WHY IT PAYS TO PRODUCE FOWLS OF QUALITY

It's the extra pound of flesh on the fowl that cheapens production costs and commands a premium price for the poultryman. According to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation the extra pound can be put on for from 5 to 7 cents, which increases the value of each pound to the consumer by making the entire carcass more plump and attractive, so it commands a fancy price over lighter birds. Heavy hens sell from 5 to 11 cents more than light hens. It's true all down the line—turkeys, ducks, capons, hens and young frys—the extra pound brings the extra dollar.

Over a period of three years the New York market shows heavy fresh-killed milk-fed fowls or hens weighing 5 pounds or over to average from 4 to 11 cents higher per pound than the light fowls weighing 3 pounds. The five-year average for the month of September shows the heavy fowls to average 9 cents over the light weight, the margin broadening during October and November, reaching its height in December, when the heavy fowls range to 11 cents a pound over the light weights.

The average weight of the ordinary fowl as it comes from the farm is 3 3/4 to 4 pounds. The poultryman with the eye for business will add an extra pound or so and receive the top prices. The farmer who takes thin, underfed poultry to market is beating himself.

IRRIGON NEWS ITEMS

Miss McCoy, who has been on her vacation in Portland and at Corvallis, Oregon, has returned and is at her work in the postoffice and clerking in Wadsworth's store. Miss Nellie Mathaler came back with her for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bell motored over from Seattle the first of the week and are visitors at his mother's for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Campbell are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Caldwell this week. Mr. Campbell is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell. They drove up from the valley Wednesday.

The Association is moving new potatoes quite freely this week. Several truck loads have been sent out and one car loaded for Portland besides less than car load freight and express shipments daily. The potato crop is good this year but price has dropped to a low level.

Mr. Faulk stopped off at Irrigon for a day on his way home Tuesday and was the guest of C. E. Glasgow. He hopes to settle down in Irrigon when he gets enough money ahead working for the railroad to stock up his place.

Few scattering watermelons should be ripe before another week passes. Cantaloupes, however are not making quite so well but promise a good crop beginning about 25th. Already orders have been pouring in requesting shipments be made soon as first ones come on.

Mrs. H. C. Wolfe, son Glen and daughter Hazel went to Portland for a short visit with her mother, Mrs. John Wagner, Sunday. Mr. Wolfe will go later and all motor back.

THE TREND IN FARM LABOR SUPPLY AND DEMAND

Farmers are cutting down hired help. The demand is estimated at only 80 per cent of normal as compared with 95 per cent a year ago, according to a statement issued by the Washington office of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation based on data from government sources. The low purchasing power of farm products has forced the farmer to rearrange his operations. He is coming to depend largely on his own and his family's labor. In many cases the hired man is being dispensed with entirely.

Farm help costs more today than at any other time in the past sixty-one years. Wages demanded are higher than a year ago and rates for 1923 averaged above all preceding years. The peak year in the wage scale was in 1920. That year labor was scarce. According to the accompanying chart, in June of 1920 the supply was but 73 per cent of normal, while the demand was 105 per cent of normal. During the latter half of 1920 and through the first six months of 1921, the labor supply curve took a sudden upward swing, and in June of 1921 it was 95 per cent of normal, while demand had dropped to 87 per cent. Until in June of 1922 the supply curve continued to rise, reaching its height at 105 per cent of normal, while the demand was but 80 per cent normal.

With the beginning of 1923 city labor wages improved. Large industrial centers drew farm help cityward. Farmers had to pay wages out of proportion to what the farm could earn to hold their men. In June of 1923 the demand saw 95 per cent of normal, while the supply curve was sagging to 84 per cent. The latter half of the year demand lessened, due to excessive labor costs and the increasing supply. This year demand has made still further decline, until now it is but 81 per cent of normal, while labor supply, which is gradually increasing, is estimated around 80 per cent.
