U. S. IS BLAMED FOR MANDATE DELAY

INDUSTRIAL CLUB EXHIBITS, COUNTY ON SEPT. 20-21

CONTESTS OPEN TO ALL SCHOOL CHILDREN OF COUNTY—CLUB MEMBERS TO COMPETE FOR FREE TRIP TO STATE FAIR.

JACKSONVILLE, Sept. 8. (Special).—The Jackson county educational exhibits and industrial club contests are to be held in Medford at the Natatorium, September 20 and 21.

This means that reports need to be finished immediately and sent to Corvallis so they may be returned and registered before the dates given above. Awards can go only to those with complete reports.

Every club and every individual at work on the various projects—corn growing, potato growing, gardening, poultry raising, pork production, canning, calf raising, sheep raising, home making, sewing, cookery—is entitled to claim space for the exhibit they have. Exhibits should be on hand and in place the morning of September 20.

Experienced judges will make the awards on the last day. From the exhibits which receive awards selections will be made to go with the car of Jackson county exhibits to the state fair.

Entrants who have poultry, rabbits or livestock, please send feed for the two days, so that the animals will be properly fed and cared for. If there is no way of getting exhibits to the fair, the county school superintendent, or the county club leader may be able to help.

Admission is free to school children. Club members have a chance for a free trip to the Oregon state fair and admission to the state fair camp for boys and girls.

Contests in Regular School Work. These contests are open to every school in Jackson county.

In order that no school will have an advantage over another, the following divisions will be made, and schools will contest only in the division in which they belong.

Division 1. Grade schools having but one teacher.

Division 2. Grade schools having two teachers only.

Division 3. Grade schools having three or more teachers.

Division 4. High schools, or grades 9, 10, 11 and 12.

An exhibit shall consist of at least one or more pieces of school work by each pupil represented in the school.

Not to exceed six linear feet of wall, table or floor space shall be given for the display of each room of a school making an exhibit, except division 4, the high schools may be given more space as required.

The judging of the exhibits shall be done on the following basis:

(1) Completeness of the exhibit as to whether it represents the work of all the pupils and in the several subjects taught 40

(2) Quality of the work on exhibition 40

(3) Attractiveness of exhibit 20

GOV. OLCOTT DRAWS FIRST BONUS CARD

SALEM, Or., Sept. 8.—The application of Vernon E. Ross, Portland, will be the first to be considered by the world war veterans' bonus and loan commission as a result of the drawing at the commission's offices yesterday in which Governor Olcott, Secretary of State Kozer and others participated. Governor Olcott drew Ross's application. Secretary of State Kozer was asked to pull out the second application. It fell to Edmund Vaneeno, Portland.

Repeal All Income Surtax Above 25 Per Cent; Mellon

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 8.—The repeal of all income surtax above 25 per cent as of January 1, 1922, is among the new revenue revision proposals submitted today by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to the senate finance committee.

The house tax bill fixed 32 per cent as the maximum for the proposed elimination of high surtaxes, when capital stock tax was retained by it.

Mellon also suggested the retention of the transportation tax, including that on the transportation of oil by pipe line, which was repealed by the house bill.

C. OF C. REPORTS ON HIGHWAYS OF NORTHERN CALIF.

Out of Bandon and on toward Coquille, we first began to encounter some of the famous corduroy roads. You know lumber is cheaper than dirt with there, and so they pave with plank. It makes very good road except where they occasionally leave out a plank and you don't see it until you are by! Wonder if they take them out to keep folks from speeding.

Soon we came to Coquille, a smart interesting little city, but a smooth hard surface pavement allures us on to Marshfield. We make our first camp in an official auto camp ground at Marshfield. It's a great life, living in auto camp grounds, but when we take note of the amount of money actually spent in the towns where we camp one night only, the thought strikes us that the very best effort in the direction of making the auto camps in every possible way attractive is great business for the state of Oregon.

Marshfield and North Bend are close together, only a mile and a half or so separating them, and we should judge it was a question of time only when they would make one city. Many big mills, factories, creameries, etc here, Marshfield has good hotels, and North Bend just starting to build a five story hotel building, the leading bank being the promoter of the enterprise. Met Mr. Loggie, the mayor of North Bend, and learned that he, like the Humes of the Rogue river section, also came from way back east, and was a brother of the A. & R. Loggie company, among the largest cannery of Maine and New Brunswick, and with whom we used to have considerable business relations back there.

The week being nearly up, we decided to make a start for Roseburg; inquiries as to the choice of roads not giving us any certain feelings that one was better than the other. One being to ferry from Marshfield to Allegany, some fifteen miles, taking three hours for the ferry ride alone, and then to drive down to Roseburg, or to go directly to Roseburg, crossing the mountains by the old Coos Bay wagon road. I'll say it's better by night than by day, because you can't really see anything about it then. Occasionally you see a star or two when you strike Marshfield at 5 p. m. and landed at the corduroys out, but as we left a stretch of corduroy with some of Roseburg at 12 o'clock, we thought we did pretty well. The Roseburg camp ground didn't appeal to us at that hour, and after swinging down below the bridge and giving it the once over, decided on the Umpqua hotel where the rising campers wouldn't disturb our slumbers.

Roseburg must get much benefit from her camp ground, for it is right in town where they have easy

Council Expected to O. K. Refunding Bonds Tuesday

CIVIC CLUB HOLDS FIRST MEETING OF THE COMING YEAR

By MRS. JOHN H. DILL (Corresponding Sec'y Civic Club)
The first meeting of the Civic club for the coming year was held in Auxiliary hall Tuesday afternoon. The president, Miss Chamberlain, presided.

After the routine of business the matter in everyone's thoughts was discussed—the proposed new club house which is to be erected on the lot leased by the city council to the club for that purpose.

A sketch of the building and floor plans were shown. Then the matter was brought up for individual discussion and expression of opinions. Mrs. Mary Holmes Tucker, representative for the Bellevue district, and who had interviewed the ladies in both Neil creek and Valley View districts, said that she found all of the women heartily in favor of the idea, but that they said they were unable to subscribe money. She said that she had heard ladies who were "Lady Elks" express the opinion that the Elks' rest room was all they needed, but that she felt that there were so many women who were not "Lady Elks," and that we should remember that the "Ashland idea" plan provided for the care of children. Mrs. Tucker said she felt confident the women living in the vicinity districts would take out membership in the Civic club just to show their co-operation, even though they could not often attend meetings.

Mrs. Fred Homes was next called upon and she expressed herself as enthused over the idea and said she recalled how embarrassed she was when the Editorial association was given a dinner in the park and several visiting ladies asked her if there was a room where they could "brush up," and she had to say there wasn't. She also said the need of such a house in every community was forcibly brought to her mind when on a recent trip to Medford she had to go up several flights of stairs in a department store to find a place to brush up and straighten her hat.

Miss Chamberlain spoke her encouragement received by the $5 and $10 checks coming in to Mrs. Wilshire, the recording secretary, from persons whom she never thought had even noticed the move was on. Mr. Frobach came over and visited after the forum luncheon. He said it was a satisfaction to live in Jackson county where so many splendid ideas were initiated and developed. For instance, the governor has called a state meeting to discuss the preservation of scenery, since the Jackson County Scenic society had been brought to his attention. And the Ashland free auto camp is the original one in our country, he stated, and a matter of pride when we read of the eastern towns who are trying to keep pace. Mr. Frobach said that first of all the Civic club members who feel so deeply the need of this building, have got to "sell the idea" to the people who live here and make them see that it is a needed "idea." He said he'd venture to predict that the outlying districts would each contribute $100—that they'd have a pig or chicken auction and raise the funds. He told about how Salem put on a sale of signs and raised a big sum, and said Ashland could raise $500 on that kind of a sale. Mr. Fuller remarked that the Chamber of Commerce had several hundred Ashland signs or Later Mr. Speck received a telegram from Colonel Danforth, in command at Langley Field, Va., stating that no particulars were available, but definite information is momentarily expected.

Lieutenant Speck served in the army air service during the war, being stationed near New York City.

GOLD HILL PIONEER DIES AT 74 YEARS

George A. Patrick, a resident of Gold Hill for the past eighteen years, died at his home in that city Tuesday, September 6, at the age of 74 years, five months and eight days. Death was due to gastric ulcers, from which he had suffered for more than a year.

Mr. Patrick was a veteran of the civil war, having enlisted at the age of fifteen years.

Funeral services were held yesterday at the Rock Point cemetery under the auspices of the Gold Hill G. A. R.

Survivor Pays Tribute Medford Aviation Victim

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 8.—Declaring that "any one with that fellow's nerve has more than an even chance to pull through," Dr. William R. Laird, at the Montgomery hospital, today held out some hope for the recovery of Corporal Alexander C. Hazelton, sole survivor of five army aviators, who crashed in the wilds of Nicholas county last Saturday.

Although dangerously injured internally, Corporal Hazelton today was strong enough to speak briefly of his experience. He paid a tribute to the courage of Lieutenant Harry L. Speck, of Medford, Or., pilot of the ill-fated bomber. Speck, he declared, until the last, resorted to every known trick of flying to bring the big machine out of the fatal tailspin.

Corporal Hazelton said his last conscious moment until he awoke in the hospital, was when he averted his eyes from the agonized faces of his four companions, who realized a moment before the nose of the plane crumpled under the terrific impact of the crash, that they were doomed.

MEDFORD, Or.—Lieutenant Harry L. Speck is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Speck of this city. Mrs. Speck left for Spokane Sunday after receiving a telegram from Delbert Jones, another Medford aviator, now with the army air force in the coal fields, that Harry Speck met with an accident Saturday during a storm, but no details were available.

Later Mr. Speck received a telegram from Colonel Danforth, in command at Langley Field, Va., stating that no particulars were available, but definite information is momentarily expected.

PLANS FOR BOND ISSUE MATURED; WILL CALL BIDS

The city council will authorize issuance of $37,000 worth of refunding bonds next Tuesday if the plans of City Attorney William Briggs are approved. Briggs stated this morning in an interview that pursuant to plans made by the city council at its meeting Tuesday evening, bids on the refunding bonds and the contemplated new issue of $19,000 will be accepted next week. A resolution for such procedure is now being made by Attorney Briggs, following the instruction of the council. The plans of Attorney Briggs have gained the approval of Portland bond attorneys who were consulted by the city council regarding the bond issue.

A bill of $1730.15 for the installation of the chlorination plant in Ashland creek is being held up until the equipment can be given a thorough try-out. There is some question over the correct amount of the bill, it being stated by the city recorder that the quoted price was $1692. The council is investigating the matter.

George C. Spencer has asked permission of the council for the erection of a barn on his property, 691 Oak street. The request was referred to the sanitary committee.

Justice of the Peace Gowdy has "taken in" $30 in fines during the month of August, he stated in his report to the city dads.

Bills approved by the finance committee and the city council for the month of August amounted to $5,261.85.

The council has approved an order of forty-five poles for the electric light department to be used in improvements on Palm and Mountain avenues and Granite and Wimer streets. The purpose is to eliminate the hazards where the city and telephone lines run close together.

British Invite Full Questions In Irish Note

IVERNESS, Scotland, Sept. 8.—The British government invites the fullest questioning, so as to leave no doubts of its sincerity, say the British cabinet's peace not to the Sinn Fein.

The reply suggests a peace conference, as previously revealed through unofficial channels. The exchange of communications between the British premier and the Sinn Fein, has already lasted too long, the note averred.

September 20 is the date officially proposed for the conference by the cabinet.

LOCAL WOMEN ATTEND COUNTY R. CROSS MEET

Several members of the local chapter of the Red Cross motored to Medford yesterday to attend a county meeting of the Red Cross with Dr. J. E. Creighton, northwest director with headquarters at Seattle. Dr. Creighton addressed the women at a luncheon given at Medford. He stated that "the peak load of help to ex-service men would not be reached till 1929," and also that hundreds of the boys who went overseas are breaking down mentally, daily.

"Every day ex-service men appeal to the Red Cross who have become mentally unbalanced. I do not know what causes it, the strain of war, the stress of peace, or the after effects of gas and high explosives, but I do know they are coming in alarming numbers. The scourge of war is upon us, and will be for many years to come."

"I often hear men say: 'Why can't the ex-soldiers work like I do?' said Dr. Creighton. 'There were some grafters among them, but the rank and file of the boys are on the square. They are doing the best they can. Only a small per cent come for aid willingly.'"

Dr. Creighton reviewed the minor activities of the Red Cross, after declaring that the first duty of the organization and the nation was to aid the veterans.

"I will confess," said Dr. Creighton, "that up to two years ago I heard very little about Crater Lake, but this year it is being advertised and is a community asset beyond value."

The following Ashland members of the Red Cross attended the meeting: Mesdames C. W. Winnie, A. Scheurman, John Creek, W. L. Maxey, Walter Everett, Rev. P. K. Hammond, Emil Piel, John Hill, A. H. Pracht, and C. H. Pierce.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Forging along on a steady crawl stroke, Milla Gade, twenty-two year old Danish woman swimming champion, arrived at the Battery at 10:57 o'clock today, completing a 143 mile swim from Albany from which place she started last Friday. She was in the water sixty-three hours and 35 minutes, which sets a new record for long distance swimming.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 8.—Elihu Root, former secretary of state, will be the third member of the American commission at the disarmament conference, it was reliably learned today.

Root had a two hour conference with President Harding, and also conferred with Secretary of State Hughes.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 8.—Babe Ruth made his fifty-third home run today. He has one more to make before tying his 1920 record.

BRITISH SPEAKER CAUSES STIR AT LEAGUE COUNCIL

U. S. DENIES AGREEMENT THAT LEAGUE SETTLE CHILE AND BOLIVIAN DISPUTE—WILL RE-TAIN ARTICLE X IN COVENANT

GENEVA, Sept. 8.—Delay of the allies in settling the mandate question was laid to the United States by Lord Cecil, of England, in a speech made today before the League of Nations assembly.

He submitted a resolution asking the League of Nations council to define the terms of the mandate forthwith, "regretting the previous delay in doing so."

Lord Cecil's speech and his resolution stirred up the assembly into opposing camps. Some of the delegates interpreted the speech and resolution as a direct slap at the United States and which came at a time when the United States is engaged in negotiations with the allies on the question of mandates.

A second sensation was aired when Dr. Bratung, of Sweden, charged the council with carrying on secret diplomacy and secret negotiations.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 8.—Denial that the United States ever notified Bolivia that this government has no objections to the League of Nations council attempting to adjust the territorial dispute between Chile and Bolivia, was made by the state department today.

When attention of the officials was called to the Bolivian claim at Geneva that the United States had consented to the league's intervention, it was declared here that Bolivia had never been notified by this government to that effect.

GENEVA, Sept. 8.—Article ten which was the chief stumbling block to America's entering into the council of the League of Nations, and which Canada sought to have eliminated, will be retained in the covenant of the league.

The amendment committee has reported that it has decided upon the retention of the article with an interpretative statement to quiet the fears of Canada and the United States.

Article ten pledges all members of the league to protect the territories of nations that were members of the league.

Telegraph Briefs

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—Directors of the Berlin bourse decided today to close the exchange this week. They justified the action by explaining that the "mad fluctuations of the market" and unprecedented stock speculations gave indications that there might be a panic.

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—One person was killed and many wounded when a mob stormed the government offices at Baden, demanding the release of imprisoned radicals, according to a Munich dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 8.—Heavy selling orders on the reports of big winning in Texas and the usual rush to unload surplus stocks that follows a big rise in the cotton market, sent cotton down $10 a bale today.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 8.—The United States has suggested to the powers who will participate in the disarmament conference, that Belgium and the Netherlands be accorded representation, due to their interests and holdings in the Pacific.
