What Constitutes Advertising?
In order to allay a misunderstanding among some as to what constitutes news and what advertising, we print this very simple rule which is used by newspapers to differentiate between them: "ALL future events, where an admission charge is made or a collection is taken IS ADVERTISING." This applies to organizations and societies of every kind as well as to individuals.
All reports of such activities after they have occurred is news.
All coming social or organization meetings of societies where no money contribution is solicited, initiation charged, or collection taken is NEWS.

FORTY-THREE MILLION LIVES Lost to World Through the Great War, According to Figures Given by Statistician.

A study of the different statistics of the actual and potential loss of life due to the recent war reveals the fact that about forty-three million lives have been lost to the world either directly from the war or from causes induced by it. Richard P. Strong, M.
D., writes in the North American Review. These losses are made up of, first, approximately 13,000,000 deaths which occurred in the military service; secondly, a surplus mortality above that which occurred in normal times in the civilian populations amounting to approximately 10,000,000, due to epidemic and other diseases, privation, hardship, physical exhaustion, and similar causes; and thirdly, a potential loss of 20,000,000 lives due to the decreased birth frequency below that which occurred under normal conditions before the war. The adult male population in many European countries has been reduced by from 14 to 20 per cent. The figures of Alonso Taylor show us that there are between 50,000,000 and 60,000,000 people in Europe who have lost their prewar occupations owing to the fact that the markets for their products no longer exist, having been changed or taken away from them by other countries. Many of these people have or soon will become refugees in Europe, among which class of people not only poverty and hardship, but also disease always reigns, resulting in a high increase in death rate and decrease in birth rate.

Ashland Post, No. 14.
ASHLAND, OREGON
Glenn E. Simpson, Post Commander.
H. G. Wolcott, Vice-Commander.
Ralph Hadfield, Historian.
Wm. Holmes, Treasurer.
Donald Spencer, Adjutant and Legion Editor.

Commander Glenn E. Simpson and Adjutant Don M. Spencer have returned from Eugene, Or., where they have been in attendance at the state convention of the American Legion, department of Oregon.

About 200 delegates from all parts of Oregon were assembled in convention which started Friday morning, July 1, and continued on until Saturday afternoon and evening, July 2. July 3 there was an auto trip up the McKenzie river for all delegates, and friends. A bounteous barbeque and banquet was spread under the trees near the fish hatchery. More than 1200 persons were served at this banquet. When it comes to a feed, Lane County Post No. 3, under the generalship of Captain "Pug" Huntley as chef, we will gladly take off our hats to. We knew Captain Huntley was a good cook, but he surely outclassed himself in this venture.

The first part of the convention was taken up with organization and the appointment of working committees. After this was accomplished the assembled legionaires were addressed by Mr. O. H. Foster, who is the city attorney for Eugene. Mr. Foster welcomed the legionaires to the city and informed the boys that the police had been directed to turn their back when they saw the official cap appear. His address was much appreciated by all present.

Following this address, Commander Gilbert, department of Oregon, responded as only Comrade Gilbert is capable. It was, indeed, a most stirring and peptful exposition of the innermost feelings of all ex-service men.

Our national adjutant major, Lemuel Bolles, was present and gave us a most interesting account of the workings of our national headquarters at Indianapolis, and also a few very personal touches of the life of our late national commander, F. W. Galbraith. Colonel Galbraith's last message to the American Legion was "Carry on, and free our disabled comrades."

Rev. Inzer, of Tennessee, our national chaplain, addressed the convention on the subject of Americanism. Chaplain Inzer is one of the most forceful speakers it has been our privilege to hear, and every word carried a real message showing the beauty of pure, unadulterated Americanism. It is our hope that we may yet obtain this address for publication.

Governor Olcott gave us a detailed account of the progress and workings of the new veterans state aid act. The state commission has been appointed and will assemble for work Friday, July 9. This commission will complete the organization of the working force necessary for successful operation of the enormous task before it. Governor Olcott says that he feels that this is by far the biggest task that he has had before him. He has not precedent to follow and must pave the way for himself. However, he is very cheerful over the prospect as he believes the benefit will be more far reaching than was even hoped at first. Governor Olcott requests that we do not write letters to the commission or any department asking for information. It will only delay the work, and full publicity will be given when they are ready for operations. We must remember that there is a great deal of work attached to such a new undertaking. The county boards must be appointed and organized and applications prepared, land to be appraised and titles to be examined. The American Legion will be in close touch with every phase of the work and will endeavor to keep its members and all other ex-service men informed in order that we may be of greatest assistance to the state and to our comrades. Don't write to the commission, either us instead, we won't mind it a bit.

The reports of the department adjutant and the department finance officer show that the American Legion, department of Oregon, is sound as a dollar.

Mr. Cash Wood of the federal vocational training board and Roy Taylor of the bureau of war risk insurance were both in attendance and gave us most interesting statistics regarding the progress made by their respective departments. We are more than ever convinced that these two departments must be under one head for proper functioning. Under the present system it takes entirely too long to get proper relief for our disabled comrades, and our national hospital facilities are so poor that hundreds of our comrades do not get proper care.

The convention was unanimous in the expression urging immediate relief by our national congress for the disabled veterans and the construction of sufficient hospitalization to care for them. In many states it is reported by Mr. Taylor our comrades, who are temporarily unsound of mind, owing to shell shock and the effects of gas, must be cared for in the state institutions for the feeble minded or insane asylums. This is deemed a very poor practice on account of the fact that these men are perfectly rational more than half the time. During their rational periods it must be exceedingly depressing to them to find themselves confined with those who are permanently unsound of mind.

A cable message from Past Department Commander William B. Follette, who is traveling in Europe, was read in convention. Comrade Follette was our first department commander for Oregon.

Many resolutions were adopted by the convention, included among them were those giving credit to the American Legion for their splendid work in favor of the state aid bill, and desiring to show to the people of Oregon our deepest appreciation for their support of said measure. A resolution granting our comrade, Georges Carpentier of France, our sympathetic support and best wishes in his boxing contest with Jack Dempsey, of doubtful service. A

The constitution committee of the Women's Auxiliary to the American Legion met at the home of Mrs. Don M. Spencer at 620 Iowa street, last Thursday evening, where they compiled the constitution and bylaws under which they will operate.

Two hundred and fifty members of the American Legion, headed by Past National Commander Franklin D'Olier, and representing every state and every branch of service, will sail for France August 3 on a pilgrimage to the former battle zone of the world war.

The pilgrimage is at the instance of President Millerand, who on behalf of the French government, invited the American Legion to send a representative delegation of former service men to attend the unveiling of the Flery monument and to participate in a series of events planned especially for the Americans.

The Flery monument at Flery, France, is a tribute of the citizens of that town and Lorraine, to the valor of the American troops who delivered their soil from German occupation. Flery is in the old Toul sector, and was once the regimental headquarters of several American divisions.

This delegation will also visit the battle-torn town of St. Die, well known to Americans who served on the old Luneville front. In St. Die also lived the Alsatian, Waldsee Muller, whose suggestion it was that the western continent take the name of
