ENGINEER FAILS TO SELL SERVICE BEFORE COUNCIL

WATER INVESTIGATION TO COST $750 AND EXPENSES IS REJECTED; TO SCREEN WATER BEFORE METERS ARE INSTALLED.

After a lengthy discussion among the city dads, the offer of R. E. Koon, consulting engineer of Portland, to make a water survey and report on the Ashland water situation for $750 for services, and expenses not to exceed $500, was rejected at the regular meeting of the city council yesterday evening. Mr. Koon planned to make an investigation of conditions here and make preliminary plans for improving the water situation. He estimated that his work would be finished in a month from the date of employment. The proposition of Mr. Koon was rejected by the council as an unnecessary expenditure. City Engineer Walker was of the opinion that such a report would not be of material benefit and that the problems had already been threshed out to such an extent that Ashland's water situation was thoroughly covered in reports.

Report Not Justifiable

"The report," Mr. Walker said, "would hardly add anything that is not already known to Mr. Hosler or myself. I am familiar with the conditions here because I've been studying them for a long time. And I'm not talking to you (the council) as city engineer; I'm speaking as a private citizen and interested taxpayer."

"We don't need the report," Mr. Walker continued. "Why report on whether or not we need more water or meters? We know the answer to both questions. We don't need to have any one tell us whether or not we need a filter or reservoir. By the time we got through with the report we would spend $2,500 after gathering data at our own expense to be given to the consulting engineer. The citizens don't want to overhaul the water system. We can already tell everything about the water supply."

Know Where Waste Is

"We know where the waste is," said Mr. Walker. "It's plain enough Mr. Koon says The Dalles, with a population of 7,000 people, is only using 1,500,000 gallons of water per day, and that their laws look just as nice as ours. There's no question about where that 3,000,000 gallons a day of our supply goes. It goes to the irrigators."

In speaking of the water supply, Mr. Walker had reference to a report made by Earl Holser, city water superintendent, on the flow of Ashland creek during last month, a report which gave an average use of 4,500,000 gallons of water per day by the city of Ashland.

"How are we going to prove it?" asked Councilman Shinn, referring to the waste of water by the irrigators.

"The average consumption in most cities is very little over 100 gallons of water per day and, at the very highest, 200 gallons," was the reply of Engineer Walker.

"Meters won't tell us anything, but they will stop the waste," said Mr. Walker.

To Install Screens

Engineer Walker recommended that screens be placed in Ashland creek to catch the heavier debris that gathers in the stream during the freshest period of the year. Mr. Walker believed that such installation would make the use of meters possible. As a final result of the council meeting, Mr. Hosler and Engineer Walker were instructed to purchase such screens as they deemed necessary. The apparent assumption of the action was to make possible the metering of the city water system. Mayor Lamkin and the Local Y. M. C. A. Committee Make Conference Plans

The local committee of the Y. M. C. A. met last night and completed the plans and appointment of committees to take care of the Older Boys' conference, which is to meet in Ashland October 21-23. Each one present was enthusiastic over the event, which will bring to Ashland a small army of young manhood of southern Oregon between the ages of 15 and 21.

Wherever these conferences are held, the people are strong in their statements of the inspiration and pleasure of entertaining such boys in their homes and in their city. Parents who have boys of this age in Ashland are urged by the committee to give the boys a chance to participate in the help and fellowship which comes from such leadership in song, social and religious life. All registered delegates will be entitled to a free ticket to the entertainment and banquet Saturday afternoon and evening.

MINOR CASES ARE TRIED BY FEDERAL COURT ON TUESDAY

MEDFORD, Or., Oct. 5.—The federal court room and lobbies of the building were crowded at 10 o'clock yesterday morning when the October term of the United States court for southern Oregon opened shortly after the arrival of Judge C. E. Wolverton and Deputy Clerk E. M. Morton, who is acting as clerk at the Medford session, arrived from Portland. The other court officials and attaches arrived from Portland last night. Charles F. Gay and Glen Laidley, of Medford, are acting as court bailiffs during the term.

After the routine business incidental to the opening of the term had been transacted, pleas of guilty were entered by five men whose cases were awaiting trial, and they were immediately sentenced by Judge Wolverton.

Harvey Drew, Klamath Indian, pleaded guilty to having assaulted his wife with a hammer over a year ago, and was given a sentence of six months in the Multnomah county jail.

Jesse Scorchin, Klamath Indian, pleaded guilty to larceny of a steer on the reservation and drew a sentence of nine months in the Multnomah county jail. A stay of sentence for thirty days was granted by Judge Wolverton because of Scorchin being sick.

William Carroll and Tom Capper, white men of Klamath Falls, pleaded guilty to manufacturing liquor in that city for their own use, and were sentenced to sixty days in the Multnomah county jail.

T. J. Powers, of Klamath Falls, pleaded guilty to having possession of a still, and was fined $200. He was given thirty days' time in which to pay the fine.

The men sentenced as above mentioned will be confined in the Jackson county jail until they can be removed to Portland later.

After Judge Wolverton heard arguments in the Owens civil case by Attorneys George L. Roberts and Charles Reames, court adjourned until 2 p. m.

The trial of Levi Barney and Willie David, Klamath Indians, began at this afternoon's session. They are charged with larceny of cattle on the Indian reservation.

Lester W. Humphreys, United States attorney, and Thomas McGuire are conducting the prosecutions for the government in the criminal cases. Clarence R. Hitchkiss, the new United States marshal for the Oregon district, contrary to expectation, will not attend the Medford court term. Chief Deputy Marshal John D. Mann and Deputy

Secret Diplomacy Coup Fails At League Assembly

MASQUERADE IS LIVENING BIT FOR GENOA DELEGATES

By NEWTON C. PARKE (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 4.—Jazz bands and poker dice, Martini cocktails and Scotch highballs, dominoes and automobile rides keep the princes, prime ministers, foreign ministers and plain citizens who are delegates to the second assembly of the League of Nations from getting rusty when the day's work is over.

His Highness Prince Arfa-Ed-Dowleh, former minister of justice and Persia's delegate, is the league's greatest jazz band fiend. His favorite resorts are the Krussal, where everything from gin fizzes to champagne flow with utmost freedom until 1 a. m. nightly, and Maxim's, a parody on the famous Paris restaurant of the same name.

Now, Maxim's is notorious for the number of demi mondes who infest it nightly. Truly representative are they of the League of Nations, for they come from all quarters of the globe. And they are stony-hearted, ladies, quite ready to demand twenty Swiss francs from any stranger who dances with them, or even converses with them across the table.

Maybe the prince knew about this and maybe he didn't. But the other night, just after he had delivered a lengthy speech in the assembly, roasting the league for doing nothing on disarmament, he wandered into Maxim's, took a seat and ordered a bottle of champagne at a price that shook Persia's treasury.

Persians Up to Date
A Spanish girl with flashing eyes engaged his highness in conversation. Next she borrowed a cigarette and a glass of wine. Things were going along gayly in rapid-fire Spanish until the prince discovered that it was late and he had to be going. He called for his derby and started for the door.

Senorita was after him in a minute. "Here, you, you've wasted my

Wage Cutting Is Protested At Ore. Labor Convention

PORTLAND, Or., Oct. 5.—Resolutions adopted at the last annual meeting of the American Federation of Labor and sent to the Oregon federation by President Samuel Gompers, were presented at yesterday's session of the State Federation of Labor. They were referred to the resolutions committee and will be referred to the convention today.

A resolution introduced Monday, demanding that those who profited by the world war be compelled to pay a just proportion of the war debt, was adopted.

A resolution protesting against a general reduction of wages and calling upon the labor people to fight any attempt made in that direction was adopted.

CAPACITY HOUSE FOR FIRST NIGHT 'PURPLE FLASHES'

"Purple Flashes," playing to a capacity house at the Vining theater last night, was the finest theatrical surprise in many months. It has long been the custom in newspaper circles to regard a "home talent" show as good, even though the writer had to strain a point. But we can truthfully say that the Elks demonstrated last evening that they had a production that was clever and good enough to please the most exacting critic. It was practically professional in both staging and histrionic ability.

The curtain was up promptly at 8:15, and for two solid hours the local actors kept the entire house in an uproar of laughter. Mrs. Maxine Silver, as Mrs. Jack Temple, and Henry Enders, as her husband, carried leading parts with the ease of old professionals, and earned great praise for their clever character delineations. Their burlesque fight scene at the end of the first act was a riot of fun.

Miss June Walton, as the demure girl who "had never been proposed to," and Mrs. Mirlan Shepard, as the mysterious "Ferris wheel lady," won over the audience from the first. They added just one more proof that Ashland has talent and beauty to put over a show second to none.

Perhaps the real stars of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, introduced to the footlights in the persons of "Chick" Farlow and Miss Sidna Hellman. Costumed and made up perfectly in their eccentric comedy roles, they practically stopped the show with the repeated gales of laughter they brought from the audience.

Ike Fridger, as the "Henglish" butler, who was always just going to do something or other, was a headliner in his part; and John Finneran, as the more aristocratic Englishman, handled a monologue as if he had had years of experience. (But we might remark that his love scene with Dorothy seemed to embarrass him. Perhaps he was thinking of the crowd out in front.)

C. J. McNaughtan, producer of the show, played opposite Enders as his chum, and his natural professional handling of the difficult role added much to the success of the play.

In the "Old-Time Song Revue," Carl Loveland and a bevy of the prettiest girls we have seen had the pleasure of seeing, offered a variety of musical numbers that pleased every one. With Miss Dorothy Tinker, in a jazzy solo dance, Miss Dorothy Jones as a winsome southern lassie, Mrs. Carl Smith as the dark-eyed "Chink" girl, Miss Esther Kleinhammer as the Elks' girl, and eight mighty cute kiddies as school kids, the revue was a decided winner.

In the "Fashion Show," Karl Nims offered a pleasing solo and introduced to the audience the Misses Evelyn Paddock, Hazel and Mrs. N.

GAME ENDS 3 TO 0; 30,000 FANS AT GAME

YANKS TAKE MEASURE OF "BIG PHIL" DOUGLAS; MAYS IS CHINESE PUZZLE; RUTH MAKES SINGLE FOR FIRST SCORE.

By JACK VIERICK (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 5.—Carl Mays, the sturdy underhand twirler of the Yankees, turned the Giants back in the first game of the world series baseball game, winning by a score of 3 to 0.

With 30,000 fans watching, the Yankee ace let the anxious Giants down with five hits, while his teammates took the measure of "Big Phil" Douglas, who pitched a nice game, despite the score, but who got no aggressive support from his teammates, who found Mays to be worse than a Chinese puzzle.

Frankie Frisch, crack third sacker of the losers, was the only Giant to solve Mays, getting four hits in four innings up to bat, one being a smashing triple in the sixth inning.

Babe Ruth drove in the first run of the game in the first inning, when he poked a sizzling single to the center field, scoring Miller, who had beaten an outfield hit. The lone single was Ruth's sum total for the day, as he walked on two trips to first base and fanned the next two times up to bat.

Rawlins was the only Giant besides Frisch to nick Mays for a hit. Neither team made an error.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Dawn broke bright and cold after the night showers that visited New York yesterday and the weather man gave no threat of interfering with the opening of the world series baseball game.

Despite the rain and cold of last night, scores of baseball fans whose numbers were augmented by hundreds at dawn stood in line all night waiting to grab off bleacher tickets.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The New York Yankees scored the first blood in the opening world series baseball game being played between the Yankees and Giants here today. A vicious single by Babe Ruth enabled Miller, who had previously singled, to make the home plate.

Free Auto Camp Impractical For Next Year, Plea

(By FRANK JORDAN)
On July 4, 1916, Ashland's now famous auto camp was formally opened to the public. At that time the only equipped auto camp in existence. Today it is known from coast to coast. Starting in a small way, but well equipped, it has been enlarged three times, yet it has been impossible to take care of all the cars that have applied for camping privileges this year. The park board has bought more land and will have it ready for next year. Travel has increased to such a magnitude that I think it is impractical to have a free camp ground next year. It will require a caretaker next year all the time to keep the grounds in a clean and sanitary condition. It will be necessary to make quite a few improvements before a change can be satisfactorily made. All that is needed is to give the tourist something for his money and he will become a traveling booster. Anybody who has taken the time to stroll up through the camp grounds this summer cannot help but realize the valuable asset it is to Ashland. Let us make a small charge, let the tourist pay part of the expense, get more of our home people in the habit of going to the camp and giving the tourist the glad hand, and Ashland will soon be known throughout the U. S. A.
