of facing bravely
Problems I would meet;
So I closed my weary eyelids
As in bed I lay,
Trying not to worry over
Troubles of the day.
Sleep, refreshing slumber, warded
Me from earthly woe,
And I drifted to those realms where
All the dreamers go.
There I met a man while wandering
With a snow-white head.
He was one who knew each sorrow
Trouble, fear and dread.
He was one who learnt the secret
Thru his years of strife
Of the living and achieving
In this toilsome life.
"Come," he said, "I see you worry
Of what might befall.
You have troubles; come with me and
You'll forget them all.
Here we are! And they are ready
For the boxing bout.
Looks like Mr. Difficulty
Will knock Percy out.
They shake hands and now they're fighting!
One round's gone!—and two!
Three!—and four, and still it looks like
What I said was true.
But!—a change!—ten counts—and Percy
Has the victory!
I then to the old man turning Questioned "Who is he?"
"Then you're not acquainted with him
And you haven't yet,
Thru your years of life, this manly,
Noble fellow met?
Always winner in Life's contests,"
Truly spoke the seer.
"I will introduce you. It is
Mr. Percy Veer."
