HIS WAGES ONE CENT A YEAR

Early Carrier of Mails Certainly Not in the Business for Purpose of Making Money.

Maurice Proctor, a man of wealth, was so anxious for his coach to bear the distinguishing "U. S. Mail" sign of the postal service that he made absolutely certain, when a service line was established between Mineral Point (where he lived) and Dodgeville, Ia., he would be the lucky one allotted the honor.

There were 20 competitors and each turned sick with disgust when they heard of the bid of the wealthier man, says an early volume of the Strand Magazine. It was the custom then to ask prospective employees to bid for the job, as contractors bid now. Proctor bid 1 cent. Which is to say, he volunteered to do the job for a remuneration of 1 cent a year in wages.

Every day, rain or shine, he twice carried the mail between the two cities, proud of the "U. S. Mail" on the side of his coach. At the end of the year his enthusiasm had not worn off, so he renewed his contract, agreeing to do the work at the same rate for four more years—in all, for 4 cents. The government considered him financially responsible for this amount, and gave him the job. The 4 cents were paid to him in four annual installments.

His pay for the first year came in the form of a postal warrant signed by the secretary of the treasury and made out to the order of the carrier, Maurice Proctor. It was in payment for his services, and the amount was 1 cent. Needless to say, it was considered as a great curiosity, so the carrier sold it at once for $38.

BUNGALOWS BUILT BY BIRDS

Are Not Used as Nests, but Seemingly Only Constructed as a Matter of Decoration.

Arbor-like bungalows are built by Australian bower birds. These bungalows are decorated by the birds with flowers and other bright objects.

Sometimes one bird will move a flower placed in position by a fellow. The result is a free fight, for none of the birds will tolerate interference or criticism.

There are several different kinds of bungalows, and each is built by a variety of the bower bird. These structures have nothing whatever to do with the birds' nests. There is a garden in front of the bungalow, and great attention is paid to keeping this fresh. Some of the birds prefer shells as a garden decoration; others use gaily-colored beetles and other insects, while one bird lays out a lawn of moss, which it decorates with all kinds of odds and ends. As soon as any part of the garden becomes faded, the moss, leaves, or flowers are carried to a rubbish heap behind the bungalow.

Dancing displays are given on the lawns, especially at courting time, when the males adopt all kinds of queer attitudes and sing songs to attract the attention of the opposite sex.

Cultured Slovakian People.

The inn at Turciansky Sv. Martin in northern central Slovakia is a real social center. Here the inhabitants of this cultural center of Slovakia assemble for song and gossip. In spite of the antiquity of their get-up, the peasants of the region are among the most cultured people in Europe; their little town is a center of the printing industry and boasts a most interesting museum. The women of Slovakia, although the difficulty in obtaining linens and colored thread with which to make their embroideries is now great, still work with the same care and reverence for traditional craftsmanship as formerly. Indeed the peasant woman of Detva, Slovakia, both in the work upon which she is engaged and the beautiful clothes she wears, would seem to be a living model for her sisters in the neighboring villages. It is in their gardens that these women work, surrounded by their children.

The Osci, Early Occupants of Italy.

The Osci, or Oscans, were an Italian people who appear to have been the original occupants, at the earliest known period, of Central Italy from Campania and the borders of Latium to the Adriatic. The Oscans were subdued by the Sabines, a people from the Apennines on the north, of whose previous history little is known, and who probably adopted the language and customs of the conquered, with what modifications cannot be ascertained. The Oscan language was closely allied to the Latin, of which it was probably a parent stock. It appears to have been spoken in the provinces long after Latin became the official language, and it was used officially long after the Roman conquest.

Birds "Discovered" Baldwin Apples.

The famous Baldwin apple was discovered by Col. Loammi Baldwin, a distinguished resident of Woburn, Mass., during the latter half of the Eighteenth century. While surveying land in Wilmington, Mass., Colonel Baldwin observed a tree on the land of James Butters, which appeared to be much frequented by woodpeckers. Curiosity led him to examine the tree, and he found that it bore apples of an excellent flavor.

The next spring he took cuttings from the tree to graft into trees of his own, and the experiment was so successful that it was not long before the apple was extensively cultivated in many sections of the state.

CODONA FAMILY, WITH SELLS-FLOTO, ARE OF LONG LINE OF STARS

Four generations of circus stars! That's the famous Codona family aerialists and wire dancers, with the Sells-Floto circus, coming to Medford on Saturday, September 24. The best known circus act in all the world—the Codonas are known as the bluest blooded, most aristocratic white top folks living, and that does not mean that they are exclusive "stuck-up," or anything of the sort.

It means that the Codonas have that upon which family pride and true aristocracy must stand—tradition. They have the tradition of four generations of honorable and artistic achievement. They have kept their name bright in the annals of the big top. They are Spanish. There are five in the family. One of the sisters—Victoria—is a wonderful wire dancer, and she is very pretty. In fact, the whole family is very restful to the eye. The girls are exceedingly well educated and all speak three or four languages. They have circled the globe several times. Alfredo, the flyer of the troupe is the only aerialist living who does a triple somersault in mid-air to a hand to hand catch. Look for him circus day.

WHERE'S THE FIRE?

Some times that fire whistle gets into the habit of blowing off when there is no fire, but you know it when it is blowing for a fire alarm; the big question then is "Where is the fire?" The truck is on the go—where? It may be a small blaze or it may already be past control—BUT there is a fire! That's what the fire whistle tells you and your heart jumps faster.

Many times that call may be answered and NOT be for your home or your business. But once—just that vital once—may prove the disaster of your life. Suppose it comes today, tomorrow—who can tell when? Are you fully protected? Why take the chances? What has happened can happen. If it should happen to you, would it hurt? A few dollars invested in a good fire policy today may save you a thousand tonight.
