WAY OF MAKING HAND TUCKS

Crease and Run Through the Tucker on Machine Without Using Thread.

An easy way of making hand tucks In lingerie is to crease the first tuck as usual for machine tucking and adjust the tucker, but do not thread the machine; then run it through the tucker. The needle will leave a distinct line along which to run your hand The marker also leaves a line for the next tuck. It is best to sew each tuck as it comes from the since handling obliterates the This method insures absolute accuracy, with the daintiness of hand sewing, and can be done in less than half the usual time.

How About Skirts?

The openings have declared that we are to wear the straight low-girdled Austrian cloth and the various lightfrock with a skirt showing somewhat weight sunfasts admirably fulfill this greater width either in the form of a purpose. circular flare or, more happily, in the form of overlapping panels of uneven length. The skirt is longer as a ruleabout eight inches from the floor, with loose panels falling often to the heels. Many skirts, owing to this arrangement of drooping panels, are longer in effect in the back than in the front. Fallored skirts are often straight and narrow in effect, with overlapping panels or plaits lending greater width. -Good Housekeeping.

Plain or figured marquisettes and dotted muslins and grenadines make charming curtains, and the most fascinating materials for this purpose may be found on the dress goods counters. These include all sorts of dimities, organdies, striped and figured voiles, calicoes and the colored swisses so much in vogue for summer frocks. Should they fade after a time, those in plain colors can easily have their beauty restored by the use of one of the modern dyes which do not require

The new sets, both plain and figured, are obtainable in great variety. Where there are no overdraperies, the figured nets are usually preferable in order that the windows may not appear bare, and suitable patterns can be obtained for rooms of every type and period.-Good Housekeeping.

New Idea in Jelly-Making. In the jelly-making process patented by M. O. Johnson, fruit juice is concentrated by freezing out a portion of its water, and is then heated to a temperature high enough to coagulate suspended matter, though not high nough to impair the flavor. After sepation of coagulated matter, the fuice s sterilized by heating to a temperature below that employed for coagulaion, then jellified after sugar has been dded. Sugar added before coagulaon may give better clarification.
