To Give Dinner Armistice Day—

The Wednesday Afternoon club is planning on an Armistice Day dinner, November 11, in lieu of the dinner or entertainment formerly given February 22. The change was made because of the planned dinner of the D. A. R. on the latter date to observe the birthday of George Washington. Some time before spring the club plans to give another dinner or party. The two yearly dinners are given as a means of replenishing the club's treasury.

deavored to have his client released to him for appearance, but this request was denied.

The funeral services of Wilbur Jacks will be held from the Perl Funeral Home, Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock, the Rev. Millard of the Christian church officiating. Interment will be in Central Point cemetery.

Wilbur Jacks was born in Kansas August 26, 1886. He is survived by his wife, and three children, Edna, aged 14 years, Kenneth, age seven years, and Wilbur Jr., aged nine years. His mother, Mrs. Francis E. Mimick, lives at Central Point, and a brother, Wilfred, lives at Lower Ridge, Calif. A sister, Mrs. Ruby Hayden, lives at Yakima, Wash., as does Charles Mowrey, a half brother, and Mrs. Laura Nees and Mrs. R. Grant, half sisters.

To Call Fifty Witnesses District Attorney Rawles Moore says that there would be a half hundred witnesses called in the circuit court trial, and that all the varied ramifications of the case would be thoroughly aired. Practically all of these will be from Eagle Point districts, where both the principals were well known and had lived for years. Many depositions have been secured by the state.

There seems to have been no actual witness to the entire affray, but the loud talk and shots were heard by Mr. and Mrs. John Nichols. John Nichols was attracted by the loud and angry words, and Mrs. Nichols looked out from the kitchen when she heard the shots. Mrs. Jacks is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nichols. Another who heard the shots and talks is Mrs. Lottie Van Scoy, at whose home Jacks roomed, and where he was taken after being wounded.

Went for Binding Twine According to Sheriff Terrill there is no wide divergence in the stories of both Matthews and Jacks, except the denial that Jacks had a gun. Matthews says his mission in Eagle Point Tuesday morning was to procure binding twine for corn he was shocking, and that he carried his gun because he feared Jacks, who he charges attempted to run over him with his auto when they met on the desert Monday afternoon. Friends of the accused say he was in constant fear of Jacks. It also develops that the fight at the Eagle Point dance last spring, was not over Mrs. Jacks, but another woman, whose name has not been brought into the case to date.

Harry Childs, of Medford, who has been employed by Charles Deffin on road work near Eagle Point, all summer, says he talked to Jacks last Saturday night, and that his trouble with Matthews came into the conversation. Childs says Jacks told him that "he just couldn't get mad at him (meaning Matthews), and I let him beat me, so he would make me mad." This was in reference to the Eagle Point fight. Childs says he commented that he "sure got a beating," and Jacks agreed with him, but bore no particular resentment towards Matthews.

Childs says Jacks also told him, "A few years ago my word was good for $15,000 in this town, and now I couldn't borrow a dime."

Jacks, on what proved to be his deathbed, evinced a disregard for death, and talked calmly of the shooting to the sheriff and friends, saying he didn't care whether he lived or died. It also became known that after Jacks knocked Matthews' hat off with a rock just before he was shot, he jumped on the hat and with his knife cut it to pieces.
