Boos, who was born in Tientsin of German parents, lived in China for nearly 20 years and says Chinese youths are enthusiastic about American sports and games. He learned to play soccer while in school at Tientsin, and became a member of the Pro-squad in his freshman year. Now he is classed as one of the best players in American college ranks.

Right Selection of Exhibits for Fair

Uniformity, Color and Quality Essential Factors.

The importance of proper selection of fair exhibits cannot be overemphasized. First of all, the exhibitor should know how to select and pack his fruit and vegetables, if he expects to be a strong competitor for the prizes.

Proper selection of exhibit fruit and vegetables should begin with a thorough knowledge of the varieties and the requirements for which they are selected. Let us say we are selecting a plate of Commercial No. 1 Ben Davis apples, that will range 2 1/2 inches and up in diameter. It is generally the best plan to select a little above the average in size for the variety, should large, oversized specimens be picked. The individual specimen in this case should be the true shape and color of the Ben Davis variety. It should be free from all insect stings and injury, and should contain no evidence of any disease or physical defect. In other words, the specimen should be as near perfect as possible.

In starting out, select specimens of fruits and vegetables that conform as nearly to the perfect type as possible. Then pick all of the specimens for exhibit purposes as nearly alike as possible in size, color and shape, keeping in mind that when the judge takes your vegetables and fruits he considers uniformity, color, quality and freedom from blemish.

Federal Grades Favored for Apples in Barrels

United States grades for barreled apples recommended in 1923 and adopted as the official grades in a number of states producing barreled apples including Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, West Virginia, New Jersey and North and South Carolina, have been promulgated by the secretary of agriculture under the provisions of the food products inspection law as the official grades for federal inspection at shipping point and in the receiving markets.

At the last session of the New York state legislature an amendment was made to the state apple-grading law which will make it possible for New York growers and shippers to use the federal grades in lieu of the New York state grades.

The specifications of the grades remain substantially the same with the exception that the color requirements for Baldwin and Black Twig have been fixed at 33 per cent for United States fancy and 15 per cent for United States No. 1. This color must be good color and characteristic of the variety.

Copies of the grades may be obtained free upon request to the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

"Chevon" Is Name Given to Designate Goat Meat

Hereafter, if the efforts of a number of organizations and individuals have the desired effect, goat meat will be designated by a special name which will be comparable to pork, beef and mutton. The name selected by the goat-raising interests in the Southwest is "chevon." In reply to requests for approval of this new name, the United States Department of Agriculture has stated that there seems to be no reason why this name should not be adopted and generally applied to the meat of this domestic animal, and it, therefore, approves the name "chevon."

The word "chevon" was created after long consideration of many suggestions, by organizations representing the principal Angora-goat producing region. It was made by combining parts of two French words, "chevre," meaning goat, and "mouton," meaning mutton. In other words, "chevon" means goat mutton.

Farm Hint

You are swapping dimes for dollars when you plant legumes.

Blood will tell, and that's why so many farm seeds fall in life.

The best factory for converting farm roughage into cash products is the dairy cow.

If you want to put the unity in community you must help your neighbor push things.

Corn production for the United States is now 10 per cent less per capita than it was 30 years ago.

A million and a half farmers tried co-operative marketing methods in 1923. "There's millions in it."

Why leave land to "rest" for improved yields when it will improve vastly more if you make it "work" with a growing legume?

Over 600,000 farm boys and girls in the United States in 1923 learned through club work how to beat dad and mother at their own business.

Hessian fly prevention is dependent primarily on good farm management and co-operation. Early plowing, keeping down volunteer wheat, good seed bed preparation, planting on a safe date, and the community co-operation are effective measures.

GOLDEN RULE DAY TO AID NEAR EAST

Five Million Dollars Needed for Refugee Orphans Under American Care.

23 NATIONS JOIN OBSERVANCE

By W. B. HINSON, D. D. Oregon Chairman Near East Relief and L. S. BOOTH, Western Washington Chairman

With the co-operation of civic and religious leaders throughout the United States, the Near East Relief has inaugurated its campaign for the second observance of International Golden Rule Sunday on December 7. The aim is to raise funds to provide during the coming year for 100,000 orphan children under American care in Bible Lands. More than five million dollars is the minimum needed.

Setting aside of one day each year in honor of the Golden Rule as a guide to individual, national and international life, is an American idea which has been approved and adopted by twenty-three nations. The day, December 7th, will be observed throughout Europe and in many non-European countries, such as Japan, Korea and Palestine.

Four annual holidays — Christmas, New Year, Eastern and Armistice Day — have heretofore been celebrated internationally. A fifth has now been added to the list. The movement was started in America by the Near East Relief as a new, striking and intensive method of raising funds for the feeding of the children in American orphanages in Bible Lands.

On this day—December 7—Americans are asked to eat a dinner of soup, bread and stew, or of corn grits and condensed milk, or of rice, macaroni and cocoa. As they eat this novel meal, they are asked to remember that, coarse as it is, it is all that holds body and soul together for the orphaned boys and girls overseas, to whom the elemental factor of hunger is each day's vital problem.

People here are reminded that, however poor the fare may seem, they can at least have two bowls of soup if they like, and two slices of bread. As they finish their second serving, they are asked to remember that the orphan wards of the Near East Relief can have only one serving, for there is not enough to allow more. They are asked to remember that these children exist on such a diet 365 days out of each year, and they will not live to become men and women unless more bread and more soup are provided.

Those who eat the Golden Rule dinner will not lack distinguished company. Such a meal will be served on Sunday in the homes of kings, prime ministers and presidents.

The Golden Rule is a universal creed. It is a common denominator of all religious and social welfare organizations. It is a test of our religion and our sincerity. Golden Rule Sunday is a day for personal stock-taking, for measuring our lives by a universally accepted standard of life to ascertain how nearly we have attained to an ideal. It is a day of plain living and high thinking.

The dinner, however, is not an end in itself. It is an occasion, in the words of President Coolidge, "for bringing to the minds of those who are prosperous the charitable requirements of those who are in adversity."

On Golden Rule Sunday the citizens of all nations will be seated figuratively at the same table, partaking liberally of the same food, thinking the same thoughts and entering into a new realization of the brotherhood of mankind.

Full information, with sample menus and suggestions for the observance of the day, will be furnished by the Near East Relief, Portland or Seattle.

ANCIENT CHANT REVIVED

Beirut, Syria.—For many centuries, children in Palestine have used, for grace before meals, a chant which has been handed down from early church fathers. The chant survives today as a thrice-daily exercise in all orphanages of the Near East Relief. Several thousand copies of words and music have been sent to America for use in the observance of Golden Rule Sunday on December 7.

Boardman Utellem

Edited by the Students of the Boardman High School — FOURTH YEAR, 1924-1925 — FRIDAY DECEMBER 19, 1924

Santa Claus & Treat Jerry Goodwill Parents, friends and all are invited to be present.

People of the Boardman Community will probably be interested in knowing that the Boardman grammar grades, five, six, seven and eight will hearken back to the old English custom of caroling. On the last Tuesday before the Christmas holiday listen for them because the community is so large it will be impossible to sing at every home but if you will place a light in your window they will try to stop, your window they will try to stop.

If there is anyone who would be so kind as to offer their car for the transportation of these children leave word with Miss Aldrich and she will appreciate it.

Friday evening the eighth grade entertained the victorious seventh grade spelling team and members of the faculty. The program which was conducted by Ivey Olson and Helen Boardman, proved to be a riot of fun. At the conclusion of the program a fine luncheon was served.

Place cards and invitations which were made by the Eighth grade art class, added much to the holiday spirit. An attractive centerpiece consisted of a Christmas tree flanked by Santa Claus and his reindeer with a sled load of mistletoe.

The seventh grade spelling team spelled their way to victory, but have been challenged to another contest by the defeated eighth grade. This contest will take place after the holidays. The victorious team consists of Mildred Beck, Borden Beck, Wanda Gilbreth, Lawrence Beck, Alvie Mefford, and Arthur Schaffer.

Oregon history is being enjoyed by the eighth grade. Maps are being made of the routes of immigrant travel, and early exploration. Several members of the class who were fortunate in viewing the "Covered Wagon" have made reports of interest. Many Oregonians know too little of our early history, which is one of the most absorbing topics to be found anywhere. The class must take the state examinations in this subject.

The R. H. S. boys basketball team made a flying trip to Hermiston on last Tuesday to indulge in a game of basket ball. The local team put up a hard battle and had the score tied 12 to 12 at the end of the first half. The Hermiston boys surged ahead in the 3rd quarter bringing the score up 22 to 12. Then Boardman made her last stand in the fourth quarter, outplaying her opponents but unable to overcome the Hermiston lead before the final whistle and the game ended 26 to 19.

President James Howell called a meeting of the Boardman Student Body last Friday. The reports of the standing committees were heard and accepted and after the meeting adjourned, Blanche Imus, vice president, took the chair and the student body and a few visitors enjoyed the little afternoon program put on by the High School students.

The boys basketball team are to play Lexington on Friday December 19th. Since they have had two games the boys feel that the game will be fast and close. The Boardman team is going better this year than at any previous year.

After dinner, speech no. 1, on Salesmanship.

As I stand before you I want you to know I have picked one of the broadest of subjects. It is salesmanship. This word Salesmanship reminds me of a little story I heard a few days ago, it goes something like this. Auto demonstrator: (who has been trying for three hours to sell the car). Now I will throw in the clutch.

Uncle Eben: I'll take her then, I knew if I held off long enough you'd throw in something extra.

Well that is a simple illustration of salesmanship. The object is to make a person believe he wants what you have to sell him and to convince him that he needs it and should purchase it from you.

A person sells many things in common life, just as I am now doing. I am selling you what I want to say since this is my only opportunity, and you would be very impolite to leave the room during my talk.

We sell in this life our services as labors or our vocations.

Our friends who have prepared this wonderful banquet sold us their capabilities as well as the food. They have showed us how and how good they could prepare and present a banquet.

The fact that hundreds of examples of salesmanship can be given proves that it is a big word.

In our schools we are learning the art of salesmanship which will prove a very valuable thing for us in our later life. In closing I wish to say that I hope I've sold you something you will not forget. This speech reminds me of a little story like this.

Biology Prof. (to lazy student)—Name a parasite?

Student: Me.

Prof: Yes but name another one.

By Edward McCellan, Eng. 7.

When I was a Freshman I am really unprepared to give a speech and being thus taken by surprise I am at a loss just what to say like the business man whose wife came to visit him at his office one day. She regarded his pretty young stenographer with a baleful eye.

You told me your stenographer was an old maid, she accused.

The husband at a loss, faltered in his reply.

Yes, but she's sick today and sent her grandchild in her place.

When I was a Freshman, I honestly think I lived in continued dread, that I might have to get up and talk or recite something before the whole school, and even in just our own classes when the teacher asked me a question even if I did know the answer I was often afraid to say it.

Maybe the rest of you who are present have never felt this way, but if you have I certainly sympathize with you.

One thing I was most afraid of was Student-body meetings, and I always tried to make myself as small as was possible for fear they would ask me to get up and make a motion. Another was written themes and having to get up in class and read my own and also I was greatly opposed to giving speeches, oral reports or reciting poetry and I was so nervous and scared I would tremble so I could hardly stand up, my voice would falter and I often forgot over half I wanted to say.

The reason for my cowardice when I was a freshman, was, I had until entering high school attended a small school numbering altogether about ten pupils and in my last four years, there were but two in my grade, so naturally I was about lost when I became a green little Freshman in Boardman high school, even tho it was a small high school compared to many others.

My cowardliness of written themes or giving talks often led me into having to give a longer and harder one the next day so I was something like the old farmer and his wife visiting the menagerie.

When they halted before the Hippopotamus cage he remarked.

Darned curus fish aint it Ma? That ain't a fish, the wife announced, that's a reptile.

Thus the argument began, it progressed until she belatedly the husband with her umbrella.

The old man dodged and ran, with his wife in pursuit, the trainer had just opened the door of the lions' cage, and the farmer popped in. He crowded in behind the largest lion and peered over its shoulder fearfully at his wife, who, on the other side of the bars shook her umbrella furiously.

"Coward", she shouted, "Coward."

Eugene Cummins who had a very serious operation at St. Anthony's in Pendleton returned home last week and is convalescing at his home on the west end.

A. Anderson of Oregon City came on last Sunday for a few days visit at the Shobe homes and also to look after his farming interests. He owns the land adjoining the sheep camp of Brady Bros.

Arthur Mefford who has been at Vernonia for several months returned home last week for the holidays. Albert Mefford who has been working at Redmond for some time is also home.

George Agee and Chas. Barnes are out on the highway crews.

J. Mullers of the East End have purchased an Overland car.

Mrs. Jennie Degendorffer and Miss Louise Sears motored to Arlington on last Saturday afternoon.
