ADRIAN ONLY ENGLISH POPE

le Said to Have Been Elevated to High Office Contrary to His Own Inclinations.

Pope Adrian IV was by birth an Englishman, and the only one of that nation who ever occupied the papal throne. He was a native of Langley, in Hertfordshire. He was born before When you want good insurance A. D. 1100. His real name was Nicholas Breakspear. He is said to have 232-tf left England as a beggar, and to have become a servant as lay brother in a monastery near Avignon, in France, where he studied with such diligence His merits soon became known to Pope III, who made him cardinalbishop of Albia in 1146, and sent him two years later as his legate to Denmark and Norway, where he converted many inhabitants to Christianity. olas was unanimously chosen pope against his own inclination, in November, 1154. Henry II of England, on hearing of his election, sent the abbot of St. Albans and three bishops to Rome with his congratulations.

The sick are always glad to have their friends visit them-for one thing they feel that they are not forgotten. Sometimes too many visitors or visitors too late in the day prevent the sick from quieting down for a night's sleep.

Occasionally one who has slept but little during the night may be able to rest towards morning; under which circumstances it is better that they be not disturbed during the morning.

Hospitals find that it is better for the sick people to have their friends come to visit them during the afternoon; because it is better for the sick ones, even though it may somewhat inconvenience the visiting friends.

If you have friends sick at the Sanitarium, try to consult their well-fare by visiting them during the afternoon whenever possible.
