What Constitutes Advertising?
In order to allay a misunderstanding among some as to what constitutes news and what advertising, we print this very simple rule which is used by newspapers to differentiate between them: "ALL future events, where an admission charge is made or a collection is taken IS ADVERTISING." This applies to organizations and societies of every kind as well as to individuals.
All reports of such activities after they have occurred is news.
All coming social or organization meetings of societies where no money contribution is solicited, initiation charged, or collection taken is NEWS.

The problem is, to keep the Pacific ocean true to label.

It remains for enforcement laws, rigorously enforced, to put the prohibition into the eighteenth amendment.

Lenine and Trotzky have read their own political obituaries, time after time. And yet they retain some sparks of political life.

Warfare will not end until the war spirit is eliminated from the masses of mankind. Incline the intelligent millions of this and other countries strongly toward peace, and there could not be another world war.

FINALLY ACCOMPLISHED

The much cursed and discussed new electric linotype melting pot is now properly installed and seems to be working fine. The heat and irritation of the campaign seems to be over and the season for good feeling and happy thoughts has arrived; therefore we take back (for the sake of our religion) nearly everything we have thought during the past week. And on account of old friendships and good will for the future nearly everything we have said the past week. A squaring of accounts is always appropriate after the battle. We have an abiding faith now that we will be able to print the news instead of apologies for not printing it. We thank our subscribers for their good will and forbearance during the ordeal.

PUBLIC FORUM

Editor Tidings—It is but natural that we who have adopted Ashland as our home should encourage others to join us in our enjoyment. In my opinion the way to accomplish this is to make things so pleasant for our ever increasing number of tourists and health seekers, who are here spying and trying out our offerings, that each will be a standing traveling ad. as they depart for home, or other fields yet to be investigated, not only of our splendid climate, scenic beauties, health giving mineral waters and pure, soft, domestic snow water, bracing mountain air, which all contribute to ours being a city of real home enjoyments and a health resort par excellence. That no reasonable person shall carry a grudge away with him on account of action, or lack of action, or overcharges on our part.

Having recently spent much time in our enjoyable park and auto camp conversing with tourists and several semi-invalids here seeking health, I hear much complaint about our lack of bathing facilities at the auto camp. And these health seekers complain bitterly of our hotels and restaurants' lack of fruit and vegetables in their menus. That, I know, too, goes farther in keeping our system in good working order than all the drugs in christendom, and when our system functions properly sickness disappears. Some told me they get better variety at less cost, too, in Medford, and often motor there to take advantage of one or two meals per day and return to enjoy our peerless restful park and excellent waters and cooler air.

One who has traveled much remarked "that there was not a suitable hotel or eating place in Ashland, commensurate with our other splendid environments and we would never have a full measure of prosperity that we are entitled to until we had such, that would set out a variety menu at reasonable prices. Emphasizing the fact that a wholesome meal with plenty of fruit and vegetables at a dollar would be cheaper to him than the present service at 50 to 75 cents.

I argued that it would do injustice to our present privately owned bathing and swimming places, mineral and otherwise, to install free baths at the auto camp. But the general opinion of tourists was that not one tourist out of a thousand passing through here and only remaining from 12 to 60 hours, had time or inclination to patronize our present bathing places, and thought a well arranged shower bath place at the auto camp the proper cash-sheaf to our other extremely desirable recreation and health resort facilities. I hope our city authorities and eating places will act to better these conditions.

R. D. SANFORD.
EDITOR'S NOTE—The foregoing criticism referring to the hotel accommodations is evidently made with consideration of past existent conditions prior to the new management of the Hotel Ashland. It is obvious that since Mr. Coffman has only recently taken over the old Hotel Austin, making several improvements and changes, including the name to Hotel Ashland, that the above criticism of Mr. Sanford is not applicable at the present time.

It is Hard to Be Accurate.

Can you exactly describe what you see? If you can, you are cleverer than most persons. A book recently published in Paris relates that at a meeting of scientific men two of them suddenly began to quarrel. Under pretense of obtaining legal evidence the president of the meeting asked everyone present to write an exact report of what had happened. The quarrel was a pure piece of acting arranged to test the powers of observation of the men present.
Though the assembly was composed entirely of jurists, psychologists and doctors, only one report contained less than 20 per cent of error; 13 reports had more than 50 per cent wrong; and in 34 reports from 10 to 15 per cent of the details were wholly imaginary. When men of science can so err we can understand how easily the ordinary man can go astray. The story shows why lawyers value circumstantial evidence so highly.—Youth's Companion.

No Divorce in Great Russia.

To the peasants of Great Russia marriage is a tie that death alone can sever, and divorce by the help of law courts is practically unknown to them. If the husband and wife cannot get along together they simply agree between themselves to live apart, the husband taking the boys and the wife the girls, in cases where there are any children. In spite of the fact that there is no recourse to the courts, however, husband and wife in Great Russia do not know each other before marriages except in rare instances. The selection is made by the parents or guardians, and it is unseemingly for the bridegroom to see the bride more than once before the nuptials.

Cultivate Distinct Speech.

Let us consider clear and distinct enunciation as contrasted with other kinds. Talking distinctly is one of the finest of human accomplishments. The Association of the Hard of Hearing, at a recent meeting, urged the cultivation of lip-reading by those inclined to deafness. Talking with the lips is as good for those who talk as it is for those who listen. The finest and clearest enunciation is by those who enunciate with the lower lip and the tongue, instead of by wagging their jaws and talking through their noses. Avoid masticating your spoken words, and that besetting Yankee sin—the nasal twang!—Boston Globe.

GREAT POWER OF PRESIDENT

United States Chief Executive "Moost Potent Constitutional Functionary in the World."

The legal functions of the President's office are so eminent that he cannot escape the responsibilities of executive action, however much he may be inclined to avoid them. His constitutional powers alone make him the pivot upon which all the administrative machinery operates.
He appoints the heads of departments and may direct their major policies. His power of appointment to all the greater offices is far reaching. He can recommend, shape and veto legislation. His control over foreign affairs is virtually complete. He is commander in chief of the army and the navy. In short, he is the most potent constitutional functionary in the world.

All these constitutional powers have been vastly augmented by practice and custom. The President today can do innumerable things that George Washington or Thomas Jefferson would never have dared do even if they had thought of them.

The constitutional conception of the President is that of a chief executive, an administrator; custom has added to this conception that of leadership, of initiation.—Samuel P. Orth in the Yale Review.

Clung to the Foot-Hills.

Humanity in its settlements has never cared for the high mountains or their valleys.... But the races of men have ever been well disposed to struggle up close to the foot-hills. The modern cities have been built beside great rivers on the flat lands, bit in Biblical times cities were founded upon rocks in the lower hills; and where no hills existed, as in the Mesopotamia valley, the Assyrians built a huge brick platform in imitation of a flat hill, and reared their city upon that. Athens was built upon and about the Acropolis, the Aropegus, and the limestone heights between Cephissus and Ilissus. Rome and Constantinople are both built on their seven hills, and the hills around about Jerusalem are famous.—John C. Van Dyke.

One of Ocean's Biggest Fishes.

The turbot is one of the largest of the flat fishes, and one of the species that is of most value commercially. It is seldom over two feet long, and weighs about 18 pounds, although 90-pound turbot have been caught. Its body is very flat and wide, with a long fin on the top and bottom ridges. Its upper surface is brown, and covered with hard, round knobs.
The turbot is a sea fish, and its eggs—five or 10,000,000 to a fish—float on the ocean surface, but the full-grown turbot prefers a sea bank, where it lies on its lighter side. Both the eyes are on the upper side of the body. The turbot abounds off the western coast of Europe, where it is caught for export.

Mazarin's Great Library.

At the beginning of the Fronde intrigues in Paris in 1648, when Anne of Austria, mother of Louis XIV, was queen regent of France, Cardinal Mazarin's library held 40,000 books, and was the most important collection of books then existing. Mazarin was compelled to retire from court, and the French parliament voted the confiscation and sale of his library. Louis sent Fouquet with unlimited power to bid it in, but the parliament, comprehending that it would in this way be returned to Mazarin, ordered its complete dispersion, by selling it in small lots. The librarian was so affected that he died of a broken heart. The sale of Mazarin's paintings was to have followed, but they were saved.

American Legion Kolum

The Japanese colonization project is still a subject for consideration by the American Legion. Our Americanization committee finds in one school district near Hood River, Oregon, there are three Americans and 13 Japanese children in the school. Our national convention will consider a legislative bill prohibiting children of alien parentage from automatically becoming citizens.

Dunsmuir Fire Loss Estimated Near $125,000

Recently our National Commander John G. Emery reviewed a parade in Cleveland, O., in which the national emblem was carried. One hundred per cent Americans were much annoyed by the large number of "2 per cent Americans" who failed to remove their hats to our flag as it passed.

General Baron Jacques of Belgium will address the third national convention of the American Legion in Kansas City Nov. 2. General Jacques was commander-in-chief of the Belgium forces during the war and was directly in command of several of our divisions at different times.

Clatsop Post of Astoria has started the creditable precedent of giving to each newly made citizen of Clatsop county a small American flag together with a bit of useful information concerning the significance of our national emblem.

The State Federation of Labor of Oklahoma and the American Legion have joined forces, on the grounds that "the two organizations are working to advance the same fundamental principles and the cementing of the friendship will add strength to both." so says Edgar Finton, head of the labor organization.

The last news from the state aid commission is to the effect that the commission hopes to have the bond issue sold during October. In the meantime they are compiling rules and regulations under which they will operate. It is stated that it will still be some time before the application forms are prepared.
