Elk Slaying Protested

SALEM.—W. A. Taylor of Maclay, who was partly responsible for the liberation of a band of elk on the North Santiam river, has written a letter to Governor O'Leary protesting against killing the animals. Mr. Taylor said in his letter to the executive that the animals had caused no material damage to ranch owners in the Santiam country, and that the protest was merely a pretense under which the complainants hoped they would be allowed to slaughter the elk.

TINY TOTS BURLGARS

NEW YORK.—Two of the youngest girl burglars on record appeared in police court in Brooklyn when two sisters, aged 11 and 6, pleaded guilty to a charge of juvenile delinquency. They were arrested in a Brooklyn home after they were alleged to have forced an entry and packed $1000 worth of silverware and jewelry in a suitcase.

STILL RAIDED BY SHERIFF

HEPPNER.—The biggest moon-shipping plant ever discovered in Eastern Oregon was raided by Sheriff George McDuffey when Ben Moore of Heppner and Chester Saling of Hardman were arrested at their camp in a mountain forest in the southwestern corner of Morrow county. The men were asleep in their tent when the officers appeared.

A steam boiler weighing 600 pounds furnished steam for cooking the mash. Wooden vats containing 600 gallons of mash ready for the still, and several gallons of whisky were found.

The officers say that the mash destroyed would have made at least 400 gallons of moonshine, which at the wholesale price of $40 a gallon, would have had a value of $16,000. When arraigned before Judge Campbell, Saling entered a plea of guilty and was fined $400. Moore denied guilt and will be tried later.

Leaving Heppner late Saturday evening on horseback, Sheriff McDuffey took the trail and followed it until he came on the camp. Gaining a vantage point he watched the men at work for some time before making the arrest.

Don't Use Sawdust in Your Coffee

(By United Press)
SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 17.—When anybody tells you that the sugar trust is cornering America's sawdust market, to sell the sugar that is contained in trees, don't believe them. It can't be done. There is sugar there, but not the sugar maker's kind of sugar, so the sawdust factories will not be able to help pile up new fortunes for the sugar makers.

The nation was startled the other day by a scientist's announcement that there is an enormous amount of sugar in sawdust. A chance for the housewife to preserve fruit by sawdust sugar seemed to be in the realm of possibility.

But the bubble has been pricked by the cold-blooded scientists of the New York State College of Forestry here.

Here is what Dr. Louis E. Wise, one of Uncle Sam's war time chemists, now professor of forest chemistry at the New York State College of Forestry, says about sawdust sugar—read it and weep:

"An important sugar can be prepared from sawdust by hydrolysis with acid, but it must not be confused with the sugar of the breakfast table. This sugar, prepared from wood, is destitute of glucose and is identical with the sugar obtained by acid treatment of starch. The sugar is not identical, however, with sucrose, commonly termed 'cane sugar' or 'beet sugar.' Glucose is, however, widely used commercially, and is an important foodstuff. It is the principal component of corn syrups and the like, and has distinctive nutritive value."

MISTRESS INVADERS

OWN KITCHEN—FINED
(By United Press)
LONDON.—(By Mail)—There is no etiquette so strict as that which dominates London life "below stairs."

With all the upheavals of the world war, the dignity of cooks and butlers remains unassailed. A case was recently heard in the High Court wherein a cook took offense because the mistress invaded the kitchen and insisted on cooking some mutton chops herself. The insulted culinary queen immediately gave notice, and in this she was joined by her husband, the butler. Whereupon the mistress locked the back door and thus got herself sued for "wrongful imprisonment."

During the hearing of the case the judge asked why, if the mistress had only locked the back door, did not the couple go out by the front.

The cook and butler nearly collapsed at the suggestion.

"That," said the butler, painfully surprised at the judge's ignorance, "is against all kitchen etiquette. When a servant is engaged, he enters the house for the first time through the front door. After that he regards the back door as his sole means of entrance and exit. No self-respecting servant would dream of leaving his employer's house by the front door!"

On inquiry it was found that the etiquette ruling such matters was a very real thing to the circle of overlords and underlings of the kitchen, and the aggrieved pair were allowed 25 damages.

Many Violations of Prohibition Laws

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, July 19.—More than 50,000 arrests were made during the first six months of constitutional prohibition just closed. Prohibition Commissioner Kramer's annual report, soon to be issued, is expected to make this estimate. A large percentage of the arrests were made by local police, co-operating with Kramer but not responsible to him.

A total of 50,000 arrests would indicate an average of one to every 2000 persons in the United States charged with the violation of the prohibition laws. This average, however, gives an inadequate idea, federal officials say, of the actual number of violations of the law, since presumably a large number of violators were not detected.

SLUGS DESTROY FRUIT FOLIAGE

The foliage of pear and cherry is suffering from the attack of the slug. Young trees, particularly, may be seriously injured by this pest, according to A. L. Lovett, professor of entomology at the college.

"The pear and cherry slug is a slimy brown creature about one-fourth inch long found skeletonizing the leaves," he said. "The adult of this slug is a robust wasp like creature which lays her eggs in the tissue of the leaf.

"Lead arsenate powder—one pound to 50 gallons of water—applied as a spray is the standard application for commercial planting," says Professor Lovett. "Any finely powdered dust will also prove effective in control. Sulfur, air slaked lime, sifted wood ashes or road dust blown or sifted over the foliage, will quickly end the infection.
