ASHLAND DAILY TRIBUNE

ARTISTS DEPICT FIELDS OF FIRE

During the world war many artists have seen in their fields of fire many scenes which have given them inspiration

that has been channeled into their art work. Posters and prints, in all forms of art, have been issued, as well as in many different methods of representation.

The Ashland Daily Tribune, in cooperation with the Ashland Art League, is to present a series of posters and prints by these artists. These portraits will be in color and will be published in the Daily Tribune.

It is hoped that these posters and prints will be of interest to our readers and that they will encourage us to continue this project.
