Don't Expose Your Property to Loss

If you were carrying $5,000 or more of cash in your car you'd want to have it insured. But are you not driving your car, with about all of your property exposed? If you injure a man, and he obtains a damage verdict against you, you've got to pay it. If you haven't the cash, your property can be sold to get it. Don't risk your house, your bank account, your business. Let a first class automobile policy stand between your worldly goods and the result of that possible accident. DO IT NOW. A few dollars today may save you a few thousand tonight.

WITH THE FUNNY MEN

Tempus Fugit. The traveler raced his fastest to the one-horse railway station and missed the train by the most vexatious of narrow margins.

"When is the next train in that direction?" he asked, pointing to the receding cars. "Tomorrow," answered the station agent.

"At what time?" "Just one minute sooner than right now."—American Legion Weekly.

He Paid for it, Though. Mrs. Myles—That's an awfully shabby suit your husband is wearing. Mrs. Styles—I know it. "Doesn't he ever buy any new clothes?" "Why, certainly he does." "Why don't you make him wear 'em, then?" "Don't be silly. How do you think he'd look in my clothes?"

Unreasonable Suggestion. "What will prevent your wife from going through your clothes at night?" asked the citizen who is always telling his troubles. "Have you ever tried going home without 'em?" asked his unsympathetic friend. "There are no pockets in B. V. D.'s or union suits."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Contemplative Mood. "Do you think the world is growing better and wiser?" "Yes," replied Mr. Growcher. "All I'm afraid of is that the world will become so completely interested in abstract questions of morality and wisdom that it'll neglect the plain ordinary industry necessary to keep it going."

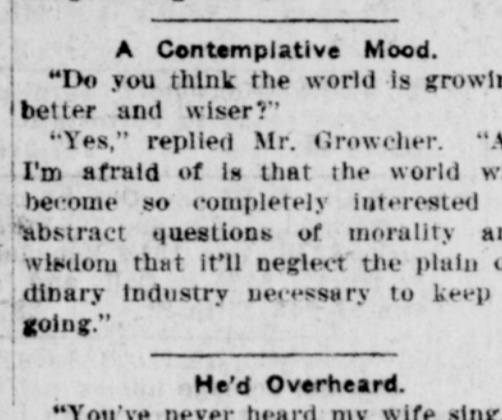

He'd Overheard. "You've never heard my wife sing. I believe," said the man who was proud of what he was pleased to call his better half's accomplishments. "Of course I have," replied his gruff old neighbor. "You don't suppose we can keep our windows closed all the time, do you?"

Anticipating an Order. "Why did you throw those two pieces of toast out there on the grass?" asked the fat restaurateur. "I wanted to see if a couple of quail would come around and lay down on 'em, sir," replied the white-capped chef.

THE EXCEPTION. "No gentlemen would lie about his golf score." "Certainly not—unless, of course, he was quite sure that no other gentleman was in a position to prove the falsehood of his statements."

THRIFT LIKE SALT The small boy said "salt is what makes things taste bad when you leave it out." Thrift is much like that. The First National has seen tragic instances of lives where thrift had been left out. Many homes are broken up because of reckless spending and financial inefficiency. Many men are square pegs in round holes because of failure to save some capital. Have you a steadily growing account here?

Don't Overlook This Indispensable Service

CERTAINLY you are interested in the things designed and made to give you greater comfort, better living, more real enjoyment out of life.

It is right along these important lines that the advertising columns of the Tidings furnish you with a service of inestimable value. There is hardly a thing they do not suggest to make the course of living easier, more comfortable and more pleasant. They show you where to get your money's greatest worth. They keep you informed as to styles, values and qualities. They point out where and when to find the very things for which you have been searchin g.

And in reading the advertising, remember this: the man who spends his money to invite your consideration of his wares, backs up his belief in his goods and leaves the final decision to you.

Do not overlook this mighty and indispensable service which the Tidings offers with the rest of the day's news.

Read the Advertisements Regularly!
