 Advertising for fraternal orders or societies charging a regular initiation fee and dues, no discount. Religious and benevolent orders will be charged the regular rate for all advertising when an admission or other charge is made.

What Constitutes Advertising:
 In order to allay a misunderstanding among some as to what constitutes news and what advertising, we print this very simple rule which is used by newspapers to differentiate between them: "ALL future events, where an admission charge is made or a collection is taken IS ADVERTISING." This applies to organizations and societies of every kind as well as to individuals.
 All reports of such activities after they have occurred is news.
 All coming social or organization meetings of societies where no money contribution is solicited, initiation charged, or collection taken is NEWS.

MORALS VS. CHRISTIANITY

The Tidings editor has just finished reading a series of sermons by Rev. John Roach Stratton, D. D., of the Calvary Baptist church, New York City, on "The Menace of Immorality in Church and State." He handles the matter of course, from a strictly religious slant, and the effects of such laxity especially on the church. His criticism is directed, not only at the evils as they exist, but especially toward the attitude of church people and preachers toward them. He stands for the old Puritanical Sabbath, with which we altogether disagree. We think the churches already have mixed so much in civic morals that they have lost much of their old-time religious zeal and piety. If we read our Bible aright, morality is not Christianity. Christianity is to be "born again." And we are assured that the person who has really experienced regeneration is not lax in morals, so long as he adheres to the dictates of the spirit. The problem with the church, we think, is not to moralize the community, but to Christianize it. The true Christian life is a thing of admiration to all. Even the non-churchman admires it. It has a tremendous charm and pulling power. Every man and every people who have ever lived have had their religion from pagan star worship to the present Christian worship. Man is by nature a deistic worshipper. Even Tom Paine believed in God, and the most confirmed scientific materialist approaches the theme of consciousness with fear and trembling. "The fact that we know that we know." Men are by divine inclination religious beings, because the evidence of an all-wise Creator surrounds them on every hand. We think when the church ceases to meddle in civic morals and devotes its whole energy to the text: "If I be lifted up, even as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, all men will be drawn unto me," we will have taken a long step toward the millennium. We can easily imagine a world so moral that it has no vital Christianity left. To imagine that is only to see the present predominant desire of the church realized. When it turns its attention to Christianizing the world with as much zeal as it now exercises in trying to moralize, it we have the word of the Great Book that all men will be drawn unto Christ. When that is accomplished the moral issue will be solved, but not until then. Civic law will not accomplish it. It is a matter of conscience.

However, the Stratton sermons are drastic in arraignment and powerful in import. They are worth reading and are to be strongly commended to churchmen filled with morality and devoid of Christianity, who mistakenly think that the millennium will be realized through civic blue laws instead of by regeneration.

PUBLIC FORUM

Ed Tidings—Be not forgetful to entertain strangers for thereby some have entertained angels unawares.—Heb. 13:2. A few days ago a stranger came to 59 Manzanita street (where I am nursing Mr. J. Thornton aged 94 years), and walking up to the back door asked if there was anything he could do for something to eat. Mrs. Willey (Mr. Thornton's daughter) asked him if he could prune some blackberry vines. He said that he knew nothing about pruning, however, she took a tray and handed him a nice lunch, and he sat down on the porch to eat it. Just then I asked Mrs. Willey if she would like to have that block wood split up, with the thought of doing it myself, but the stranger overheard me speak and left his meal, and that was the last he was seen about the premises.

MEDFORD PLANES PARKED FOLLOWING OFFICIAL LETTER

MEDFORD, Or., July 30.—No planes will be seen flying about Medford and the valley for the next few days at least, as orders have been received at the aviation sub-base here to the effect that the daily air forest patrol service in Oregon and Washington has been temporarily discontinued. The reason for this discontinuance it not known to Lieutenant Samuel Carter, in command of the local base, nor to Lieutenant Gruener, the forest service liaison officer, as the orders received here did not state the reason. It is presumed, however, that the economy and army reduction program has something to do with the matter.

Another thing of much interest to local people is that, although orders were received at the Medford base last week to have the planes and equipment removed to the Eugene base, the local base to continue business only as an oil and gas station for the planes which would cover this territory daily from Eugene, the move has not yet been made, and no orders have been received as to the time when it will be. In fact it is understood that orders have been received here to continue the base until further orders are received in regard to the removal.

Dog and Pony Show, Cullins Circus, Coming

Ashland is to have a circus. This will undoubtedly be good news to all youngsters and to grown-ups, as well. The Lew F. Cullins famous dog and pony circus is to show in Ashland next Wednesday, August 3, giving an afternoon and evening performance. It has been several years since Ashland has been visited by any tented organization, and it is said the Cullins circus is particularly catering to the women and children, giving an entertainment that is clean, moral and pleasing in every way. Dogs, ponies, monkeys and goats form the largest part of the program, but it is said several circus acts, such as aerial, rope spinning, novelty numbers are introduced as well, making it a complete tent show performance.
