ADVERTISING IS THE PROUD THAT WILL STIR TO LIFE THE DEADENED HOPE OF A DEPRESSED BUSINESS.

MAKING THE PUBLIC THINK

Very few towns or cities would agree today to remain just as they are until 1925. Streets will be paved, lighted, cleaned and regulated better in 1925 than now; schools will more nearly meet the needs of real life; factories will grow; population will multiply; and citizens will learn, in increasing numbers, that business exists because there are human wants that must be served. In any normal American city some of these changes will take place whether anybody consciously looks after the public interest or not. The upward push of enterprising individuals will achieve some general advance. But, if there is to be progress without discouraging delays, the active business men of the city must organize TO MAKE THE PUBLIC THINK.

This city in 1925 will look and be what the average business man of today wishes. Mind you, the city will not make the progress that one or two broad-visioned men can imagine. Far-sighted leaders are held back by the indifference and ignorance of individuals who can't see. A city is like a fleet of warships—the progress of the entire fleet is restricted to the speed of the slowest monitor. So it is necessary for the men who want progress—who want to see the prosperity and conveniences of 1925 brought into use as early as possible instead of as late as possible—to organize to the end that "the slowest monitor" may be speeded up and the whole community carried forward.

In more than twenty-five hundred American towns and cities the business and professional men have banded themselves together in a more or less intelligent effort to ascertain what things will advantage the community, and, having fixed upon the things worth while, to seek and strive for them unitedly.

Some of these community organizations have been in exist-

Far West Full of Olympic Material

By H. Wilfred Maloney
 (Track and Field Coach, Leland Stanford Junior University.)
 (Written for the United Press.)
 Soon the cream of America's athletes will be on their way across the ocean heading for Antwerp, Belgium, to participate for athletic supremacy at the Seventh Olympiad.

The country from East to West will have been combed to gather in the best athletic blood of the nation.
 Just what quota will the Far West contribute to this small army?
 Most of the athletic talent available is quite young, yet full of promise. Athletes represent the young crop, so to speak, that will probably not mature fully until the Olympic of 1924. Let us, for a moment, glance over this young athletic blood, which has, primarily because of the ideal climate of California, matured sufficiently to be considered for a place on the Olympic track and field team.

Sprints: Charles W. Paddock, University of Southern California; winner of the 100 and 200 meter dashes at the inter-allied games, defeating Eddie Teschener and Sol Butler, of the U. S., and Howard of Canada, tying the world's record in the 200-m., time 21 1/2 seconds, made by Ralph Craig at the Olympic games in 1912.

Morris M. Kirksey, Stanford University and Olympic club of San Francisco; All Service meet in London, September, 1918, defeating Donaldson, Meers, and Howard, world's champion professional sprinters.
 Henry Williams, Spokane A. C.; Far Western 100 yard champion, 1916, defeating Howard Drew in 9 4-5 seconds; winner 220 Senior national championship, 1919, defeating Loren Murchison and William Hayes. Time, 21 4-5 seconds.

Ken Lilly, Stanford university; all-round athlete, Varsity man in football, baseball, and basketball; good any time for 10-10 in 100 yards.
 Hurdles: Jud House, Stanford university; holds world's scholastic record of 23 4-5 seconds in the low; third place to Simpson 24, R. I.E.
