Elks Plan Big Musical Farce Next 3 Weeks

Ashland lodge No. 944, B. P. O. Elks, will in the next three weeks break into the theatrical limelight, when they will present at the Vining theatre, the three act musical farce, "Purple Flashes," with a local cast under the direction of C. J. McNaughtan, professional show producer.

The production is a late type of farce comedy set to music, similar to the show "Mary" which made such a decided hit when the road show came through this territory a short time ago.

The offering carries a cast of fifty local people, and is replete with singing and dancing and pretty girls, the show will attract great local interest.

C. J. McNaughtan, who is producing "Purple Flashes" for the local lodge is one of the best known show directors on the Coast, and has given thirty-nine successful presentations of this bill in different cities.

In both Eugene and Marshfield, the Elks were forced to show extra nights to accommodate the crowds who thronged to buy seats to see the attraction, and it is expected that he show will attract great local interest in this city.

An Elks' show committee, composed of M. L. Patton, V. V. Mills, H. G. Enders Jr., Hubert Bentley, Glen Simpson, H. H. Gillette and Elmer Smith are busy getting talent assembled, and rehearsals will be started at the club on next Monday evening.

DURING the Bayonne riots International Newsreel photographers were set upon by strikers and driven out of town three times in succession, but, despite the fact that one of the cameramen was beaten unrecognizable, the scenes were "shot" and appeared on the screens of thousands of movie theatres within a few days. The attacks were the result of bitterness felt by the strikers towards the International News cameramen for being indirectly responsible for the arrest of several ringleaders in a "previous" strike riot. Strips of film photographed at the previous riot were enlarged by the police and used to identify the rioters. One of the most remarkable achievements of International's credit was in persuading the Pope and the Sultan to pose. The credit of inducing the Turkish potentate to pose must be given to E. C. Wallen, eastern representative of the International News

The Grand Vizier sent word that the Sultan would enter a certain room of his harem at a certain hour and for the cameraman to be ready. At the appointed time the operator was ushered into a room with discreetly drawn curtains, and into this secluding semi-obscurity the Sultan almost immediately made his appearance. The irrepresible Wallen immediately walked to a window and pulled the draperies apart, letting in a flood of sunshine—

FIRST CAR LOAD OF ROGUE APPLES SOLD—The first carload of apples to be shipped from the Rogue River valley this season was sold at auction in Chicago Thursday. It was a straight car of Choice Winter Bananas packed and shipped by the Oregon Growers' Co-operative association, and it averaged $3.40 a box. The fruit was the property of Lathrop Brothers and was sold by the Stewart Fruit company.

Geological Report—Results of examinations made by a group of ten geologists in the federal service into possibilities of producing manganese ore from known deposits in Oregon, Washington and other states have been published for information of those interested.

Guarantee Bond Interest—Application for the guarantee of interest payments on $800,000 in bonds was filed with the state engineer Wednesday by the Medford irrigation district. These bonds, comprising a portion of the $1,250,000 authorized by the district, have already been certified to by the state irrigation securities commission.

Not a single unpleasant situation marred the general enjoyment of those who attended. "In the evening a grand ball was given at Patterson's hall, at which was congregated an array of youth and beauty seldom met with beyond the limits of our state. Over 150 people participated in the dance. The buckskin badge at that time worn by the pioneers consisted of a piece of buckskin one inch wide and six inches long. It was adopted at the suggestion of Gen. J. E. Ross and was worn upon the upper left lapel or the left side of the coat.

HISTORICAL ACCOUNT OF FIRST PIONEER ASHLAND REUNION (Continued from Page 1) H. Taylor, William Mathes, R. Benedict, David Stearns, J. H. Russell, Capt. J. M. McCall, Samuel Grubb, H. W. Clayton, Alex Watt, C. K. Klum, and Capt. O. C. Applegate. Of course there were many present whose residence in Southern Oregon dates back as far as those I have mentioned, but whose faces I do not recognize.

"At the close of the oration, Capt. O. C. Applegate was called for and read an original poem. The late Capt. Thomas Smith was one of the after dinner speakers and the Tidings report, which was signed "W. A. M.," says: "His account of the excitement among the bachelor settlers when the first white woman came to find a home in the valley was quaint and decidedly mirth provoking."

The late Gen. John E. Ross gave reminiscent accounts of his Indian war campaigns and entertained the audience with the wild war whoops of the Indian. During the discourses an interesting fact was brought to light. The first test of the productiveness of the Rogue River valley soil was in 1852 and the exact spot where the agricultural experiment was tried was a Talent farm at that time owned by Welborn Beeson and later owned by Jules Foss. Peas were planted at that time and afterwards taken to Jacksonville where they were prepared for the table of Jasper Houck, afterwards a well known hotel keeper of this city, and served at a public dinner given July 4 of that year.

Logan Is Veritable Arsenal That crisis accentuated the lesson to both sides—that in these regions lay the battlefield of Armageddon. Since then both the operators and the miners have prepared feverishly for the supreme contest. Gigantic sums of money, untold quantities of arms and legions of men of death-defying valor and iron will are at the disposal of both sides. The operators, unequivocally denying the right to organize on the part of the United Mine Workers of Am-bound to come sooner or later was a foregone conclusion with all those familiar with the situation. The surprise to them was that it did not come sooner. "Trigger Trial" Served as Spark But the proper psychological background for "action" was given at this particular juncture for both sides by the prospect of the second "Trigger Trial" beginning in Williamson, W. Va., September 6. There in the little county courthouse of "Bloody Mingo," a dozen or more of the same men who last March were acquitted of the charge of murdering Detective Albert Felt, are to stand trial again before the same bar of justice, on the second of seven indictments growing out of the "Battle of Mattewan," May 19, 1920. The central figure of the first "Trigger Trial" and leader of the radical element of union miners, Sid Hatfield, was killed last month at Welch, W. Va., together with Ed Chambers, youngest of the sixteen defendants, by C. E. Lively, "star sleuth" for the Baldwin-Felts agency. It is proper to interpolate here that the mining struggle is no different from warfare of any other sort in that propaganda is one of the main weapons of the mountaineous battlefields, and that both sides are making liberal use of it. One of the essential arts of the propaganda game being to "create an atmosphere"—hostile or friendly—the killing of the young chief of police of Mattewan and the forthcoming second Mattewan murder trial were seized upon at the psychological moment, and, duly linked, were profusely exploited both by the coal operators and by the union miners for their respective purposes.
