President Wilson is asked to make his reply before Tuesday, when the presidents of twenty-four international unions of the steel industry will be here to decide upon the future action of their organizations. The telegram declares that while the men have refrained from striking so far, they are indignant and that a strike now might endanger the whole structure which Wilson is building up for the adjustment of industry disputes.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—Crowds which cheered, waved flags and struggled to break through the police lines and swarm about his automobile, greeted President Wilson here today. The tremendous shouts of welcome were continuous all the way from the outskirts of the city, where the presidential special stopped, to the hotel where President and Mrs. Wilson went for a short rest before making his speech at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

The president smiled continually as he flourished his hat in response, sometimes standing up in the automobile to bow his appreciation.

In addition to the people on the sidewalks along the route every window was filled and many were on the roofs. An automobile bearing a huge placard demanding the lifting of the wartime prohibition ban dodged down the side streets and confronted the president at a number of points. It was filled with women, shrilly cheering, and waving banners.

Several women dodged the police and ran alongside the president's machine to get snapshots of Mrs. Wilson, begging her to "look this way please."

The reception at St. Louis was the most enthusiastic received since the president left Washington. Wilson was greeted with hand-clapping, shouts and ear piercing rebel yells, which lasted several minutes when he entered the dining room of the hotel, which was jammed to the windows.

Rising to speak, he was greeted with three cheers for "The benefactor of the world."

The president declared that party politics has no place in the treaty discussions and that he was glad to hear the chairman say, "Politics is adjourned." He said criticism of the treaty was directed at mere details, incidents of the "great human document."

"The central object of the treaty is to establish the independence and protect the integrity of the weak peoples of the world. I hear some gentlemen who are themselves incapable of altruistic purposes say 'ah, but that is altruistic. It is not our business to take care of the weak nations of the world.'"

"No, but it is our business to prevent war and if we do not take care of the weak nations of the world, there will be war."

"Almost contemptible quitters," is the epithet President Wilson applied to those refusing to go through with the American program to end all wars, which the president believes can be accomplished by means of the League of Nations.

He bitterly denounced those who seek to prevent the United States from joining the league.

Discussing the men who declare that the United States should not go to war to "protect every little nation in the world," the president said, "Let them show me how they would keep out of war by not protecting them. Let them show me how they can prove that having gone into an enterprise, they are not most contemptible quitters if they don't see the game through."

"They joined with the rest of us in a profession of fine purpose when we went into the war. They professed to go in to see that nobody after Germany's defeat, should repeat the experiment that Germany tried."

Outburst after outburst of cheering punctuated Wilson's attacks on the treaty foes. He spoke with great vigor, sticking out his jaw and pounding on the rail for emphasis.

WILL SUBMIT TO ALLIED DEMAND

(By the United Press)

"Demagogue" Shouts Sherman

(By the United Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—President Wilson's speeches of his first day's tour drew the fire of opponents of the League of Nations in the senate today.

Senator Sherman opened the attack in a brief speech denouncing the president as a demagogue and accusing him of "contemptuous disregard" of the government.

He referred to the president's declaration that the international labor conference provided for by the peace treaty would be held in Washington whether or not the senate ratified the peace treaty.

"Have the American people quit electing presidents and begun to elect kings?" he asked, adding, "Public officials have been impeached for less flagrant violation of the laws of their country than this."

"This paragraph of the president's address is 100 per cent demagogical," declared Senator Sherman. "It is an appeal to lawlessness, a covert invitation to the ever present restless and dissatisfied element to demand what they will. The president has already played with fire-brands sufficiently to know the danger," he concluded.

International Justice Court Is Urged by Lansing

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—International justice, as interpreted and applied by an impartial court, can do more to prevent future wars than any other agency, single or collective. This is the note sounded repeatedly in an address of Secretary Lansing to members of the American Bar association here today.

The secretary advocated establishment of international tribunals, or tribunals of justice with The Hague court as a foundation and a conciliatory body of legal principles.

May Make Wine For Home Use

Would Put Ban On Speaking German

(Special to The Tidings)
ALBANY, Sept. 5.—Conversations in the German language on the streets or in business houses will become decidedly unpopular if other posts of the state organization of the American Legion concur in the resolution passed by the local post at its last meeting, to the effect that members hearing such conversations shall remind the speakers that they are in the United States and should use the language of the country.

ONE WAGON LOAD OF BERRIES BRINGS $2300

NEWBERG, Ore., Sept. 5.—A single wagon load of dried black cap raspberries was brought to market a few days ago by W. T. West & Son, who live east of this city, for which a check of $2300 was obtained from a local buyer. The load contained 3500 pounds of the dried fruit. These berries were picked and dried only after $2200 of the fruit had been picked and sold for canning purposes, making a total of $4500 from berries planted between the rows of a young 11-acre Italian prune orchard. The prunes trees are carrying a good load of fruit which, when harvested at prevailing prices, will probably bring the total returns from his particular tract to $700 per acre.

(By the United Press)
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—President Wilson, driving through the territory of the opposition senators in his campaign for ratification of the peace treaty, arrived here early today, ready to make two speeches. The president "has his fighting clothes on," being ready for a rough and tumble verbal tussle with the opponents of the proposed peace settlement.

This change of tactics on the president's part was first noticeable at Indianapolis last night where he told those resisting the treaty to "put up or shut up;" to keep quiet unless they have a better plan than he believes his to be for preserving the world's peace.

In effect he tells his audience: "Your senators do not understand this document, so I am going to explain it to you; then you can tell your senators how to vote on it." This is the object of his journey.

President Wilson is emphatic in his contention that nations which violate the League of Nations rules can be forced to submit without the sacrifice of a single life in warfare.

He thinks this can be accomplished by the application of a boycott, which would hermetically seal the offending power, preventing all intercourse with it.

This, he said, is the "terrible weapon," which is provided under the covenant.

The president will develop his line of argument as he moves westward. His advisers say that he is not even using shorthand notes now, speaking what comes into his mind as he faces each crowd.

ANYONE CAN "JAZZ," ONLY EXPERTS WALTZ

LONDON.—The "jazz" is metaphorically, if not literally on its last legs here, in the opinion of Charles D'Albert, secretary of the Imperial Society of Dance Teachers, who believes that the old waltz is coming back. He declares the "fox trot" is only popular because anyone can do it, while it takes a born waltzer to be graceful in that dance.

Officers Received No Better Treatment than Enlisted Men

(By the United Press)
PARIS, Sept. 5.—That nine soldiers of the American Expeditionary Forces were hanged and one shot for criminal offenses during the war was revealed today at the investigation of A. E. F. courtmartial by the congressional committee inquiring into war expenditures.

Two of the hangings were for murder and seven for rape, of whom six were negroes. One execution was for desertion.

Murder trials totaled 110, resulting in 62 convictions. One-fifth of all the general courtmartial were for officers and the rest for enlisted men and welfare workers. Most of the officers were charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct. The investigation failed to establish that officers received any more lenient treatment than the enlisted men.

Convictions resulted in 53 per cent of the officers' cases which went to trial, while 77 per cent of the men tried were found guilty. Only one conscientious objector was tried.
