Farmers Looking For Reasonable Profits
 The industrial prospects in the country at the present time are not as good as might be expected, altho the farming prospects are better than for several years. It is still the slow process of readjustment after the World war. Industry was highly organized and resisted the downward tendency longer than the loosely organized agriculture. But the social laws of economics, as long as society is organized on a capitalistic basis, will in the end have their way whether or no, and gradually the unfair spread between the things the farmers buy and the produce the farmers sell is being restored. Sensible farmers do not look for a return to the abnormal prosperity of 1917 to 1919 but they are planning on being able in the next few years to operate their ranches at a reasonable margin of profit under careful management.

The most unexplainable thing in the world is the mental complex of the man who always opposes any change or progress. Had his type had its way with the human race we would still be throwing coconuts at each other. Look at the progress we have made today, with gas bombs full of powder instead of milk.

The day after the death of Senator Robert M. La Follette, the United States District Court declared the oil leases secured from the government by the Sinclair interests to be legal. A rather happy coincidence for those who believe that organized society exists primarily to provide safe and comfortable means of plundering.

OREGON NEWS ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Brief Resume of Happenings of the Week Collected for Our Readers.

The Tillamook county fair will be held September 22, 23, 24 and 25.

The state of Oregon has 900 miles of paved roads and 2000 miles of macadam roads, according to Roy Klein, secretary of the state highway commission.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kay Coshow, 59, wife of Oliver P. Coshow, associate justice of the state supreme court, died at her home in Salem following a stroke of paralysis.

The earwig invasion into Tillamook county is now under control, according to W. D. Pine, county agent, who has been active recently in stamping out the pest.

Members of the Pacific division of the American Phytopathological society held their annual meeting at the Oregon agricultural college at Corvallis this week.

Contracts were awarded to A. L. Ritchie, contractor, for the construction of the new Smith Packing company plant at Baker, which will be erected at a cost of $25,000.

More than 2000 acres of land in the Liberty, Franklin and Creswell districts have been worked over with poisoned barley in the campaign against gray diggers in Lane county.

The American Mathematical society held a two-day annual convention at the University of Oregon at Eugene. Seattle was chosen as the meeting place for the convention next summer.

Out of eight graduates from the Oregon state school for the deaf at Salem this year four were successful in obtaining averages which entitled them to enter Gallaudet college at Washington.

The state board of control has awarded the general construction contract for a new pavilion at the state tuberculosis hospital to the Cherry City Construction company. The bid was $18,015.

The start of the forest fire season in the timber of central Oregon was marked by a blaze which swept over approximately 50 acres of timber land on the Brooks-Scanlon holdings south east of Bend.

Dr. Hans Leonhartsberger, federal officer in the public health service at Vienna, Austria, is in Salem to conduct a series of investigations in connection with the Marion county health demonstration.

M. S. (Captain Kidd) Taylor of the Coos Bay Pirates was elected president of the Oregon Hospitality clubs at the annual convention at Salem. A. R. Allen of Grants Pass was elected vice-president.

One hundred and fourteen mills reporting to the West Coast Lumbermen's association for the week ending June 13, manufactured 109,469,345 feet of lumber; sold 109,780,573 feet, and shipped 114,700,690 feet.

The state highway commission has announced that a temporary bridge has been constructed over the Chetco river at Brookings, Curry county, and is now open for traffic. The old bridge collapsed a few weeks ago.

A total registration of 3371 regularly enrolled students with a grand total of 4551, including summer session and short courses, is reported by the registrar of the Oregon agricultural college for the school year just closed.

A contract under which the state fish commission was to employ Hugh Mitchell, director of hatcheries, for four years at a monthly salary of $350, is invalid, according to a legal opinion handed down by the attorney-general.

The Cascades were pierced by a 3650-foot tunnel Friday when two crews of workers met under the summit of the mountains near the north west end of Odell lake, completing the longest tunnel of the Eugene-Klamath Falls line.

Mayor Keizer of North Bend refuses to accept the resignation of Chief of Police Jackson, who, he says, is too valuable a man for the city to lose. Chief Jackson resigned when the city council ordered a reduction in his allowance for automobile upkeep.

The first lookouts in the Siuslaw national forest for the season were instructed to take their posts by Ralph S. Shelley, supervisor of the forest. A new lookout tower is being built on Belle mountain in Tillamook county and a new telephone line is being built to the station.

Start of construction work on the extension of the Oregon Trunk line from Bend south to Klamath Falls only awaits permission from the Interstate commerce commission. W. F. Turner, president of the Spokane, Portland & Seattle railway, told members of the city council of Bend.

A reduction of 2 per cent in insurance rates in The Dalles has been ordered by the Oregon rating bureau as a result of the installation of a new pumping plant at the city well. The new plant trebles the present city water supply, being capable of furnishing 7,000,000 gallons of water a day.

A total of 526 sea lion scalps, the largest number ever turned over by an independent hunter, were deposited with Fish Commissioner Eakin at Astoria by F. J. Blackerby of Portland, who has spent the spring months hunting sea lions along the Oregon coast from Heceta Head to Tillamook. At $5 a scalp Blackerby has realized some $2630 by his spring hunting.

Receipts of the public service commission from the gross earnings tax on public utilities are reduced nearly 50 per cent under the interpretation of the law made by Attorney-General Van Winkle. The opinion holds that the tax applies only to purely intrastate business and that any income of the utilities from interstate business having an origin in Oregon cannot be taxed.

Governor Pierce will be asked to call a special session of the Oregon legislature to further the Roosevelt highway. The movement was started at a meeting of the North Bend chamber of commerce, when a resolution was adopted to that effect. Other bodies along the route of the Roosevelt highway will be asked to join in the resolution asking the governor for the session.

The public service commission has requested the Interstate commerce commission to suspend tariffs already filed proposing to increase interstate freight rates on fresh fruit and vegetable shipments approximately 25 per cent. The proposed new rates would apply particularly to the states of Oregon, Washington and California. Unless suspended the rates would become effective on July 9.

Frank W. Brown, editor of the Idaho State Journal at Pocatello, has been chosen principal speaker for the Fourth of July celebration at Baker. The celebration will be centered about the dedication and unveiling of an imposing Old Oregon Trail monument valued at $1000. The monument will be erected in postoffice square and has been presented to the city by the American Legion post of Baker.

Representatives of the Tumalo irrigation district appeared before the state securities commission at Salem and urged extension for two years of state guarantees of interest on $650,000 bonds, release of liens on unfulfilled contracts and other less important concessions. Liens on delinquent contracts aggregate approximately $45,000. In return for these concessions the settlers, who bought water under the Carey act, agree to pay 40 per cent instead of 25 per cent for the additional water necessary in developing the new project.

No certificate of registration of any motor vehicle, or number plates therefor, whether original issues or duplicates, will be issued by the secretary of state after July 1, unless the applicant shall at the same time he applies for a motor vehicle license make application for and be granted an official certificate of title to such machine, or shall furnish satisfactory evidence that such a certificate has been previously issued. This was announced by Sam A. Koser, secretary of state, in connection with the administration of the so-called motor vehicle title of registration law enacted at the last session of the legislature. The law becomes effective on July 1.
