access to all the stores. This camp ground was promoted entirely by the chamber of commerce. We called on the secretary in the morning, and he told us that their chamber of commerce was opposed to adding Diamond lake to the national park.

Well, from Roseburg on down is great. Some of the highway literature speaks of a bad detour, but we didn't find anything bad. Probably because we had been over the worst. "Worse than the Dead Indian road to Lake O' Woods?" someone asked. We shall not hesitate to send anyone to Lake O' Woods who has been over the Coos Bay wagon road, and tell them it's fine. Said a tourist just now who has traveled all over: "Oregon has got them all skinned on roads. It has the most wonderful highways in the United States today." And IT'S TRUE.

Always feel like going up into the Ashland auto camp and spending one night at least when I get home. I'd spend some three hours there the next night and I'll tell you what some of the campers said next time.

CIVIC CLUB HOLDS FIRST MEETING OF COMING YEAR

dered, and Miss Chamberlain asked if the chamber would turn them over to the Civic ladies to sell for the club house, and he replied they would. Mr. Frobach said he thought no community should be without a club house, that he heartily endorsed the move. That not one tenth of our tourists register, and to hit on an idea of how many cars were camping in Medford, a man was employed to check up, and from May 6 to August 25, 1414 cars had camped at Medford, and Mr. Fuller so voiced that if that many stopped in Medford, five times that many had stopped in Ashland. Mr. Frobach laughed and said that was no doubt true, because we all knew what kind of a camp grounds Medford had compared with Ashland's glorious one. He said we must work out a plan whereby the tourist would help out on our work in civic and community enterprises.

Miss Chamberlain said she felt that our Ashland Chamber of Commerce admirably filled the place intended for it, but that women tourists and visitors wanted at place to talk with home women and know a woman's viewpoint of the town. She said that an exchange would be established in the building, and she'd venture to say, if some one knew of a child that needed shoes or clothing, and they posted the need, that mothers with children that age would shower the needy child with clothing.

Miss Faldine was then called on and she said, "I have but one story and that is to talk health." She said that she "shooked, angered, and disappointed" some folks at a talk last fall when she went into detail and told just how conditions were in Jackson county. Miss Faldine's talk before the Civic Club was enough to make any woman who heard it feel that the money spent on a building of this kind will do untold service to women and children at the very doors without ever once stopping to consider the tourist. Think of it folks! Just think of this—Miss Faldine told of a little boy eight years old living in Jackson county who she brought to town for a jaunt and it was the FIRST time he ever saw a train or ever had been in an ice cream parlor. Trains and ice cream parlors are not absolute essentials of eight year olds, but can you imagine a 1921 eight year old in your county who was that ignorant of life as we see it? Miss Faldine told of old women who go hungry to bed way off from neighbors and friends right in this glorious county. She told of children whose mothers would feel it next door to heaven to drop into Ashland and stop a day in such a house as the Civic club is planning. She urged the women to assist her in the "Health Crusade" she is launching in the county schools. Would you believe that in Jackson county last winter she came across children in a school who were actually sewed into their clothes for the winter? Sewed into them because it was all they had and their physically weak and ignorant mothers had no one to advise and urge them into the pride of cleanliness. Miss Faldine is untiring, she is earnest in the work she is doing and only those who work with her or occasionally when she gets up and tells some of her experiences to a small gathering is her work actually understood.

Grace Chamberlain urged the fact that this club building must be built as soon as possible and the keys turned over, as it were, to Miss Faldine to give service to humanity. "I'm a stranger here" said Miss Chamberlain, "if there is a need for this building lets get together and build it, if there isn't lets quash it."

Miss Faldine was doing a wonderful work was the opinion of O. H. Barnhill, who related that in Benton county he had discovered children barefooted in winter and a woman wearing men's clothing because she had no money to buy any other. That he had given it publicity through the newspaper and received all kinds of condemnation from "prominent" citizens who said the "Red Cross attended to those cases." But on investigation he discovered the Red Cross workers were busy every minute possible and that they had no funds. As a result of his news story, he said, a community service society was organized and funds subscribed by these "prominent" citizens to provide for the unfortunate.

At the close Miss Chamberlain made a brief but straight from the heart talk on her idea of the great need of this building. "Money will come if this thing is right," she said. "It may sound like a prayer, but I feel it is true."

could be kept up the plan would materialize, but he felt that Ashland had buildings and unfinished projects that made a new plan seem doubtful. He mentioned the campaign when such a large membership was added to the Chamber of Commerce, and that the new members were falling out and losing enthusiasm. He cited the Chautauqua auditorium, which he said was too big, and the Pioneer hall, which did not pay for its upkeep, and said he thought what Ashland needed was an auditorium or hall to accommodate about 500. He said he was not opposed to the plan, but it was work and he felt there were other things more needed.

The discussion was free and open and while all seemed to feel that such a building was something that would bring much service and pleasure to Ashland and the strangers who passed through, the thought of raising the money to build it seemed hard.

There was no open discussion of the Chautauqua building, but during the social hour several expressed the opinion that some day the Chautauqua auditorium would be the building in which conventions on the West Coast would be held.

Mrs. C. B. Lamkin and Mrs. John H. Fuller were social hostesses and served tea and cakes.

Ashland has never failed yet where a service to humanity called and the "Ashland Idea" is a call to service to the home folks and the passing tourist—so it's a foregone conclusion that Ashland folks will build their club house.
