What Constitutes Advertising?
 In order to allay a misunderstanding among some as to what constitutes news and what advertising, we print this very simple rule which is used by newspapers to differentiate between them: "ALL future events, where an admission charge is made or a collection is taken IS ADVERTISING." This applies to organizations and societies of every kind as well as to individuals.
 All reports of such activities after they have occurred is news.
 All coming social or organization meetings of societies where no money contribution is solicited, initiation charged, or collection taken is NEWS.

THE PRETTY LITTLE HOME

IN THE ASHLAND FOOTHILLS
 Nestled in the foothills, in the midst of gigantic trees,
 Small and white, with shutters green and trim,
 And roses climbing on the wicket gate in spring,
 Is my little home, where love has entered in.
 With plox and honeysuckle, pink snapdragons, too,
 Blue larkspur growing tall and slim
 And wild verbenas near the pathways cling,
 In the garden of my little home,
 Where love has entered in.

To me the skies are always blue,
 The sun forever bright,
 Though clouds above may form,
 My days are never dim,
 And, in my garden beautiful,
 The birds will always sing,
 Because I have my little home,
 Where love has entered in.

Advantages in Disguise

A recent study of 70 of the leading men of America in various lines of activity shows that five per cent of them are sons of bankers, ten per cent are sons of manufacturers, fifteen per cent are sons of merchants, while over 30 per cent are sons of preachers and farmers. The analysis further shows that most of these leaders of America today came from the country districts and not from the cities.

This study clearly indicates that some conditions commonly regarded as disadvantages are really advantages in disguise. The fact is that wealth and "not having to work" are really obstacles to youth that are rarely surmounted. Some are prone to discount the old New England virtues of working and waiting. But these virtues still point the way to success.

In the complex industry system of the present time the two functions of waiting and working are generally performed by different persons and classes of persons. Many who work do not want to wait for a competence, and some who wait will not work. The two things must go together for they supplement each other.

It has been said that the greatest educator of the last generation was not so much the public school as the wood box in the corner of the kitchen. Children who do not have wood boxes to keep filled or chores to do out of school hours, are out of luck, for they are deprived of a valuable part of their education.

The children of well-to-do people are still under a serious handicap as the record shows. What appears to be great advantages often turn out to be formidable obstacles. Conditions in America are still such that a little more emphasis on plain, simple work and a little less waiting for opportunity to turn up, are the secrets of service and success.

Wallace Reid Will Play at Vining Theatre

Wallace Reid appearing at the Vining today and tomorrow in the Love Special is widely known as the athletic star. This is perhaps because of the many outdoor pictures in which he has appeared, and where in he has shown in many striking and realistic scenes, his athletic prowess. He has been seen in many thrilling fistie encounters, he has raced madly around the great automobile courses for scenes in the series of auto race pictures in which he starred for Paramount in fact in nearly every picture in which he is seen his physical powers have been displayed.

Thus, it is apparent that "The Love Special," a powerful railroad story, the scenes of which are laid in the mountains, is an ideal subject for a Wallace Reid picture. This is undoubtedly one of the most thoroughly outdoor stories with which the star has yet been provided as the basis for a picture. It is of the same type of story as "The Valley of the Giants," in which Mr. Reid starred and which proved one of his most popular pictures. In the new production, the star plays the role of a railroad construction engineer and the majority of the scenes are exteriors, filmed on mountain locations. With each new picture Mr. Reid's popularity grows.

NORTH DAKOTA GRAIN LAW IS HELD INVALID

ST. PAUL, May 13.—The grain grading law of North Dakota passed by the 1910 legislature was declared invalid in a decision handed down today by Judge John E. Garland in the United States circuit court of appeals here. It was held the law conflicted with the federal grain grades and that it imposed a burden on interstate commerce.

The court reversed a decision of Federal Judge Charles F. Amidon of Fargo, N. D., holding the law constitutional. Judge Amidon dismissed an application for an injunction sought by the Farmers' Grain company of Embden, N. D., a co-operative concern, to restrain state authorities from enforcing the law and prosecuting the company, which refused to take out a state license. The company purchases grain from its members, shipping it out of the state, generally to Minneapolis or Duluth, Minn.

Conflict Caused.
 "Any attempt," said Judge Garland's decision, "to regulate interstate commerce by the state of North Dakota is in direct conflict with the United States grain standards act, wherein congress sought to establish a uniform system for the inspecting and grading of such grain moving in interstate commerce. Both acts ought not to be enforced and cannot be without confusion and embarrassment."

The federal law provides that the secretary of agriculture shall issue licenses to state inspectors where there is state inspection, but it also provides that no licenses for inspecting or grading of grain shall be issued to persons financially or otherwise interested in any grain elevator or warehouse storing grain. The state law provides that licenses shall be issued only to those selling or grading grain and makes it a misdemeanor for any one not having a license to buy grain. This, it was held, brought the two laws into direct conflict.

To Supreme Court.
 FARGO, N. D., May 13. — W. C. Palmer, head of the North Dakota grain grading commission, said tonight that the North Dakota grain grading law case would be carried to the United States supreme court through William Lemke, state attorney general.
